DESCRIPTION OF THE WITHERSPOON COAT-OF-ARMS

Many families whose ancestry dates back several centuries into the time of the Crusades adopted a Coat-of-Arms which was a pictorial symbol of the family name similar to our flag and carried into the battles in which their men fought. It symbolized events through which their warrior ancestors lived and fought, especially those who took part in the Christian Crusades of the tenth and eleventh centuries.

Descendants of such ancestors today prize such a symbol and take pride in its display in various forms and in the original colors which depict certain aspects of the lives of their progenitors.

The WITHERSPOON Coat-of-Arms depicts a cross engrailed between four crescents, a hand holding a laurel wreath with one finger pointing upward. On a scroll beneath the cross is the motto: "De Juvante" (God helping).

The cross and crescents point to Crusader ancestry, engrailed denotes possession of land. The Mascle, or lozenge-shaped charge represents the mesh of a net and symbolizes persuasion, whereby men are induced to verity and virtue, and so may seem to be caught. The Mascle is a bearing of high honor. The hand is a symbol of justice; the laurel wreath of some notable exploit. As to the colors, Or (Gold) symbolizes generosity and elevation of mind; Gules (Red) military fortitude and magnanimity; and Argent (silver) peace and sincerity. DEDICATION

This volume is affectionately dedicated to the memory of my father

Rev. William Ray Witherspoon whose interest in the genealogy of the

inspired me to continue the efforts of many who preceded me and from whom a part of the information contained herein was received.

Preface

This History and Genealogy of the Witherspoon Family has been compiled over a period of almost 200 years. Originally, it was begun by Robert Witherspoon in 1780 and continued by his son, Dr. John Ramsey Witherspoon, in 1840. Since that time many people have done research and written genealogies of one or more lines of the WITHERSPOON family. Most notable of those which were published or mimeographed are listed herewith:

The Witherspoon Family Chronicle by Eliza Witherspoon Montgomery in 1835.

The Genealogy of the Witherspoon Family by Joseph C. Wardlaw in 1910.

Family Sketches by Margaret Haldane McLared Gray in 1929.

The Witherspoon Family of Scotland and America by Robert Sidney Witherspoon in 1934.

A Pioneer Woman and her Family by Lois Weatherspoon West in 1942.

The Genealogy of the Witherspoon Family by William Stanley Witherspoon in 1944.

Genealogy of the Witherspoon Family by Jessie Laing Sibbett in 1954.

Witherspoon History and Genealogy by Nelle Witherspoon Iwig in 1956.

Witherspoon History by Walter Wilson in 1958.

Jim Witherspoon, A Soldier of the South by James Franklin Corn in 1962.

Witherspoon Families of Western Pennsylvania by Evelyn Potter Park and Ruth Witherspoon Goldner, in 1968.

A copy of each of these is in the Genealogical Department of the Weatherford Public Library of Weatherford, Texas, and is available to any one who desires to read them.

The author has worked for almost 40 years gathering information from many sources. He has written to more than one thousand people, most of whom were very cooperative and gave what information they had or could secure. In addition, they sent names of those from whom additional information might be obtained. He has traveled thousands of miles and visited hundreds of people to secure information. In addition, records from family Bibles, Church records, census records, county and state histories have produced much data. Cemetery records, cemetery markers, court house records of wills, marriage and birth records and many other sources have provided information.

A file of correspondence of each person contacted which totals more than 700 together with information from books, pamphlets, letters, documents, wills, articles, newspaper clippings and many other items of research have been indexed and are also available from the Genealogical Department of the Weatherford Public Library in Weatherford, Texas, to anyone who may desire to use it.

This work is the culmination of the splendid cooperation of hundreds of interested people who have supplied so generously information that this book might be as complete as humanly possible. My sincere thanks to all who have contributed in any way in this tremendous undertaking. It makes a reality a dream which Robert Sidney Witherspoon, with whom I worked until his death in 1945, had of some day publishing his Witherspoon Family of Scotland and America but his death prevented that and I promised his widow before she passed away that I would make his dream a reality. To mention all who have made substantial contributions in this undertaking would make a list too long to publish. However I would be ungrateful were I not to mention the long hours of untiring work spent in traveling, research and the typing of the manuscript to prepare it for publication by Miss Margaret Williams of Weatherford, Texas. This work could not have been accomplished without her faithful and efficient cooperation. My sincere thanks and appreciation to her.

This history and genealogy has been merely a hobby with me and originally I had no intention of having it published. It was only after the insistence of scores of people that the wealth of information which had been accumulated from hundreds of people throughout the United States and Canada for so many years should be made of permanent record before it was forever lost and forgotten.

In compiling a history and genealogy of this scope covering a period of almost 600 years, it is impossible for it to be without mistakes an errors. While much of the information in this book has been authenticated and documented, it was not possible to avoid some mistakes, although every effort possible was made to eliminate this. Conflicting information from different people about the same person made it necessary to use that which seemed to be more nearly correct. To those who will discover errors and mistakes in names, places, dates, or events, my humble apology is herewith offered.

No claim is made for special excellence in arrangement nor for literary merit. This is simply the efforts of a busy man in his idle moments to preserve in some manner the accounts and activities of our WITHERSPOON ancestors, many of whom have made sizable contributions to our churches, communities and nation. In doing so they have rendered invaluable service to our Society and made it possible for succeeding generations to be better prepared to meet the problems which they must inevitably face in the years ahead.

In order for the reader to better understand the classification of each person, and to enable one to trace their ancestry either forward or backward, each generation is designated by a letter of the alphabet, followed by a number indicating that particular person. Following this number is the generation and number of their father who is listed in the preceding generation. To illustrate: "M60—L34" means that M60 is the number of John Knox Witherspoon and the L34 indicates his father, Lt. David Witherspoon in the preceding generation. When a question mark (?) is in the parentage column, that means the person's father is unknown. Following the name of each person are dates of birth and death, if known. Spaces are provided in such cases for dates and middle names as well as names and dates of their children to be filled in by those into whose hands this book may comes. The letter "M" means "married" and "Issue" of course means their children.

Work on a genealogy is never finished but one just has to stop somewhere and in my case some information came in after the cut-off date so that information is included in the appendix in the back of the book with numbers to identify each person with those who are included in the text itself.

At the back of the book are two indices – the first of which gives the first name of each of those bearing the name of WITHERSPOON with their generation and individual number opposite which will enable a person to quickly find information about them and the second is an index of the spouse of each WITHERSPOON which is included to enable a person to find the WITHERSPOON whom some other person married when they did not know the FIRST name of the WITHERSPOON. Identification is the number of the WITHERSPOON whom each married.

I have listed in this genealogy only those persons bearing the name of WITHERSPOON, eliminating adjacent lines. When a daughter of a WITHERSPOON marries, her children bear the name of her husband and therefore are listed only as her children and their line is then dropped. In order to make the book more readable and interesting, I have tried to include something about the life and activity of each one. Unfortunately, this was not available in many instances.

It is my hope that at some future date someone who is interested in preserving information about present day WITHERSPOONS will continue this work for a genealogy is never finished. There are literally thousands of WITHERSPOONS who are not included in this book. It would have been an impossible task to secure all of them for they live in every state of the Union and in every province of Canada. In fact, many are still living in Ireland and Scotland from which all the WITHERSPOONS originated. Should someone wish to use any of the information contained herein in any way, you are welcome to do so.

History of the Witherspoon Name

Before listing the history of the WITHERSPOON name it would be well to give a little background of the origin of names.

Primitive personal names doubtless originated soon after the invention of spoken language, although the date of their first use is lost in the darkness of ages preceding recorded history. For thousands of years thereafter, first, or given names were the only designations that men and women bore; and in the dawn of prehistoric times, when the world was less crowded than it is today and every man knew his neighbor, only one title of address was necessary. Only gradually, with the passing of centuries and the increasing complexity of civilized society, did a need arise for more specific designations. While the roots of our system of family names may be traced back to early civilized times, actually the hereditary surname as we know it today is a comparatively recent development in human history, dating from a time scarcely earlier than nine hundred years ago.

A surname is a name added to a baptismal or Christian name for the purpose of making it more specific and of indicating family relationship or descent. Classified according to origin, most surnames fall into four general categories: 1. Those formed from the given name of the sire; 2. those rising from bodily or personal characteristics; 3. those derived from locality of place of residence; and 4. those derived from occupation. It is easier to understand the story of the development of our institution of surnames if these classifications are borne in mind.

As early as Biblical times, certain distinguishing appellations were occasionally employed in addition to the given name, as for instance: Joshua the son of Nun, Simon the son of Jonas, Judas of Galilee and Simon the Zealot. The Romans, with the rise of their civilization, felt the need for some hereditary title; and to meet this need they invented a complex system whereby every patrician traced his descent by taking several names. None of these however, exactly corresponded to surnames as we know them, for the "clan name", though hereditary, was given also to slaves and other dependents. Excellent as this system was, it proved to be but a temporary innovation, for the overthrow of the Western Empire by barbarian invaders brought about its end and a reversion to the primitive custom of a single name.

The ancient Scandinavians and for the most part the Germans had only individual names, and there were no family names, strictly speaking, among the Celts. But as the family and tribal groups grew in size, individual names proved inadequate and the need for supplementary designations began to be felt. True surnames, in the sense of hereditary designations, date in England from about the year 1000. Largely they were introduced from Normandy, although there are interesting records of Saxon surnames prior to the Norman conquest.

By the end of the twelfth century, hereditary names had become common in England. But even by 1465 they were not universal. During the reign of Edward V, a law was passed to compel certain Irish outlaws to adopt surnames: "They shall take unto them a Surname, either of some Town or some Colour, as Black or Brown or some Art or Science, as Smyth or Carpenter, or some office as Cook or Butler". And as late as the beginning of the nineteenth century, a somewhat similar decree compelled Jews in Germany and Austria to add a German surname to the single name which they had previously used.

Another class of surnames, those arising from some bodily or personal characteristic of their first bearer, apparently grew out of what were in the first instance nicknames. Thus Peter, the Strong became Peter Strong; Roger of small stature became Roger Little or Roger Small; and the black haired William or blond Alfred became William Black or Alfred White.

In America, the melting pot of all nations, a greater variety of family names exists than anywhere else in the world. Surnames of every race and nation are represented. While the greater number are of English, Scotch, Irish or Welsh origin, brought to this country by scions of families which had borne these names for generations prior to emigration, many others from Central and Southern Europe and from Slavic countries where the use of surnames is generally a more recently established practice, present considerable difficulty to the student of etymology and family history.

Those Americans who bear old and honored names who trace the history of their surnames back to sturdy emigrant ancestors, or even beyond, across the seas and into the dim mists of antiquity may be rightfully proud of their heritage. While the name in its origin may seem ingenious, humble, surprising or matter-of-fact in its significance today lies not in a literal interpretation of its original meaning but in the many things that have happened to it since it first came into use. In the beginning it was only a word, a convenient label to distinguish one John from his neighbor John who lived across the field.

But soon it established itself as a part of the bearer's individuality; and as it passed to his children, his grandchildren and to their children, it became the symbol not of one man but of a family and all that family stood for.

Handed down from generation to generation, it grew inseparably associated with the achievement, the tradition and the glory of the family. Like the Coat-of-arms, that vivid pictorial symbolization of the family name which warrior ancestors bore in battle, the name itself, borne through every event of life and through the lives of scores of one's progenitor, became the badge of family honor; the "good name" to be proud of, to protect and fight for, if need be. As the valiant deeds of the marching generations have clothed it in glory, it has become an institution, a family rallying glory and the most treasured possession of those who wear it.

The name WITHERSPOON, according to Cosmo Innes, the eminent authority on Scotch surnames, is believed to have been of Scotch derivation but the Media Research Bureau suggests that it may be of ancient English origin. Ancient records in both England and Scotland list the name in various forms as:Wodderspoon, Widderspoon, Wilderspoon, Wytherspone, Witherspoon and many other forms of spelling. Among the earliest definite records of the name in England are those of Adam Wytherpyn of the County of Norfolk in the year 1272, those of Johannes Withspone of Yorkshire in 1379, those of William Wythspone of Yorkshire in the same year and those of John Wetherpyn, vicar of Thrickby, County of Norfolk in 1419. These early bearers of the name appear to have been for the most part of the landed gentry and yeomanry of the British Isles.

The annals of the WITHERSPOON line of Scotland commence with an Alexander of Edinburgh, who had a son named James, who married Elizabeth Caidzow. Cosmo Innes thinks the name might go back even into Germany and the Anglo-Saxon race. WITHER is an old German name for Army and the last part, SPOON, may have come from the old Roman word Sponsus meaning promise or bond. Its origin in all possibility may never be definitely known but today the names WITHERSPOON and WEATHERSPOON are the most commonly known in the United States and Canada. Most WITHERSPOON families migrated from England and Scotland, some coming through Ireland, to the United States and Canada in the early seventeen hundreds. Some of them came into South Carolina, others landed in Nova Scotia and migrated into Canada even across into British Columbia. Another family settled in Maine and thence into other parts of New England, while others landed in New York, New Jersey and Pennsylvania and migrated into other parts of the United States and eventually into every State and Province of the United States and Canada.

Many other branches of the WITHERSPOON family in all probability came to the United States, landing in other parts of the country, but it is generally believed that all of the American WITHERSPOONS are descended from those who came here from England, Scotland and Ireland. Bearers of the name have made worthy contributions to the progress of our Nation. They may be described as a hardy, enterprising and self-reliant race, possessed of keen perception, sound judgment and determination of purpose.

GENERATION A

A1- ? ALEXANDER WETHERSPUN (_____1400 – _____1451)
M:
Issue: 1. James (_____1435 – _____1491)

This is the first of this name found in a "Registrum Magni Sigilli Regum Scotorum" (Register of the Great Seal of Scotland – Lord Clerk's Registry) of 15 Jac. II., July 20, 1451, where there is a charter of confirmation by the King (James II) to Robert Logane de Lestabrigg of a deed to Simon Lamb, burgess of Edinburg, which deed was witnessed by Alexander Wetherspun and others.

The following names also appear in England from 1273 to 1419: Adam Wythspone, County Norfold, 1273; Johannes Wytherspone, 1379 and Willelmus Wytherspone. P. T. Yorks, 1379; John Witherspyn, Vicar of Trickby, County Norfold, 1419, F. F. XI 254.

Gustave Anjou, Ph. D., President British-American Record Society, New York City, 1907, states @Como Innes, the eminent authority on surnames believes that WITHERSPOON, or as it was also spelled, Wetherspun, Wedderspoone, etc., is derived from a locality of that name in Scotland.

GENERATION B

3. William (_____ 1470 – _____ 1555)
4. John (_____ 1473 – _____ 1559)
5. Archibald (_____ 1475 – _____)

He was "Burgess of Glasgow", precurator of the lepers in the hospital, near the bridge of Glasgow, and the newly built chapel of Saint Ninian, by an instrument dated August 16, 1491, written in Latin. A gift by Robert Adamson to said lepers, of an annual rent of 12 d., payable furth of a tenement in the Walker gait. James is mentioned in this instrument. He married Elizabeth Gaidzow (or Gaidson as spelled in an instrument of her son, Master Nicholas Wyderspon, Vicar of the Parish of Strathaven, dated November 23, 1535).

GENERATION C

C1-B1 NICHOLAS WITHIRSPUNE (1465 – 1552)
M: _____
Issue: _____

His name occurs first in Simonis' notorial-protocol of the Docese of Glasgow under April 26, 1511, when William Striueling, procurator and his commissioners, appointed as procurators of the Consistorial Court of Glasgow, Magistro Nicholaum Widderspune and others, issued an edit to cite those having interest to see the evidence made respecting the chaplaincy, founded in the Church of Campsys by the late Sir John Striueling, his father.

On June 13, 1511, Mr. Nicholas Witherspon, presbyter, renounced before Mr. Hamilton, rector of Covington, Sir John Heriot, and others, of his adherance to an appeal formerly interjected by Mr. Mathew Steward from the said judges to the Apostolic See, submitting himself to the good will of the said judges for having interfered with their jurisdiction, and asking absolution from the sentence of excommunication thereby incurred; which after having given his right hand to the provost, and sworn on the word of a priest to abide by the orders of the church and fulfill his penance, they granted simplicitur (without ceremony).

Among the charters and documents relating to the city of Glasgow, Anjou states "we find one, dated September 9, 1522, which is attested by this Nicholas: "and I, Nicholas Witherspune, master of arts, and clerk of the Diocese of Glasgow, notary public, by apostolic and loyal authority, attest to this instrument. To this document he appended his seal:

On October 11, 1531, Master Nicholl Wydderspoon resigned in favor of Archibald Puudzone and Janet Atone, his wife, "his place with the pertinants lyand fra the Eyst Port and Sand Mungoy's Kyrk, on the rortht part of the gaet of the samye, betuix the landis of John Gray on the East and the landis of Andro Wyderspon on the West and the buurn of Malindonar on the North: the grantees paying 18/- yearly and 1/- te Schir Rychart Otterbuurn, and 1/- to the hospital of the Almshows, togydder with the buurow maell anenerlye; they to raes na maer anwell upon the sayd ground except the forsayd 22/- allenerly." Sassine given by Geo. Burell, bailie.

June 27, 1532, Master Nicholas Wydderspon was witness to a sasine to Margaret Gane, and other heirs of John Gane, their father.

In a Reg. Mag. Sig. of May 27, 1557, the Queen (Mary, 1542 – 87) Queen of Scots) in consideration of intended contract of marriage between Peter Hammyltoun de Batcat and Robert, his son and heir, and Jac. Wetherspune de Brighouse and BARBARA WETHERSPUNE, grants to said Barbara, in her pure virginity, land Quhitelew, barony de Bathoad, vic. de Renfrew.

James, of Brighouse, occurs as a witness in a Laing Charter, of Oct. 27, 1559, of a sasine by James, Earl of Arran (Regent of Scotland 1577), Lord of Dalkeyth, and other prominent men, including James Weddirspone of Brighouse, to answer to charge of murder of David Riccio (Mary, Queen of Scott's secretary) as rebels.

James Witherspuune again occurs as a witness, on Feb. 21, 1560, on a renunciation by George Elphintoun.

A complaint was entered against James Wetherspun, on September 1, 1567, by Andre Ferriare, before the Privy Counceil, that he had "taken corn growing" on land in Linlithgow, which the complainant had purchased from the "Soverane Lordis".

James Witherspoon was one of those who took active part in the troubles of the time, and the result was that he, as James Wetherspune of Brighouse, occurs amoung the forfeitures in the Parliament of Scotland, Aug. 28, 1571. He was, however, let off. – State Papers, vii.

On May 6, 1572, James Wedderspoon of Brighouse "enters his allegiance to the Privy Council" as appears from its records.

He died soon after, for in a suit of Sir William Lauder, of Haltoun, the latter stated that he had become cautioner for the late James Wetherspune, of Brighous, that he would pay Harie Drummond, of Ricarton, 100 pounds, sterling, in name and to use of William Sandslandis and Thomas Heart. Sir William now pleaddeth that said James, when he "suld have enterit within the said tolbuith (the toll-booth was the old name in Scotland for a temporary hut of boards erected in fairs and markets, where such as did not pay, or were charged some breath of the law in buying or selling, were confined till reparation was made) he was lyand bedfast, deadlie sick in the burgh of Linlithgow . . . and daid theirof." Sir William thereupon prayed for relief paying said sum. The "caution" here referred to appears in the registers of the Privy Council, acta 1557-79.

Issue: 1. David (1635 – _____)
2. Gavin (1637 – 1681)
3. James Jr. (1640 – _____)
4. (Daughter)

There is so far found no written record, but tradition says he m. (c. 1634) LUYSE ("LUCY") WELCH (b. 1613) dau. of Rev. John Welsh of Ayr (1558 – 1622) and his wife, Elizabeth Knox (1569 – 1625), whom he m. in 1594; she was the youngest daughter of Rev. John Knox (1505 – 1572), the great Scottish religious reformer and his second wife, Lady Margaret Stuart (1548 – 1612?), whom he m. 1564, when she was only 16, and who after his death in 1572, m. 2dly, in 1574, Andrew Ker, of Fawdonside, who d. 1599.

"Calvin (1509 – 1564) and Knox (1505 – 1572) were both born, trained and educated under Roman Catholic influence and were mature men before they partially embraced Presbyterian principles, The 2d wife of Knox was Lady Margaret Steward, a militant Romanist". (History of Williamsburg (S. C.) by William Willis Boddie, 1923, page 171.)

Lady Margaret Stuart (or Stewart), was the youngest dau. of ANDREW STUART (1523? – 1592), 2d Lord Orchiltree, "The Good" and his wife, Agnes, dau. of John Cunningham of Caprington. Andrew Stuart and his father both took a prominent part with the leaders of the Reformation. He was a son of ANDREW STUART (1503 – 1548) 3d Lord Avondale and and Lord Ochiltree in 1542, and his wife, Lady Margaret, dau. of James, 2d Lord Hamilton and 1st Earl of Arran, and his 1st wife, Beatrice Drummond, dau. of Sir John, Lord Drummon, XI, who d. in 1519. This James, Ld. Hamilton and Earl of Arran, was son of Ld. James Hamilton (1420? – 1479) and his wife, Princess Mary (b. 1450) dau. King JAMES II (1430 – 1460) of Scotland and his Queen, Mary, dau. of Arnold, Duke of Gueldress. This Andrew was son of ANDREW STUART (1470? – 1513), 2d Lord Avondale in 1502. (Killed at Flodden Field battle in 1513), and his wife, Lady Margaret, dau. of Sir John Kennedy of Blairquhan.

According to Collin's Peerage of England, 1812, this last Andrew, who was killed in 1513, was a son of ALEXANDER STUART (1445 – 1492), "Laird of Evandale", who was a son of WALTER STUART (c. 1420 – _____), of Murphie, and Lady Elizabeth, his wife, dau. of Arno, of Arnot. Walter was a son of SIR JAMES STUART (1395 – 1451), who on the imprisonment of his father and two brothers, with the assistance of the Bishop of Argile, assaulted and burnt the town of Dumbarton and killed Sir James Stuart (his cousin) the Governor of the Castle, in 1424 or 1425. Proclaimed a traitor, he sought refuge in Ereland, where he married in 1415, a lady of the family of MacDonald. Sir James was the 3d son of MURDOCK STUART (1370? – 1425), 2d Duke of Albany, Governor of Scotland until the restoration of his cousin, King James I (1394 – 1437) of Scotland, when he and two of his sons, Walter and Alexander, were beheaded in Sterling in 1425, He married Isabel, dau. and co-heiress of Duncan, last Earl of Lennox, who was also beheaded in 1425.

Murdock was a son of ROBERT STUART (1345 – 1419), Earl of Fie and Monteith, and in 1398 was Duke of Albany. In 1369(?) he m. Margaret, only daughter of Murdock, Earl of Monteith. Robert was a brother of John Stuart (1335? – 1406) who in 1390 became KING ROBERT III of Scotland. Robert, Duke of Albany, was 3d son of KING ROBERT II (1316 – 1390) of Scotland, m. Elizabeth, dau. of Sir Adam Muir of Rowallance. King Robert II was only child of WALTER (1293 - 1326), 6th Lord High Steward of Scotland and Marjory Bruce (c. 1295 – 1316), his 2d wife, who was the only child of King ROBERT BRUCE (1274 – 1329) of Scotland and Isabel, his 1st wife, dau. of David Erskine, Earl of Mar.

The old Witherspoon family tradition (probably going back to the 17th century) states that ' Lucy" (or LUYSE) as it was spelled in her mother's will, proved in Glasgow, Scotland, in 1625) Welch, a granddaughter of Rev. John Know (1505 – 1572), married (c. 1634) a Mister Wotherspoon (or Witherspoon), one of the parish ministers of Scotland, and she became the mother of: 1. David; 2. Gavin; 3. James, 4. dau., name unknow (this from (4) on added to "tradition" later); 5. possibly another dau., name unknown. David, b. 1635 was the father of John c. 1670 – 1737) who came to S. C. in 1734; Gavin, b. 1637 – d. after 1681, but lost sight of after that date; Rev. Mr. James II (b. 1640?) was the grandfather of the "Signer". 4 - daughter name unknown, married David Walker (baptised Feb. 7, 1630), a farmer who was father of Rev. David Walker (b. 1665?), who was father of Anne Walker (1696 – 1787), the mother of Rev. Dr. John Witherspoon (1722 – 1794), the "Signer". See Genealogy of the Withersopoon Family, by Col. Joseph G. Wardlaw, 1910; Americans of Royal Descent, by Charles H. Browning, 3d edition, 1894, page 684, Pedigree CCI; South Carolina Under the Royal Government, 1719-76, by Edward McCrady; History of Williamsburg, (S. C.) by William W. Boddie, 1923.

Rev. Mr. James (or Alexander, Jr.) Witherspoon, I (b. 1610?) and his wife, Luyse ("LUCY") Welsh (b. 1613) had issue: 1. David; 2. Gavin; 3. James; 4. dau. name unknown; 5. possibly another dau., name unknown.

In "Notes and Queries", 8th Ser. vol. 7 page 202, it is stated that "Louise Welsh was born at Jonzac, France (where her father, Rev. John Welsh of Ayr (1558 – 1622) was in exile many years), on May 13, 1613. She was living with her only surviving brother (the second son), Rev. Josias Welsh (1596 – 1634), at Templepatrick, County Antrin, Ireland, in 1632. Rev. Charles Rogers in his Genealogical Memoirs of John Know, pp. 147, 152, states "Louise Welsh probably lived in Fifeshire, Scotland.

Varnum Lansing Collins, in his President Witherspoon, 1925, Vol. I, pages 5-6, states: "John Knox (1505 – 72) by his 2d wife, Margaret Stuart (1548 – 1612?) dau. of Lord Ochiltree, had among other children, a daughter,Elizabeth born about 1570 who married in 1594 the Rev. John Welsh of Ayr (1558 – 1622). She died in 1625 three years after her husband. They had 4 sons and 2 daughters, of whom only the second son, Josias, and his younger sister, Louise, are concerned in the present matter.

Josias Welsh (1596? – 1634) was the father of the once celebrated John Welsh (1612 – 1686), the deprived minister of Irongray, Dumbries. A Reverend John Bladkader in his manuscript memoirs (Woodrow MSS. ADVOCATES LIBRARY, EDINBURG) mentions the fact that he was acquainted with a young woman in Fife who was "a cousin of John Welsh of Irongray" (1612 – 1681). This was approximately in 1674 when this John Welsh was making a preaching tour in Fifeshire.

Louise Welsh, the 2d daughter of Elizabeth Knox (1569 – 1625) and John Welsh (of Ayr) the elder, was born at Jonsac in France in May, 1613; but after 1625, when she appears as a witness to her mother's will, all trace of her is lost. She is supposed to have returned to Scotland to have married, to have settled in Fifeshire and to have become the mother of the unidentified "young woman" of the Blackader manuscript. Moreover, this "young woman" is supposed to have married one of two brothers, David or James Walker farmers as Leslie in Fifeshire, and thus to have become the mother of Rev. David Walker (b. 1665?) minister of Temple Parish. It is scarcely necessary to point out that genealogical claims based on suppositions like the above cannot be accepted seriously.

With (REV.) David Walker (b. 1665?) the descent gets back to firm ground again. He m. Margaret Patterson and was the father of Thomas and Anne Walker, the latter of whom m. Rev. James Witherspoon (1691 – 1759), and became the mother of President Witherspoon (Rev. Dr. John Witherspoon, 1722 – 1794) the "Signer". Her brother Thomas, in his day a well known Scottish ecclesiastical writer, in the earliest of the alleged Knox descendants to claim the ancestry in print. This he does in his "Vindication of the Discipline and Constitution of the Church of Scotland" (Edinburg 1774, p. 379). Assuming that he derived his information from his father, Rev. David Walker of Temple (b. 1665) the Knox kinship is carried back close enought to the time of John Welsh of Irongray (1612 – 1681) and the unknown cousin to acquire at least an air of possibility; but here again the evidence is lacking.

Dr. D. Hay Fleming of St. Andrews, the historian and modern authority on Knox, in a letter to the author of these lines, admitted that "the claim could not be lightly set aside", but had no fresh evidence in its support."

Dr. Charles Rogers (Genealogical Memoirs of John Knox and of the Knox Family, edited for the Grampian Club, London, 1879, p. 147) says "it is not improbable" Louise Welsh may have been the mother of the young woman described as the cousin of John Welsh of Irongray (1612 – 1681). V. L. Collins closes with: "The most generous conclusion that can be reached, after examination of all available sources, manuscript and printed, is the Scottish one of "not proven". My own evidence, in writing as to the correctness of the 300 year-old Witherspoon tradition of the descent from Luyse Welsh (b. 1613) is (1st) from my father, Capt. Thomas Franklin Witherspoon (1825 – 1909), Confederate States Army, 1861-1865, who wrote in a letter to a son of his, William A. Graham (1804 – 1875) Governor of N. C. 1845 and 1847, Secretary of U. S. Navy 1850 – 1853; that Rev. John Witherspoon, D. D. LL. D. (1722 – 1794) was a second or third cousin of his father, Dr. John Ramsay Witherspoon, M. D. (1774 – 1852) who graduated at College of N. J. (Princeton) in 1794, in last class under President Witherspoon, "the signer" of the Declaration of Independence, and was his amanuensis the last two years of the "signer's" life. (2d) My grandfather Dr. John Ramsay Witherspoon, M. D., in his preface to his Witherspoon Genealogy, dated 1840, writes; "For the brief notice of his ancestors prior 1670 (the date of his great-grandfather's birth), he has been indebted to his venerated friend and preceptor, the late Rev. Dr. Witherspoon, President of the college of N. J., who was induced from traditional facts and other circumstances common alike to his own and the writer's ancestry, to consider both as descended from the same original stock in Scotland." (The actual kinship, according to my tracings, are that the "signer" was a triple 2d cousin of James (1700-1768) through his own father, John (c. 1670 – 1737) marrying his 1st cousin Janet (1670 – 1734) dau. of Rev. Mr. James Witherspoon, II, b. 1640 who was a brother of David (b. 1635) who was a son of Rev. Mr. James, I (b. 1610) and his wife Luyse Welsh).

ROBERT S. WITHERSPOON, (b. 1868) and the "signers" mother, Anne Walker, was also a 2d cousin of James (1700 – 1768) through the Walkers, she being descended from Luyse Welsh also.) Robert S. Witherspoon (b. 1868) (3d) Lottie Ingram Witherspoon (1867 – 1901) dau. of Rev. Thomas Dwight Witherspoon, D. D. LL. D. (1836 – 1898); m. 1894 Rev. Eugene Bell and they were both missionaries to Korea; wrote me claiming descent from Luyse Welsh, traditionally, (4th) Mr. E. H. Dial, a former college mate and law partner of Hon. Samuel Andrew Witherspoon, M. A. LL. D. (1855 – 1915) Member of Congress 1910 – 1915, in his memorial address state: "Mr. Witherspoon never boasted of his ancestry – in fact rarely referred to it. It is a fact that fine blood was in his veins. John Witherspoon, the "Signer" of the DECLARATION OF INDEPENDENCE was of the same stock. He was a descendant in direct line from JOHN KNOX, the great Scotch preacher and reformer of the 16th century." I could name others, ROBERT S. WITHERSPOON (b. 1868).

This extract is from a Journal kept by a soldier (Alexander Ross, it is believed), and has been printed in full in the Transactions of the Glasgow Archaeological Society, i, 38.

Alexander Witherspon, refers to his "brodyr John in the Earl of Eglinton Troop of Horse", but it is not known what became of the soldier afterwards.

In the first Genealogy of the Witherspoon Family (in America) by his grandson, Robert Witherspoon (1728 – 1788) states, under date Williamsburg, S. C. May 1780: "My Grandfather and Grandmother were born in Scotland about the year 1670; they were cousins and both of one Sir Name, his (given) name was John, and hers was Janet (J5); they lived in their younger years in, or near, Glasgow (Scotland) at a place called Begardie; were married in 1693 and in 1695 they left Scotland and settled in Ireland in the County of Down Parish of Drumbo at a place called Knockbracken, where he lived in good circumstances and in good credit until the year 1734. He then removed with his family to South Carolina."

The History of Williamsburg, by William Willis Boddie, 1923, on page 30, states: "John Witherspoon (1670 – 1737) settled on Boggy Swamp in Williamsburg (District, South Carolina) in 1734, and died in the fall of 1737. He was the first person buried at the Williamsburg (District, South Carolina) settlement and was also the first person buried at the Williamsburg Meeting house. He was born near Glasgow (Scotland) in 1670, moved to County Down, Ireland, in 1695, from whence he came to this country. He was a great great grandson of John Knox (1505 – 1572) and his second wife, Margaret Stuard (1548 – 1612). From his Stuard great great grandmother he drew some of the blood of ROBERT BRUCE as well as that of other Scotsmen of great strength and power – even from the Laird who became Shakespeare's Banquo's Ghost.

"WITHERSPOON IS an old Scottish name and is frequently mentioned in accounts of ancient battles. A description of the coat of arms may be found in Burke's Armory. The cross and cresents thereon indicate crusader ancestry, and the engrailed cross denotes possession of landed estates. Dr. John Witherspoon (1722 – 1794), President of Princeton, member of the Continental Congress and signer of the DECLARATION OF INDEPENDENCE, was a (grand) nephew of (Janet, the wife of) John Witherspoon (1670 – 1737), original settler in Williamsburg in 1734.

Wardlaw's Genealogy of the Witherspoon Family, published in 1910, states: "John Witherspoon, son of David, son of Rev. James Witherspoon and Lucy Welch, died of rose-in-the-leg (erysipelas) in Williamsburg township in the fall of 1737. He is the recognized head of the family and all manuscripts since R. S. Witherspoon's of 1890 speak of him as "John". He was of medium size, light complexioned and fine constitution. Eminently pious and given to prayer. He aided in building the original church near Kingstree, S. C. In the Secretary of State's office at Columbia, S. C., Book 3, page 180 shows that he was granted 50 acres of land, under date of January 12, 1734, evidently prior to his actually taking possession, or it is possible that this date should be 1735" (or 1734/5 old style.

South Carolina under the Royal Government 1719-76) by McCrady, pp. 133-5 and 444 states: "The Presbyterian Church was founded in 1734 by Rev. John Witherspoon (1670 – 1737), a native of Glasgow, Scotland, who had emigrated to County Down, Ireland in 1695, and then to Carolina in 1734, who received grants of globe lands with not only permission to enjoy the faith and worship of the Presbyterian Church, but with a positive provise and limitation that the minister occupying the premises and ministering there shall 'PROFESS, TEACH AND USE" the doctrine discipline and worship now used in the CHURCH OF SCOTLAND and subscribing the West Minister Confession of Faith as his confession'."

JOHN WITHERSPOON was born near Glasgow, Scotland, in 1670 and in 1693 he married his first cousin, Janet (J5), daughter of his father's brother, Rev. James Witherspoon (I3, b. 1640?). For the next two years they lived at Gegardie, near Glasgow, and in 1695, driven out by the religious persecutions of the Stuarts, they left Scotland and settled at Knockbracken, County Down, Ireland, where for nearly forty years "they lived in comfortable circumstances and good credit". (Wardlaw; Genealogy of Witherspoon Family, p. 7). The famous Rev. John Witherspoon, D. D., of Princeton, a signer of the Declaration of Independence, was a grandson of Rev. James Witherspoon (II, b. 1640) which made him a nephew of Janet, the wife of John Witherspoon (Wardlaw; Genealogy of the Witherspoon Family, pp. 3, 4, 26-27). The children of this marriage of John Witherspoon and Janet Witherspoon were four sons: David, James, Robert and Gavin, and three daughters, Janet, Elizabeth and Mary, who married John Fleming, William James and David Wilson, respectively (Wardlaw: Genealogy of the Witherspoon Family, , p. 8).

In 1732, William James, David Wilson, Roger Gordon, Edward Plowder, Robert Ervin, David Johnson, James Armstrong, John Scott, Adam McDonald, Archibald Hamilton, and Gavin Witherspoon, and their families, left Ireland and settled near the present town of Kingstree. These were the first permanent settlers in Williamsburg Township.

On September 17, 1734, another band of colonists set sail from Belfast for Williamsburg, These were John Witherspoon (c. 1670 – 1739), his wife, Janet (c. 1670 – 1734), his sons, David and James, his daughter, Janet and her husband, John Fleming and their families. (Wardlaw: Genealogy of the Witherspoon Family, pp. 7-8). Either with them or at the same time came James McClelland, William Sym, David Allen, William Wilson, Robert Wilson, James Bradley, Wm. Frierson, John James (brother of William), William Hamilton, John Porter, John Lemon, Robert Paisley, David Pressley, William Pressley, John Turner, Stuart and Archibald McCrae, and their families. After a stormy voyage, the Witherspoon colonists landed at Charleston about December 1, 1734; and after suffering many hardships, of which we have a vivid account written by one of the participants, they finally reached Kingstree in February 1735, only to find it a small collection of clay-chinked huts and the country a timbered wilderness infested with howling wolves and peopled by savage Indians. (Wardlaw: Genealogy of the Witherspoon Family, pp. 9-10). In the course of the voyage, Janet, wife of John Witherspoon, died on Sept. 30, 1734 and was buried at sea; and shortly after landing in Charleston, Sarah, the two year old daughter of James Witherspoon, second son of John, died and was the first person buried in the First Presbyterian (Scotch) Church-Yard there. (Wardlaw: Genealogy of the Witherspoon Family, pp. 13, 30, 40).

The other Witherspoon son, Robert, came to the colony with his second wife and two children in August, 1736 (Wardlaw: Genealogy of the Witherspoon Family, pp. 8, 11).

"One of the first cares of this pious colony (for they were mostly, if not all, members of the Presbyterian Church) was to build a house of the Lord. They were content to dwell themselves in shanties not more comfortable than potato cellars, while their labors were most especially given to the erection of a house of worship, and a manse or parsonage for their minister, according to their custom in their native land. Accordingly, in July, 1736, they petitioned the Government and Council for the grant of a tract of land on the road to the Lower Bridge about two miles from Kingstree. This grant was made in July, 1741."

By trade, John Witherspoon was a weaver, and at least one of his sons followed the same calling. He is thus described by his grandson Robert, son of James Witherspoon: "My grandfather was a man of middling or common stature, healthy constitution, of fair complexion, and somewhat bow-legged. He was well acquainted with the Scripture, had volubility in prayer, and he was a zealous adherent to the principles of what was called in his day the Reformed Protestant Church of Scotland. He had also a great aversion to Episcopacy, and whoever will impartially read the history of the times of his younger years in Scotland will see that his prejudices were not without cause. It was his lot to live in a time of great distress to the persecuted church, during the reign of James the Seventh of Scotland, and the Second of England. Being one who followed field-meetings he and some others of his kindred were much harassed by the Baptists. Yet notwithstanding, if his younger years were attended with some trouble he still enjoyed great peace and tranquility in his after life, and had the comfort and happiness of living to see his seven children all creditable married and settled for themselves." (Wardlaw: Genealogy of Witherspoon Family, pp. 12-13)

No man who has ever lived in the borders of this state (South Carolina) has sired a more distinguished posterity. In every field of worthwhile human endeavor, his descendants have been conspicuous, both in this state and other states. Soldiers, judges, lawyers, physicians, ministers and men of affairs are all represented. The splendid hero of the Revolution, Major John Jamis, who organized Marion's Brigade, was his grandson, while the famous Confederate Major-General Martin Witherspoon Gary – the "Bald Eagle of Edgefield" – who more than any other was responsible for the Hampton campaign of 1876 that ended the terrors of Reconstruction in South Carolina, was a lineal descendent. His great-grandson, William Dobim James, son of the Major, served with distinction as a boy soldier under Marion, became a chancellor of the state, and wrote a life of Marion that is one of the rarest and most valuable works ever published in connection with the history of South Carolina.

Another great-grandson, Judge John Witherspoon, descended both from the son James and the son Robert, was long the County Judge of Williamsburg District, and the grandson of this Judge, Robert Witherspoon Fulton, was for years a useful and honored member of this church. (Wardlaw: Genealogy of the Witherspoon Family, pp. 29, 30, 31, 40, 61 and 156). Chief Justice Eugene B. Gary and his brothers, Circuit Judges Ernest Gary and Frank B. Gary, and Circuit Judge I. D. Witherspoon, of South Carolina, all trace their lineage to John Witherspoon through his son James. (Wardlaw: Genealogy of the Witherspoon Family, pp. 176, 177, 200, 202).

Other distinguished judges descended from him were William Bennett Fleming, United States Senator and State Circuit Judge, Savannah, Georgia; William Stuart Fleming, Chancellor of Tennessee; William T. Gary, Circuit Judge, Augusta, Georgia; and Tim Ervin Cooper, Chief Justice of Mississippi. (Wardlaw: Genealogy of Witherspoon Family, pp. 124, 127, 159, 160, 46, 71).

The members of physicians in the family have been legend and no attempt has been made to list them. Suffice it to say that one of the most distinguished was Dr. John Ramsey Witherspoon. His father was Robert Witherspoon, the genealogist son of James, the second son of John Witherspoon.

"My grand-father (J1) and grand-mother (J5) were born in Scotland, about the year 1670. They were cousins, and both by the same family name. His name John and Her's Janet. They lived in their younger years near Glasgow; were married in 1693; and in 1695 they left Scotland and settled in Ireland, in the county of Down and Parish of Dumbo, at a place called Knockbracken, where they lived in comfortable circumstances, and in good credit until the year of 1734. He, my grand-father, then removed with his family to South Carolina."

He descended from an old family who owned lands Bridge House (Brighouse), Linlithgowshire, "as Rev. Charles Rogers says in his Memorial of John Knox, and as appears from the foregoing genealogical data, was ordained minister of Yester in 1720, was in 1744 appointed chaplain in ordinary to the King (GEORGE II, 1683 – 1760) . . . . and much revered for his piety and learning. He ministered at Gifford Parish of Yester, Haddingtonshire, from March 1720 until his death August 12, 1759". He graduated from Edinburgh University in April 1709.

He married at Gifford, Scotland, Oct. 21, 1720, Anne (1696 – 1787 or 44), 2nd daughter of Rev. Mr. David Walker (b. 1665?), minister of Temple Parish, in Midlothian, County of Edinburgh, who had m. Margaret Patterson, and he was called cousin of Walter Welsh, who descended through Rev. John Welsh of Ayr (1558 – 1622) from the Religious Reformer John Knox (1505 – 1772); this Rev. John Welsh having married the Reformer's daughter, Elizabeth (1569 – 1625). Rev. John Welsh of Ayr, had been tried for treason (was first sentenced to death), and finally condemned to be deported (for life). He was ultimately minister at Nerac, Jonzac, St. Jean d'Angly, France. "All of Ann Walker's brothers were ministers. Josias at Abdie, in Fifeshire, Archibald at Temple, Glasgow, Thomas (b. c. 1700) (d. after 1774), minister of Dundonald, (brother of Ann), published in 1774, A Vindication of the Discipline and Constitutions of the Church of Scotland, and on page 379 he claimed to be one of the descendants of John Knox.

He ministered at Yester, Haddingtonshire, until his death, August 12, 1759.

Rev. James Witherspoon and Ann Walker had four sons and two daughters.

David Walker, her father, had married Margaret Patterson, and he was called cousin of Walter Welsh, who descended through Rev. John Welsh from the Reformer, John Knox, this Rev. John Welsh having married the reformer's daughter, Elizabeth. Rev. John Welsh had been tried for treason, and finally condemned to be deported. 8. William (1730 – 1750)

She was born in Scotland in 1695, married JOHN FLEMING (1696 – 1750) Ireland and came to South Carolina, probably in 1734, and died in Williamsburg, S. C., in 1761, ae. 66. Her husband was a Presbyterian elder – one of the original elders in the old Williamsburg church.

"Robert LeFleming, the direct and immediate ancestor of the Earls of Wigton, was one of the great Barons of Scotland under King Edward I of England, 1272 – 1309, Sir Malcolm Fleming, Jr. succeeded his father as Governor of Dumbarton Castle, and was true to the Royalists. Here Sir Malcolm had the honor to protect, in that evil time, Robert, Lord High Steward of Scotland, afterwards King ROBERT II, (1371). As a reward for his fidelity to his service the King was pleased to create him Earl of Wigton. As a royal fortress residence, Dumbarton Castle was entrusted to the custody of the Fleming family for generations – from Sir Malcolm Fleming's time of the Bruces to Lord James Fleming's time of Queen Mary. We have good reason to believe that the good old Elder, JOHN FLEMING was a member of this family, though perhaps a younger son, and without title or property." 7. Ann (1741 – 29 Dec. 1788)
8. James (1743 – 1790)
9. Gavin (1747 – 18 May 1818)

He was born at Knockbracken, Parish of Drumbo, Country Down, Ireland, in 1700. He married Elizabeth McQuoid (1705 – 1777) in 1725, and moved to Gabrate, Parish of Graba, near Canningburn, Mill in County Down. He came to America in 1734, landing at Charleston, S. C., with many relatives and friends, who came over on "The Good Intent", and soon settled in Williamsburg "Township", S. C. (Land grant being dated Jan. 11, 1734) Vol. 3, page 182), where he died on Nov. 28 1768, and was buried in the family burying ground on Thorntree Creek, nine miles south of Kingstree, S. C.

Elizabeth McQuoid was born in County Down in 1705, and died in Williamsburg on Jan. 23, 1777, being interred at the Thorntree Creek graveyard (her will filed Feb. 28, 1777). Robert McQuoid, the father of Elizabeth, was born about 1642, and married Sarah Campbell; they both died in Ireland, he in 1728, aged 86, and she in 1730, about 70 years of age.

Probate Court, Book 1671 – 77, page 271, South Carolina, Craven County.

In the name of God Amen. The 30th of September, 1768.

I, JAMES WEATHERSPOON of Williamsburgh, Planter, being very sick and weak in body but of perfect mind and memory, thanks be unto God, yet calling to mind the mortality of my body, do make and ordain this my last will and testament; that is to say, principally and first I leave my soul to God, who gave it, my body I recommend to the earth to be buried in a Christian and decent like manner at the discretion of my executors – my world estate wherewith it has pleased God to bless me, I will, bequeath and dispose of in the following manner and form.

Imprimis: I will and bequeath to my son James (L9) my whole estate of lands that I am now possessed of, to him and his heirs forever, allowing him nevertheless to make good to his dear mother the privileges afterwards mentioned.

Item – I will and bequeath to Elizabeth, my dearly beloved wife, a convenient room in my dwelling house, or a convenient house in my plantation to dwell in and a sufficient quantity of land in my plantation under fence, for one negro woman to plant and attend, during her life, also forty pounds currency during her life to be paid equally by my two sons, James (L9) and Gavin (L 10), together with one third part of my stock of meat cattle and one horse and saddle, one bed and furniture and one negro woman named Hannah and her future issue, all to be wholly at her disposal.

Item – I will and bequeath to my daughter Anne (L8) and her heirs forever, one negro woman named Melcha and her issue and I leave to my granddaughter Elizabeth McKee 100 pounds currency.

Item – I will and apportion to my son Robert (L6) 500 pounds currency and to my son John (L7) ten pounds currency which I deem and it shall be deemed their full share for these my three eldest children of my estate real and personal.

Item – I will and bequeath my whole remaining personal estate to be equally shared between my two youngest sons James and Gavin, whom I appoint to pay all my lawful and just debts and legacies above specified, one year after my decease and I do hereby appoint and nominate my two youngest sons James (L9) and Gavin (L10) executors of this my last will and testament and I hereby set my hand and seal the above year written.

Proved 2 December, 1768. (K3) JAMES WITHERSPOON
(1700 – ——)

James Witherspoon was a great grandson of Rev. (James) Witherspoon, born circa 1610, who married ca. 1634 Luyse Welsh, b. 1613, daughter of Rev. John Welsh of Ayr (1558 – 1627) and his wife, Elizabeth Knox (1569 – 1625), who was the youngest daughter of Rev. John Knox (1505 – 72) and Lady Margaret Stewart (1548 – 1612) whom he married in 1564. He was a triple second cousin of Rev. Dr. John Witherspoon (1722 – 94) the "SIGNER". His daughter, Sarah (1732 – 1734) was born in Ireland in 1732, died in Charleston, S. C., a few days after her father and family landed in Dec., 1734, and hers was the first body interred in the Scotch Presbyterian churchyard, on Meeting Street, near South Tradd Street.

ROBERT WITHERSPOON (L6) writes about his father: My fathers' name was James (K3) the third child and 2nd son of my grandparents. He was born in the year 1700 – lived with his parents at Dumbo, county of Down Ireland, until he was 25 when he married my mother, whose name was Elizabeth McQuoid, in her 20th year. My father and mother settled in the Parish of Grobah, near the Canningburn Mill, where they lived about 9 years and sold their possessions in order to embark for America. My father brought his family to my Grand-fathers at Knockbracken, about the first of May, 1734, and left us there until the first of September. In the meantime he wrought at the reed making business.

He brought us four children aboard ship, Vis. — David, Robert, John and Sarah. Sarah died in Charleston, S. C. shortly after we landed, and was the first person buried in the Scotch Meeting House Yard.

As before stated it was February first when we came to a place called the Bluff, 3 miles below Kingstree. My mother and her children were still in expectation of coming to an agreeable place, but when we arrived and saw nothing but wilderness, and instead of a comfortable house no other than one of dirt, our hearts sank. My father gave us as much comfort as he could, telling us that we would get all the trees cut down, and in a short time there would be plenty of inhabitants, and that we would be able to see from house to house.

While we were here the fire went out which we had brought from Boggy Swamp. My father had heard that up the river swamp was the Kingstree, although there was no path, no did he know the distance. He followed up the meanderings of the swamp until he came to a branch and by that means found Roger Gerdu's place. We watched him as far as the trees would let us see, and returned to our delirious hut, expecting never to see him or any other human being. But after some time he returned with fire and we were somewhat comforted. When evening came on the wolves began to howl on all sides. We then feared of being devoured by wild beasts. We had neither gun nor dog, not even a door to our house.

However, we set to gather fuel and made a huge fire and so we passed the first night. The next morning being clear and moderate, we begun to stir about, by mid-day there arouse a cloud southwest, attended by high rains, lightning and thunder. The rain quickly penetrated through the poles of our hut, and brought down the sand with which it was covered and which seemed for a time too almost cover us alive. The claps and lightening were very awful and lasted for a good space of time. I believe we all sincerely wished to be again in Belfast. But soon the fright was over as it cleared up and became warm and comfortable.

The boat that brought up our goods arrived safely at Kingstree. People were much oppressed in bringing away their articles, as there was no houses near, they were obliged to toil hard and carry on their backs all belongings, such as clothing, beds, chests, provisions, tools, pots, bowls and other necessities; at that time there were no roads or paths, everyone had to travel the best they could, which was near double the distance for some, for they had to follow swamps and branches as their guides at first. After some time the men acquired such knowledge of the woods as to blaze paths, soon they learned to follow blazes from place to place.

Another circumstance which gave us much alarm was the Indians when they came to hunt in the spring, they came in great numbers, like Egyptians locusts, but they were not harmful. We had a great deal of trouble and hardships in our first settlement, but the few inhabitants were favored with health and strength. We were also much oppressed with fear of divers and other accounts, especially so, of being at some time or other massacred by the Indians, or being bitten by snakes, or torn by wild beasts or being lost and perish in the woods, of whom there were three persons never found.

The following is taken from the brochure of the Williamsburg County Historical Society of Kingstree, S. C., dated Mar. 18, 1967.

THORNTREE, the plantation home of James Witherspoon (1700 – 1768), was built in 1749 in Williamsburgh Township, South Carolina, about six miles south of the King's Tree.

The Williamsburg County Historical Society, recently organized by a group of interested persons of the county, has undertaken Thorntree as a restoration project. The society plans to relocate this early architectural structure within the city limits of Kingstree in order to provide police and fire protection. It is the desire of the society to preserve and completely restore this dwelling for future generations as well as for the present.

Mr. Meyric Rogers, Esquire, nationally known museum curator, says the following concerning Thorntree: ". . . in architectural structure it is a RARITY . . . built on the English style . . . with a great hall and memory work cornices and mantels . . . this house is in first state condition and needs few minor repairs. . . it is amazing that the majority of the pine interior has even escaped paint . . . and it will be an irreplaceable loss if this dwelling is not preserved for posterity . . . for probably there is not another house of its type, unless along the James River in Virginia."

As of 1730, sixty years after the settlement of Charles Town, the Province of South Carolina consisted of a thin strip of land along the coast from Georgetown to Beaufort. In order to extend the settled areas and to increase the white population, Governor Robert Johnson, one of the ablest of the colonial governors, devised the township plan whereby north Europeans were induced by bounties and generous land grants to migrate to South Carolina. The most successful of Johnson's eleven townships was Williamsburg, which was developed in the 1730's by Scotch-Irish who came directly from Northern Ireland. Cattle raising, the planting of hemp, flax indigo, and corn were among some of the prosperous industries of the early settlement period of this township. "In making grants of land, the king had reserved for his own use all the white pine trees." An explorer of the king, possibly searching for a settlement, discovered the majestic white pine, for which the town was named – the King's Tree, growing on the east bank of the Wee Nee, the name given by the Indians of this section to Black River.

James Witherspoon, the builder of Thorntree, immigrated to Carolina in 1734, landing at Charles Town with many relatives and friends, who came over on the "Good Intent." They soon settled in Williamsburgh Township. His land grant of three hundred acres on Black River was certified on January 11, 1735, James Witherspoon, the son of John and Janet Witherspoon, was born at Knockbracken, County Down, Ireland in 1700. This Witherspoon Family is directly descended from Robert Bruce, the great Scotch king, and John Knox, the great Scotch reformer.

In 1725 James Witherspoon married Elizabeth McQuoid, and the following children lived to maturity: Robert, John, Ann, James, and Gavin. In 1780 Robert Witherspoon, their son, recorded the early records of the family and related families in what is known today as the "Witherspoon Family Chronicle." The following is chronicled concerning James Witherspoon's arrival to Williamsburgh Township: " . . . it was the 1st of Feb. (1735) when we came to the Bluff. My mother and us children were still in expectation that we were coming to an agreeable place, but when we arrived and saw nothing but a wilderness and instead of a fine timbered house, nothing but a very mean dirt house, our spirits quite sunk . . . Father had heard that up the river swamp was the King's Tree . . . I remember that amongst the first thing my father brought from the boat was his gun, which was one of Queen Anns muskets . . . The family lived at the Bluff until March 1749, my father moved his family to Thorntree. . . he died in November of 1768."

Concerning Thorntree, the "Will of James Witherspoon", dated September 13, 1768, reveals the following: " I will and bequeath to Elizabeth my Dearly beloved wife, a Convenient Room in my dwelling house . . . ."

The "Inventory and Appraisement of the Estate of James Witherspoon" dated January 20, 1769, indicates that he was a man of considerable means during his day. His "Parcel of Books" were appraised at sixty-three pounds.

James Witherspoon was buried in what is known today as the Witherspoon Family Cemetery on Thorntree Creek about one mile from his home. Many of the graves in this cemetery are marked with large stones which were native to Williamsburgh. The inscriptions of stones are now obliterated. There are eight stones of a different type which still bear the inscriptions. One of these is the marker of Robert Witherspoon, who wrote the "Witherspoon Family Chronicle."

Thorntree later became the home of Gavin Witherspoon, the son of James and Elizabeth Witherspoon. During the Revolution, Tarleton with one hundred British dragoons, and a large number of Tories under Co. Elias Ball, encamped at the plantation (Thorntree) of Gavin Witherspoon, south of the lower bridge, on Black River, early in August, 1780. Gavin married first, Ester Jane Witherspoon, his first cousin; and second, Ann Witherspoon, also his cousin. Of the sixteen children of these two unions, only eight lived to maturity. The "Will of Gavin Witherspoon," dated January 30, 1816, and recorded deeds, indicate the following heirs of his estate: Samuel Witherspoon, his son of Green County, Ala.; Elizabeth W. Montgomery, his daughter of Williamsburgh District; Thomas Reese Witherspoon, his son of Sumter District; Thomas Sydenham Witherspoon, his grandson of Greene County, Ala.; Mary Ann W. Reese, his daughter of Anderson District; and Dr. James Minto Witherspoon and Robert Franklin Witherspoon, his grandsons of Tuscaloosa and Greene Counties, Ala. Deeds recorded in the Williamsburg County Court House disclose that all of the above heirs sold their part of the Thorntree Plantation, containing eight hundred acres, to John A. Gordon of Williamsburgh District.

Among the distinguished descendants of James Witherspoon, the builder of Thorntree, are the following: SOUTH CAROLINA: Congressman Robert Witherspoon (1767 – 1837) of Sumter District; James Hervey Witherspoon, Lieutenant Governor of South Carolina, 1826; Isaac Donnom Witherspoon, Lieutenant Governor of South Carolina, 1842; Nancy W. Witherspoon, wife of the Rev. James H. Thornwell, President of the South Carolina College; Mary Ann Witherspoon, wife of Dr. Joseph J. Wardlaw of Abbeville; Lucy Barron, wife of NARCISO G. GONZALES, founder of the State newspaper; Mary Ann Witherspoon, wife of Dr. Thomas R. Gary of Abbeville; MARTIN WITHERSPOON GARY, "the Bald Eagle of Edgefield"; JOHN GARY EVANS, Governor of South Carolina, 1894; and Thermutis Ann Montgomery, wife of George Cooper of Williamsburgh District. ALABAMA: Dr. John R. Witherspoon of Greensboro; Elizabeth I. Witherspoon, wife of the Hon. Henry Goldthwaite of Mobile; Thomas Franklin Witherspoon of Greensboro; the Rev. Andrew Jackson Witherspoon of Marengo County, and of New Orleans, La.; and Francis L. Witherspoon, wife of Gen. George P. Harrison of Opelika. MISSISSIPPI: James Van Tromp Witherspoon of Lowndes County; Louise V. Witherspoon, wife of Alexander Sydenham Frierson of Columbus; and James Prioleau Witherspoon. TENNESSEE: Dr. John W. S. Frierson of Memphis and Columbia; and Walter Witherspoon of Gallatin. FLORIDA: Robert M. Witherspoon of Madison County; TEXAS: George Frierson of Gainesville.

THE DEDICATION OF THORNTREE HOUSE LOCATED IN FLUITT-NELSON MEMORIAL PARK IN KINGSTREE, S. C., WAS HELD ON FRI. APR. 2, 1971.

She was born in Ireland in 1703 and died in South Carolina in 1750. She married William JAMES (1701 – 1750) in Ireland and came to South Carolina in 1732, two years before her father. Her husband, William James, son of John James, Captain of Dragoons, was born in Wales about 1701. His father left Wales in consequence of a difficulty with his sovereign about a mill pond and fish, moved to Ireland, where he was a soldier under King (1689 – 1703) WILLIAM III (1650 – 1702) of England in his wars in Ireland against King JAMES II of England. WILLIAM JAMES (1701 – 1750) came to Williamsburg in 1732 with his brother John, a ruling elder, and others. (See Wallace's History, page 19). He had large herds of cattle in the swamps near Kingstree. Was one of the earliest settlers on Black River and was instrumental in having WILLIAMSBURG named in honor of WILLIAM III, King of England 1689 – 1702, and formerly Prince of Orange. He was a ruling Elder in the old Williamsburg church, and man of prominence in his section. He died Nov. 5, 1750.

He was born in Ireland in 1705 and died in S. C., in 1758. He married first, 1732, in Ireland, Mary Stuart, who died December 24, 1735 in Ireland. She was the daughter of Archibald Stewart.

He came to America in August 1736 on board "The Newbuilt". In his will dated 8 March, 1758 (Probate Court, Charleston, S. C., Wills 1757 -60, page 165) he leaves: – John, eldest son, and Mary, eldest daughter, 450 pounds each, and legacy from their grandfather, Archibald Stewart, in Ireland. To the five youngest children, David, James, Robert, Esther Jane and Jannett, 20 pounds, sterling each and remaining personal estate shared equally. "He left Ireland, June 6, 1736, and arrived in South Carolina Aug. 23, 1736. He settled in Williamsburg "Township" (now County.")

Robert, with his second wife and two children, Mary and John, arrived here near the last of August, 1736. At that time our second crop had been planted and was coming forward, but the season being very warm and they were much fatigued, many were taken sick with ague and fever, some died and some became dropsical and also died. About this time, Sept. 1736, people began to form into religious society, built a church and sent to Ireland for a minister, one came named Robert Herron, who stayed only three years and returned to Ireland.

He was born in Ireland in 1712, came to South Carolina with the first contingent of relatives and friends in 1732. He married first in South Carolina, Janet Wilson, his first cousin, a daughter of his aunt, Jane Witherspoon, her husband William Wilson. She died without issue. He then married Jean, a daughter of John JAMES, of Ox Swamp, a brother of William James (1701 – 1750) who married his sister, Elizabeth Witherspoon, Jean's father, John James, was a Ruling Elder. She died in 1774. Gavin's land grant is dated Feb. 16, 1733, Vol. 3 page 206. He was a Ruling Elder.

"Uncle Gavin Witherspoon and I went out and wrought at the weaving business until the following September. I went next to overseeing for Mr. Fleming near Black River Church, 25 miles below Kingstree, where I remained until January 1752, and then returned to my father's. The reason of my return was that it had pleased God in the last awful epidemic that prevailed in Williamsburg in the years of 1740 and 1750, usually called the great mortality, and which had carried off near 80 persons, many of them the principal people or heads of families, to remove by death also my older brother David and my sister Jane, both in the year 1850. My father then being in a very feeble and infirm state of health, and unable to attend his own business, I left my own business to take care of his." Quoting from the letter of Robert Witherspoon (L6).

An interesting paragraph from MEDIA RESEARCH BUREAU, D. C., on the "The Name and Family of Witherspoon":

"About 1741 another John Witherspoon came from Ireland to York, Maine, whence he soon removed to Chester, N. H. . He was the father of Daniel of Francestown, N. H., Alexander or Freeport, James of Maine, David of Chester, John of Newbury, Vt., Robert of Cabot, Vt., and Mary."

"LIFE & WORK", the Church of Scotland Magazine, April 1907, in an article entitled "Twelve Scottish Churchmen, IV. JOHN WITHERSPOON, by the Rev. N. J. Witherspoon, states:

"It has been remarked with compliment not free from ambiguity, that its clergy have had much to do with 'making Scotland what it is' but only one or two of them have made history elsewhere. Of this, KNOX has left his mark deep in England in the division between the Anglican and Puritan, and JOHN WITHERSPOON upon the map of the world in the separation of the American Colonies from the mother country – an event for which scarcely any other had more responsibility.

Witherspoon was born in the Manse of Yester in 1722. His father, James (1691 – 1759), Minister of Yester, and one of GEORGE II's (1727-60) Chaplains for Scotland, of a family who are described as having long possessed considerable landed property, and which claimed direct descent from KNOX by Elizabeth Knox's marriage with John Welsh (of Ayr), is said by Carlyle of Inveresk to have been stout and indolent, but well versed in foreign theology; and by others to have been eminent for piety, learning and fidelity. His mother was Anne Walker (1696 – 1787) or ('44-Collins), daughter of the Minister of Temple (Rev. David Walker, b. ca. 1665). He received his earlier education at Haddington, but was forbidden to learn dancing. When fourteen, he matriculated at Edinburg, distinguished himself as a student, and in the Societies which them as now flourished there. Carlyle, his fellow student, disliked him, and called him "close , suspicious and jealous", but Carlyle disliked many people, including all who opposed Moderatism. He admits Witherspoon's strong and enlightened understanding."

Licensed in 1743, after two years' probation then sensibly required, Witherspoon was presented to Beith in 1745, and was settled without opposition — which in that year of grace was itself testimony to his acceptability; for the right of patronage, revived in 1712, was then being gradually enforced, and each exercise of it was at hazard of resistance. His ministrations, there were interrupted almost as soon as begun by an incident connected with the Jacobite Rebellion. The local tradition is that he led certain volunteers of his parishioners to assist the Hanoverian army pursued (Bonnie) Prince Charlie (1720-88) in his retreat, but that on reaching Falkirk Jan. 17, 1746, his beadle alone remained faithful - in testimony whereof the minister's sword, a stout Andrea Ferrara, is preserved by the beadle's descendants. Witherspoon, with others, was made prisoner by the Highlanders, and confined in Doune Castle. The others escaped by an outlet too narrow for Witherspoon, who inherited something of his father's bulk, and he remained a prisoner until the Jacobites evacuated the place.

During his twelve years' ministry at Beith, the Moderate party was rapidly assuming the ascendancy in the Church. The attempt to revive the convenanting spirit and methods under the leadership of the Erskines had ended in their secession; but resistance to settlements under patronage went on. In more than one Presbytery the majority declined active obedience to the injunctions of the higher courts when the institution of unacceptable presentees was in question; and the discipline of the Church was in danger of collapse. Among the younger clergy an opposite temper was developing — that of impatient with what they regarded as reactionary fanaticism and lawlessness. The "Moderate" party took shape under the leadership of men like Robertson, Blair, and Home, and set itself to the enforcement of discipline over recalcitrant Presbyterians; and in 1751 Gillespie was deposed for "repeated acts of disobedience".

Witherspoon's sympathies were with the popular resitance to patronage and with the evangelical theology of the "High" party. When the Assembly of 1753 refused to repone Gillespie, he published an anonymous pamphlet, Ecclesiastical Characteristics, "expounding a plain and easy way of attaining to the character of a Moderate man as at present in repute in the Church of Scotland, and giving the maxims upon which Moderate men conduct themselves," such as that "ecclesiastical persons . . . . suspected of heresy are to be esteemed men of great genius"; men of loose practice are to be screened and faults regarded as good humoured vices; the Moderate man must always speak of the Confession of Faith with a sneer he must preach mainly on 'social duties', quote little Scripture, and be very unacceptable to the common people — and so on.

The satire was pungent, and created something like a frenzy of anger, Moderates were clear that only a man with a bad heart could be its author. In 1757 a call to Witherspoon from Laigh Kirk of Paisley gave them their opportunity, and the Presbyery of Paisley, predominantly Moderate, refused to transmit the call. They were overruled by the Synod, but the incident was significant.

About this time he published his treatises on Justification and Regneration, by which in Scotland he is best remembered. They had wide circulation elsewhere, and kept their authority as standards till recent days. At Paisley he published apropos of the "Douglas" controversy, a Serious Inquiry Into the Nature and Effects of the Stage, which did not increase his popularity with the friends of John Home. In 1760 we find him delivering in the Assembly "one of his cutting speeches" in the Kilconquhar settlement case; but, hopelessly in the minority, he was "merely biting a file." Too pronounced in his views and too trenchant in his advocacy of them to be the successful leader of a party, he was undoubtedly the strongest man among the "high" opponents of Moderatism: and if he had stuck to the contest the latter might not have obtained the absolute control which for the next generation or two it exercised in the Church.

When in 1766 he was invited to accept the Presidency of Princeton College in New Jersey, he was well inclined to the proposal. His activity in the Society for the Propagation of the Gospel had already interested him in the Colonies, and he may have had family connections there – there are Virginian Witherspoons of an earlier emigration whom we find him afterwards visiting. In 1768 he sailed for America.

It would be beyond the scope of this paper to follow him into the manifold activities of that new sphere – his enormous labors to organize the instruction and finance of his college and to direct the affairs of Presbyterianism in America, of which he seems at once to have assumed an acknowledged leadership. In America he is best known as one of the group of statesmen who resisted the measures of GEORGE III's government (1760 – 1820), accepted the appeal to arms, and carried the struggle for independence to success. He was the only clergyman in the Continental Congress, and perhaps the most resolute for decisive measures. When the DECLARATION OF INDEPENDENCE had been voted for and lay unsigned before the Congress, every man reluctant to take the irrevocable step of subscribing, it was his appeal that moved the members to Action.

In PHILADELPHIA on the morning of July 4, 1776, all was not well in the white-paneled State House room where the Second Continental Congress was convened. Two days earlier, the congress had formally declared the American colonies to be independent of Great Britain. Now, after a short recess, many delegates were not sure they had acted wisely. There was still time to rescind the the action, and some were in favor of doing so.

Hesitancy and uncertainty were reflected in their faces as they listed to young Thomas Jefferson read the paper he had been commissioned to write. It was entitled, "DECLARATION OF INDEPENDENCE", and was easily the most inflammatory document ever produced in the American colonies. Approving it meant risking personal necks as well as personal property and every congressman knew it!

"It goes too far," some said.

"The wrath of the whole British army will fall on us if we approve this paper," others asserted.

"The colonies are too young to leave home," still another group argued. "Even if we could gain independence, we couldn't stand alone."

It soon became evident that the congress was in no mood to approve the declaration as written. Compromise seemed to be the only alternative to outright rejection of the document.

Then a tall, heavyset man in his middle fifties arose to speak. He was dressed in the black cloth of the clergy and had a dignified bearing that commanded attention.

"Dr. John Witherspoon, delegate from New Jersey, has the floor," announced President John Hancock. Immediately the room was quiet, all eyes focused on the speaker.

"There is a tide in the affairs of men, a nick of time," Witherspoon said, speaking slowly as if to emphasize every word. "We perceive it now before us. To hesitate is to consent to our own slavery. That noble instrument upon your table, which insures immortality to its author, should be subscribed this very morning by every pen in this house. He that will not respond to its accents and strain every nerve to carry into effect its provisions is unworthy the name of freeman."

He paused a moment, his eyes sweeping the tense faces before him.

"For my own part," he continued, "of property I have some, of reputation more. That reputation is staked, that property is pledged on the issues of this contest, and although these gray hairs must soon descend into the sepulcher, I would infinitely rather that they descend thither by the hand of the executioner than desert at this crisis the sacred cause of my country."

For a moment the hush of the little assembly was intense. Then the delegates leaped to their feet with shouts of decision. Hesitation had vanished! The course of America was set! Later, the Declaration of Independence was inscribed on suitable and more lasting material, with every delegate signing it.

John Witherspoon had been in America for only eight years. Born in 1722 in the Presbyterian parish of Yester, near Edinburgh, Scotland – a parish of which his father was minister – he was educated at the University of Edinburgh. At the age of 22, he took charge of his first parish. He climbed rapidly in ecclesiastical ranks until he was one of the foremost clergymen of the day, widely known on both sides of the Atlantic.

In 1768, after more than two decades of church leadership in Scotland, Witherspoon accepted the presidency of the College of New Jersey at Princeton.

Upon arriving, he set about enlarging the curriculum and improving facilities. Through his own brilliant example as a lecturer on elocution, history, philosophy and divinity, he encouraged methods of instruction far more stimulating than those formerly in vogue. His fame as a divine and soon as a patriot and statesman added to the reputation of the college and attracted to it many of the brightest and noblest of American youths.

Frederick Frelinghuysen of the class of 1770, afterwards a United States senator, voiced the spirit of Witherspoon's Princeton. "I have learned patriotism in Princeton as well as Greek," he said at his graduation.

Records show that at least 100 of Witherspoon's students became prominent leaders in the American Revolution and the postwar formative years of the young republic. One – James Madison, was President of the United States for two terms; one became vice president. Six were members of the Continental Congress; 43 were elected to the United States Congress. Thirteen became governors of states when there were scarcely more than 13 states in the Union.

Three were seated on the bench of the U. S. Supreme Court. Twenty served as officers in the Continental Army under Washington. Fifteen became college presidents in a day when colleges were few and far between.

Witherspoon's activities knew no bounds. By articles published on both sides of the Atlantic, by letters to friends in England and Scotland, and by every means at his command, the clergyman declared the rights of America.

After his part in the Declaration of Independence became known, Witherspoon's life was in constant danger from Tories and British alike. Several times he narrowly escaped capture.

Once when British troops captured another clergyman whom they mistook for Witherspoon, they boasted that they had gotten rid of their worse enemy.

Meanwhile, in the Continental Congress Witherspoon worked feverishly. He appeared on more committees than any other member. "The chief duty of a congressman is not to talk, but to work," he often declared.

He was a member of the secret committee negotiating with France for aid. He was on the board of war, the finance committee and the committee to procure supplies for the army. It was largely through his efforts that Washington's troops were supplied after the gruesome winter at Valley Forge.

Early in the war he urged an immediate confederation of the colonies. Looking into the future, he said, "It is not impossible that in future times all the states in one quarter of the globe may see it proper by some plan of union to perpetuate security and peace; and sure I am, a well-planned confederacy among the states of America may hand down the blessings of peace and public order to many generations."

After the war, Witherspoon refused re-election to Congress and retired to his home at Princeton. Always a minister and educator first, he felt that more time should be devoted to his calling. But his cousel to Congress and to the young republic continued until his death in 1794.

Two monuments stand today in Witherspoon's honor. One is in Washington, D. C., and the other is in Fairmount Park, Philadelphia. On both are inscribed the immortal words of his nick-of-time speech.

But his speech and even he himself have been all but forgotten in the swift on rush of events. And most Americans go on celebrating the Fourth of July unaware of the real hero on that day in 1776.

Copied for the WAR CRY for JUNE 28, 1969

The Declaration was signed and the Colonies finally and forever committed to Independence. His two sons joined the Continental Army. Until the end of the war he is one of three or four on whom its conduct ultimately rested.

We find him opposing conference for compromise, serving in every Committee of Congress, receiving Washington's thanks for maintenance of supplies, succeeding Franklin on the "Secret Committee", sent to confer with Washington as to the campaign, escaping from Princeton while another clergyman is bayoneted in mistake for him, burned in effigy at Staten Island along with Washington, Lee, and Putnam, by the Birtish troops; pressing in Congress for the permanent confederation of the Thirteen Colonies into United States, proposing the first American tariff — little done without him.

His clerical office exposed him to rancor on the part of the Loyalists which others escaped, and there were not wanting those who laid on him the chief onus of revolt. "Our Cousin America," says Horace Walpole, "has run off with a Presbyterian parson!" He had much to do with the settlement of the terms of peace and with the subsequent reorganization of public life in America — a task in which he discovered an appreciation of the principles of authority and a dread of demagogism, of which his earlier days show, perhaps too little. He died on 15th November 1794, "full of years and full of honour".

In "American Biography of the Signers to the Declaration of Independence", 1823, edited by Robert Waln, Jr. (1794 – 1825) and John Sanderson (1783 – 1844), there is an article on "JOHN WITHERSPOON, 1723 – 1794" which says:

"He was lineally descended from the reverend John Knox (1505 –72), the hero of the reformation in Scotland, whose daughter, Elizabeth (1569 – 1625), married the celebrated John Welsh (1558 – 1622), a minister who rivaled his father-in-law in genius, piety, and zeal; in this line, Dr. Witherspoon descended from his honourable ancestry. His father (James) was a clergyman in the church of Scotland, and minister of the parish of Yester. His piety, learning, and many able qualifications contributed, in great degree, to form the mind of his son in the mould of virtue, and inculcate the taste, simplicity, and literary accuracy for which he was so deservedly distinguished. Dr. Witherspoon always expressed a high sense of his parent's goodness, particularly with regard to the pains which he took in his education for the gospel ministry." "On the 19th of November, 1766, the trustees of the College of New Jersey unanimously elected Dr. Witherspoon to the office of president, and transmitted a letter to Richard Stocton, Esq., a member of the board, then in London, requesting him by personal application to solicit a compliance with the wishes of the trustees." "On the first of October, 1767, a letter from Dr. Witherspoon was communicated to the trustees in which he declined an acceptance of the presidentship of the college." "On October 1767 the ninth Mr. Stocton informed the board of trustees that difficulties which had prevented Dr. Witherspoon acceptance of the presidentship (the reluctance of Mrs. Witherspoon to leave her native country) were now removed; and that, upon a re-election, he would consider it a duty to enter into that public service. This intelligence was received with peculiar satisfaction, and he was immediately and unanimously re-elected. "Dr. Witherspoon arrived with his family in Princeton in August 1768, and on the seventeenth of that month was inaugurated at a special meeting of the board of trustees." (From Vol. 5, page 102).

On page 377, Vol. 5, the following has been translated from latin: "Beneath this marble, lie interred, the mortal remains of JOHN WITHERSPOON, D. D., a venerable and beloved President of the College of New Jersey. He was born in the Parish of Yester, in Scotland, on the 5th day of February, 1722, O. S., and liberally educated in the University of Edinburg; invested with Holy Orders, in the year 1743, he faithfully performed the duties of his Pastoral charge, during five and twenty years, first at Beith, and afterwards at Paisley.

Elected President of Nassau Hall, he assumed the duties of that office on the 13th day of August, 1768, with the elevated expectations of the public. Excelling in every mental gift, he was a man of pre-eminent piety and virtue, and deeply versed in the various branches of literature and the liberal arts. A grave and solemn preacher, his sermons abound in the most excellent doctrines and precepts for the conduct of life, and in the most lucid expositions of the Sacred Scriptures.

Affable, pleasant, and courteous in familiar conversation, he was eminently distinguished in the concerns and deliberations of the Church, and endowed with the greatest prudence, in the management and instruction of youth.

He exalted the reputation of the college amongst foreigners, and greatly promoted the advancement of its literary character and taste. He was, for a long time, conspicuous among the most brilliant luminaries of learning, and of the Church. At length universally venerated, beloved, and lamented, he departed this life on the 15th of November 1794, aged 73 years."

His grave is with those of the other Presidents of Princeton, in Princeton Cemetery.

THE NEW YORK DAILY TRIBUNE of May 20, 1909, publishes the following: "Witherspoon Statue. Memorial to signer of Declaration of Independence to be Unveiled Today. Washington, D. C., May 19.

"England and America will join hands tomorrow in honoring the memory of Scotchman, Dr. John Witherspoon, who was one of the signers of the Declaration of Independence. A bronze statue erected at the intersection of Connecticut Avenue, 18th and N. streets, in front of the Church of the Covenant — the church of his faith — just southeast of the British Embassy and almost opposite Senator Depew's house, attests the high regard held for the only clergyman whose name is attached to America's most precious archive.

The statue will be unveiled by William Banks Witherspoon, a direct descendant of John Witherspoon and son of Professor Witherspoon of the Agricultural College of North Carolina. The invocation will be pronounced by the Rev. Dr. Jere Witherspoon, Richmond, Va., also a descendant pronounced by the Rev. David Walker Woods, Jr. of Gettysburg, Pennsylvania, a descendant and the author of The Life of Witherspoon. Dr. Woodrow Wilson, successor of John Witherspoon as president of Princeton College, will deliver the principle oration; the British Ambassador will deliver an address upon "Scotland's Contribution to America," and Commissioner Macfarland, secretary of the WITHERSPOON MEMORIAL ASSOCIATION, will present the statue to the citizens of Washington.

William Couper, who made the Longfellow statue recently unveiled in Washington, designed the Witherspoon statue, which shows a tall man of erect pose and striking face, wearing the garb of a clergyman of the Revolutionary period and holding a book in his hand. Seventeen well known men and women subscribed $1000. each for the statue and Congress appropriated $4000. for a pedestal and gave the site. Among the New York subscribers to the monument were Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Carnegie, Mr. and Mrs. John E. Parsons, Morris K. Jessup and John S. Kennedy, the late Rev. Teunis S. Hamlin, for many years pastor of the Church of the Covenant, one of the leading Presbyterian churches in Washington, has the honor of having originated this movement of commendable patriotic purpose. It is fitting, therefore, that the site of the statue should have been selected in a triangle directly in front of the Church of the Covenant.

John W. Foster, formerly Secretary of State, is chairman of the memorial association and E. Southard Parker is treasurer. The trustees are Andrew Carnegie, John Wanamaker, Senator Elkins, Representative McKinley and Mrs. Stanley Mathews, widow of Associate Justice Matthews, of the United States Supreme Court.

He was the moderator of the first General Assembly, which was held in Philadelphia in 1789, a few weeks after the Constitution orator, John Witherspoon's speech had much influence in favor of the adoption of the great Declaration of July 4, 1776.

John Witherspoon was born in Scotland in 1722, and after a notable career in his native land, came to America at the request of Rev. Charles Beattie, a trustee of Princeton. The college, which had been in existence twenty years and had experienced many difficulties in its struggle for a place in the list of ranking institutions of the country of which there were only three at that time, HARVARD, WILLIAM AND MARY, AND YALE – began life anew. The first year after Witherspoon was elevated to the presidence the number of students reached 120, a large increase over its former enrollment. Three years after Witherspoon assumed the presidence a future President of the United States was enrolled a student – JAMES MADISON. Madison later became private secretary to Witherspoon, of whom he said that "his character was at once strong and gentle, and although he was the most dignified of men, with a formal and stately manner, he was considerate and kind and won the personal attachment of the students."

One of the notable occurences in Witherspoon's career happened after the Revolutionary War, then, after failing in his endeavor to bring about the adoption of the articles of confederation, he advocated a "MORE PERFECT UNION" and impressed his views upon James Madison, the chief framer of the Constitution of the United States. All American citizens are familiar with this phrase.

'The tie that binds' is closely associated with the duty performed by this Scotch clergyman for his adopted country, and tomorrow a final tribute will be paid to the memory of John Witherspoon, who on November 15, 1794, "retired to his eternal rest, full of honor and full of days."

The Right Honorable JAMES BRYCE, the Ambassador of Great Britain, in his address at the unveiling ceremonies of the statue of JOHN WITHERSPOON, on May 20, 1909, said (in part):

"Dr. Witherspoon was a remarkable man in all his three characters of Pastor, Politician and College President. Of none of these three sides of his career am I asked to speak, but only of him as a type and representative of the race to which he belonged and the part which that race has played in the annals of your Republic. 'All I need to say therefore, about Witherspoon's career is that he was a true descendant of those formidable fellows, the Scottish Reformers of the 16th century, men who wrought more by their voice, than their pen than others were able to effect by their swords, and who more than any other people may be said to have created the modern Scottish nation. Whether or no Witherspoon had any of the blood of John Knox in his veins he deserves to have had it. He was strong, self-reliant, courageous, filled with the spirit of the Covenators of Drumclog and Bothwell Bridge, a man who would have at all times declared his independence of everything and eve- -ody and who both by his learning and h. ce of character is wort' emem- -' by one of your greatest Universities as the most striking figure in its earlier annals." 'Of this Scottish and Scots Irish race the distinguished man whose statue you are setting up today is a worthy representative. He was an accomplished scholar and teacher, eloquent in the pulpit and wise in the Council Chamber, fearless and resolute, and able to inspire others with his own resolution, displaying on the soil of this new Continent the qualities which had won its greatness and its fame for the country whence he came, a country of which we may say, as in Homer. Ulysses of his own isle, "Rough is it and small, but it is a nurse of strong men!"

He began his stewardship of Princeton in 1768, a year when the air was full of the British-American discussion, promptly turning his back on his native land and becoming one of the most eloquent champions of the American cause – afterward a member of the First Continental Congress and signer of the Delcaration of Independence. Nor in those pre-Revolutionary days did Dr. Witherspoon make any attempt to separate religion from politics; his sermons were frequently tirades against British pretension and incitements to rebellion. This required courage, for the royal governor of New Jersey, from 1763 to the Revolution, was William Franklin, Benjamin's son, a Tory of the Tories, always on the alert to crush sedition. Yet Witherspoon did not hesitate, in his commencement exhortations, with the governor sitting officially on the platform, to denounce King George and his abettors. And the president had educational ideas new to men in his position. He was fond of history and literature; at this early stage he introduced English as a common study, and insisted on writing and public speaking as essential items in undergraduate life.

The Address of WOODROW WILSON, LL. D., President of Princeton University on May 20, 1909, was in part as follows:

Mr. Foster, ladies and gentlemen; It is my interesting task this afternoon to try to recall for you the man whose memory we celebrate. Fortunately it is not difficult to recall John Witherspoon. He made so strong and definite an impression upon his own generation that there are abundant records which display to us his qualities, his person, and his achievements. The story of his life — viewing it in the bulk, is a very simple one. He was forty-six when he came to America in 1768, and he had by that time become the leader of the orthodox party in the Church of Scotland. I dare say that the leaders of the other party, which was known as the Moderate party, were not unwilling to see him depart for America, because he had made their lives very uneasy, not only by worsting them in argument, but also by penetration their armor with a touch of with which went to the quick very much more than the solid point of his argument. No party, particularly no ecclesiastical party, can afford to be made ridiculous, and Dr. Witherspoon had the gift of making those who opposed him ridiculous, not with the broad laughter of a more southern race, but with the quiet, significant, dismaying smile which precedes the chuckle of a Scotchman. I say that they were probably now unwilling to see him depart for America, and America was most willing to receive this redoubtable champion of an orthodox people, because he had established in Scotland a fame as a writer and a preacher which bespoke in him something more than the mere minister of the Gospel, be spoke in him the qualities of the statesman, of the man whose gift it is to lead, no matter what the sphere of leadership may be which he attempts.

When he came to America he reorganized the course of study and revivified the whole administration of the college of New Jersey at Princeton: but he did more, as had been expected. It was only eight years before the signing of the Declaration of Independence. Affairs were gathering for a very significant period of history. He was almost immediately sent to the Legislature of New Jersey, the Colonial Assembly, and he was presently sent to the Convention which framed the first constitution of the State. Just before the signing of the Declaration of Independence he was made a delegate to the Continental Congress, and added his voice to those councils which brought about the promulgation of the great epoch-making document.

Then more important still, he, more assidously than any other member continued to lend his counsel to the proceedings of the Continental Congress throughout the Revolutionary War; and no man in it represented so consistently as he did the wise counsel which was necessary to sustain that difficult and sometimes discouraging contest. He, more than any other man in the Continental Congress, urged the maintainance of such measures as Washington felt to be indispensable for the support of his armies and the success of the cause. It was as if Washington himself spoke in council for the things which Washington in the field needed, when John Witherspoon stood upon his feet in the Continental Congress. One of the most interesting things about Dr. Witherspoon was that he no sooner landed on this side of the water than he made the interesting discovery that he was an America. He was one of those sturdy Scotchmen who do not take things upon report; and one of the first things that he did was to journey up and down the length of the coast, all the way from Massachusetts to Virginia, meeting every man of consequence, seeking counsel not much as information, seeking to test the quality of the men who were influential in that day not only in the field of education, but also in the field of public affairs. And then when he more deliberately undertook the work at Princeton he consciously stood at the center of things that were going on in America, and felt that he was able to determine what sort of an institution must lend itself to the public necessities of that age.

There is an interesting passage in one of Dr. Witherspoon's lectures to his classes, in which has asks which question: "What is the advantage of civil liberty?" "I suppose," he replies, "that it chiefly consists in its tendency to put in motion all the human powers. Therefore it promotes industry, and in this sense happiness; it produces every latent quality and improves the human mind. Civil liberty is the nurse of riches, literature, and heroism."

He did not need to be schooled in the legal case for the Colonies. I dare say, as in ecclesiastical lawyer he knew that the legal case for the colonies was a very weak case indeed. The true case for the colonies was that they had grown up such men, and had made for them such communities, as rendered the domination of a foreign government no longer tolerable. . . Therefore he felt his pulse from the first in this free air to be the pulse of America. He needed no novitiate.

Scotchmen are easily transplanted, for the reason that Scotchmen have strong acquisitive energy; they do not so much identify themselves with the communities in which they live as to take possession of them. (laughter) You have never known a Scotchman, I venture to say, who did not show, in spite of what you call the stiffness of his bibre, a singular adaptability. He at once becomes part of the community, and not only that, but an enterprising part of the community his own by making it like himself.

This was the spirit, I dare say, that was in Witherspoon. To describe a man like this is just as difficult as to describe GENERAL WASHINGTON, and for the same reason. There is, I venture to say, a quality which is more difficult to describe than any other, the quality of greatness, an ineffable, indefinable quality, indefinable because of the singular symmetry and completeness and universality which lies back of it in the nature of the person who possesses it.

Do you wonder that this man Witherspoon, who had touched Scottish life at so many points and kindled at every point, burst into flame when he felt the electrified air of America; that he seemed suddenly to empitomize in himself the impulses that America felt growing in her like growing pains, and instantly recognized the significance of the situation into which he had almost unawares stepped? And the interesting thing about the man when he actually entered upon his career was this: He put into everything that he touched the spirit of scholarship and the spirit of affairs.

Another interesting circumstance that you will find here is that those who eulogize Witherspoon speak of him as a great orator, and he was a great orator; but not of the sort that this phrase usually suggests. He was not a rhetorical speaker; he was not a man who spoke with much warmth. He spoke with singular self-restraint, and what overcame you was not the exquisite phrase, but the indisputable truth of what he said. We think sometimes, ladies and gentlemen, that the men who create revolutions are the emotional orators. No emotional orator has ever created a revolution, much less has any emotional orator ever led a revolution. The man who led, who formed the revolution of 1688 in England was John Pym; and what sort of a speaker was John Pym? A short, heavy, sedate, indomitable man, who spoke of business all the time, who knew what he was talking about, and was not to be perturbed by any contradiction; a man in whom you felt you touched a conviction of what was true and what was possible which could be withstood by no emotional objection.

And so when Witherspoon came to reorganize his college he touched it with the spirit of affairs. He found it sleeping over its books. He made them devote themselves more to the natural sciences and to the mathematical studies. He himself undertook to lecture all around that great field which the Scotchmen of that day called the field of Moral Philosophy; and in moral philosophy he included the philosophy of government. He had no sooner reached the college than every youngster that rose to speak spoke upon some public theme. The Presbytery to which he belonged in New Jersey forbade its representatives to speak of politics in the pulpit; but there is a grave suspicion at Princeton that Mr. Witherspoon wrote many of the speeches of the undergraduates. (Laughter) They contained with singular exactness an image of his own thought, like a mirror held up to the teacher, so that every public occasion at Princeton heard some young voice raised in exposition of the principles of liberty. Then at last he got his Presbytery to rescind its rule, and there began to be spoken from his own pulpit those things which were so helpful in changing the history of the world.

He taught eagerly and gave a touch of what is modern and liberal and of active force to the studies of the youngsters who crowded about him. When you think of the men whom he taught you will see how various his product was. Here was a man who had an outlook in all directions, and his two typical pupils were James Madison and Lighthorse Harry Lee — the man whose thought was efficient in the field — the two sides of the man given admirable expression in two lads who came from his teaching, the young man who guided the deliberations of the Constituional Convention, and the dashing youngster who reminded men of Harry Hotspur himself in the field of battle. These were his characteristic pupils.

And then when we turn to affairs, he insisted, to the great embarrassment of many other persons in the Continental Congress, upon always basing what he had to say upon the actual facts not only, but upon the foundation of common sense. There were some of the strongest minds in that body, minds like the minds of John Adams and the mind of Benjamin Franklin, that were touched with some of the absurd and dangerous heresies of the time. There were moments when John Witherspoon was almost in a minority of one, in insisting that if you were going to have armies you must have armies; that if you were going to fight a war you must have armies; that if you were going to have armies you must pay them with money, real money, not imitation money; and if you were going to pay them with real money you must have an organization of States. And these were the foundations of the American Union and of the American Nation.

You see thus the image of the man – indomitable, a natural leader, a very formidable debater, tireless, never defeated, of that admirable cast of schooling which never knows when it is defeated, but acts after nominal defeat exactly as it acted after triumphal success; never to be surprised, never to be overlooked, never to be expected to be absent, always in his seat, always ready to be upon his feet, always in the way if you wanted to do anything unwise or foolish that is the sort of Scotchman who is at once troublesome and indespensible.

It is not difficult, then, to recall this sturdy and admirable man, a man serviceable in everything that he turned to, a man in some things a preacher, in other things a teacher, in still others a man of affairs, but always the same man – preaching what he taught, insisting in legislative councils and out of them, upon what he preached and taught; always self-consistent, self-respecting, indomitable, master of himself and of his fellows – such was John Witherspoon, whom it would belittle to call the greatest President of Princeton, one of the greatest citizens of the United States! And one of those men who typify in himself those steadfast qualities of thought and of purpose which will lead this nation stage by stage to the realization of its sober and manifest destiny."

In "Scots and Scots Descendants in America," by D. MacDougall, Editor in Chief, Caledonia Publishing Co., N. Y., is a biographical sketch of John Witherspoon (1722 – 1794), in which is mentioned a "member of the Continental Congress who said to John Witherspoon the Colonies were not yet ripe for a declaration of independence, to which Witherspoon replied, "In my judgement, Sir, we are not only ripe, but rotting.'"

The "American Biographical and Historical Dictionary", by William Allen, A. M., 1809, besides giving a lengthy biography, it states: – "To the young he was particularly attentive, taking every opportunity to impart to them useful advice in the most agreeable manner. Having a rich fund of anecdote, his moments of relaxation were as entertaining as his serious ones were instructive. The following anecdote presents a specimen of his good humored wit. When Burgoyne's army was captured at Saratoga, General Gates dispatched one of his aides to congress to carry the intelligence. The officer, after being delayed by amusements, which offered themselves to him on his way, at length arrived at Philadelphia, but the report of the victory had reached there several days before. Congress according to custom, proceeded to give the messenger some mark of their esteem. It was proposed to present him with an elegant sword; but Dr. Witherspoon rose, and begged leave to move, that instead of a sword, they should present him with a pair of golden spurs.

As a writer he holds a high rank. His knowledge of every subject he handles is considered as extensive and accurate, his thoughts weighty and condenced, his style simple, and his method very lucid. He exhibits great acquaintance with the world and with the human heart. His works are various, for he wrote on political, moral, literary, and religious subjects."

"The Continental Congress at Princeton" (June 24 to November 4, 1783), by Varnum Lansing Collins, 1908, states;

"Dr. John Witherspoon, who with consciousness of patriotic duty well done had returned to build up the tottering instition (the college of New Jersey), on whose behalf that day he acted as host, presided in academic gown and his gratification at the eclat attending this the 15th anniversary (1783) of the first commencement as president of the College of New Jersey was said to be plainly visible.

Conspicuous in his buff and blue, the cynosure of all eyes, was General WASHINGTON, who had ridden in from Rocky Hill that Morning to honor the occasion with his presence. Beside him was the Continental Congress grouped about Elias Boudinot, its distinguished president."

"One might have counted on the platform 7 signers of the Declaration of Independence, and 9 signers of the Articles of the Confederation. Four had signed both of these instruments. Eleven were to affix their names to the Constitution a few years later, and one other, Elbridge Gerry, attended the Constitutional Convention but did not sign. One ex-president of the Congress, Samuel Huntington, and two future PRESIDENTS OF THE UNITED STATES, Washington and Madison were there. A future President of Princeton, young Ashbel Green, delivered the valedictory, while still another, Dr. Samuel Stanhope Smith, assisted Witherspoon in the details of that morning's ceremony. For national characters this Commencement group is probably unparalleled in American academic history."

Varnum Lansing Collins, in his "PRESIDENT WITHERSPOON" (2 Vols., 1925) on page 233, Vol. II, states:

"During the last two years of his life he employed as his amanuesis his third cousin, John Ramsey Witherspoon, who entered college in Nov., 1792, as a sophomore. It is to him, next to Dr. Ashbel Green, that we owe most of our knowledge of Dr. Witherspoon's personality." "The principal manuscript of Dr. Ashbel Green's sketch is preserved in the New Jersey Historical Society's Library at Newark, N. J."

On page 13, Vol. I, Collins states: – "In the Witherspoon Collection in the Library of Princeton University is the "Horace" (Utrecht, 1713) he purchased shortly before matriculation (Edinburg University, 1736) bearing his (John Witherspoon's) autograph on the title page, and on the fly leaf this entry also in his hand: JOANNES WEDERSPAN. On page 232, Vol. II, he states: "In connection with his Scotch accent Green notes Dr. Witherspoon's odd pronounciation of his own name – WOTHERSPOON – although he spelled it in the usual way." (WITHERSPOON)

John Witherspoon married first, Elizabeth daughter of Robert Montgomery, of Craighouse, Ayrshire, Scotland; and had the following children by this marriage: Ann, Christian, (dau.) James, Robert, Barbara, John, Frances, David, George, and Infant son born dead August 16, 1763.

He married secondly May 30, 1791 Mrs. Anne (Marshall) Dill. She was the widow of Dr. Armstrong Dill (whom she m. December 20, 1787) of York County, Pennsylvania. She married thirdly in 1798 David Walker, who died 1824 at the age of 67.

Issue by this marriage was: Frances II Mary Ann, b. Tusculem, Somerset Co., N. J., April 13, 1794, and died in Laweston, Pennsylvania, September 10, 1846. She m. Rev. Jas. Sterritt Woods, D. D. of Lewiston, Pa. They had three sons – one was James Sterritt Woods, Jr., (1824 – 1846) a lieutenant in the U. S. Army, killed in the act of battle of Monterrey in the Mexican War, 1846; the second was Judge David Walker Woods, married Margaret J. Milliken. Their issue was Rev. David W., Jr. (1860 – 1938) biographer of John the signer. The third was Rev. Alexander Miller Woods, married Mary Davidson Rittenhouse, and they had Franklin Rittenhouse Woods of New Castle, Pa.

The following is an article taken from the Presbyterian Layman written by August J. Kling, entitled THE HEART OF WITHERSPOON. Dated November, 1969.

The Rev. August J. Kling is pastor of the First Presbyterian Church, Hackettstown, New Jersey, and recognized authority on the life and writings of John Witherspoon. Rev. Kling is currently chairman of the Evangelism Committee of the Newton Presbytery, and a member of the New Jersey Synod's Committee on Evangelism.

Dr. John Witherspoon heads the small list of men who may deserve to be called the "Father of American Presbyterianism."

Witherspoon displayed a rare constellation of those qualities that have been the glory and the gift of Presbyterianism throughout its three hundred years in this country. He was devout and uncompromising in his loyalty to Jesus Christ as presented to us in the Scriptures. He was faithful to the Biblical and ecclesiastical principles of the 16th century revival of religion that we call the Reformation. He promoted a system of church government that added to Biblical orthodoxy, sound forms of connectional order, representative freedom, parity of laymen and clergy, and regulated processes of open deliberation. He promoted education of the highest quality and of universal scope. He involved himself deeply in the secular questions of his day, never separating religion from life and action. He stressed the essential unity of Biblical doctrines with sound moral philosophy and natural sciences.

Before we deal with the heart of Witherspoon's thought and action, let us review briefly some of the remarkable fruits of his career. Here we shall limit our consideration to his most striking accomplishments in several fields. In our day of experts and specialization it is impressive to find in one man's life so many claims to fame and the gratitude of the people.

1. He was chief proponent of (and the chairman of the committee that organized) the first General Assembly of our American Church in 1789.

2. Chairman of the Committee named in 1786 by Synod to prepare a system of government and discipline for Presbyterians in America.

3. President and principal professor of Princeton University (1768 – 1794). Pastor of the town church during the same period.

4. Graduates of Princeton, educated largely by Witherspoon, included 114 ministers of the Gospel, 19 presidents and professors of colleges, one president of the United States (James Madison), one vice-president, six members of the Continental Congress, 20 U. S. senators, 23 U. S. congressional representatives, 13 state governors, three Supreme Court justices, and 20 officers serving in the War of Independence.

5. John Witherspoon was elected a member of the Provincial Congress of New Jersey in July 1774, and there urged decisive and aggressive steps toward uniting the colonies in the developing crisis.

6. He presided over the Somerset County Freeholders Committee of Correspondence 1774 – 5, opposing the "arbitary and cruel measures of the British ministry."

7. He was elected a full member of the Continental Congress in June 1776 and served, except for a brief leave of several months, until 1783. He was a member of the Secret Committee of Correspondence, responsible for prosecution of the War of Independence, from October of 1776. He served on the Board of War from October of 1777, and on the Committee on Finance from 1778. Witherspoon was the only minister in Congress, and he was determined to look like a minister, appearing always with gown and bands, carrying a gold-headed cane, wearing a buzz-cocked hat and silver knee and shoe buckles.

8. He signed the Declaration of Independence, saying "although these gray hairs must soon descend into the sepulchre, I would infinitely rather that they should descend thither at the hand of the public executioner than desert at this crisis the sacred cause of my country."

9. Witherspoon drafted papers in 1771 – 1779 (Works 1802, vol. IV., pp. 281 – 384) for his speeches in Congress, letters to British periodicals, and working papers for the committees on which he served.

These papers anticipated later developments in such precise terms as to bear out the claim of some scholars that Witherspoon was one of the leading statesmen to guide the steps toward American independence and unification.

10. Witherspoon's influence on James Madison (a ministerial student under his tutelage from 1769 to 1772, later to be called the "Father of the Constitution") is acknowledged by the biographer of Madison's early years. W. C. Rives, (quoted from James McCosh, "John Witherspoon and His Times", Philadelphia, Presb. Bd. of Publication, 1890, p. 29):

"We have seen how liberal and expansive a field of inquiry was opened to the students by the additions which Witherspoon made to previous curriculum of the college. The increased attention paid to the study, to the nature and constitution of the human mind, and the improvements which had been lately introduced into this fundamental part of knowledge by the philosophical inquiries of his own countrymen, constituted a marked and most important feature of Dr. Witherspoon's reforms. Mr. Madison formed a taste for those inquiries of his own countrymen, constituted a marked and a most important feature of Dr. Witherspoon's reforms. Mr. Madison formed a taste for those inquiries which entered deeply, as we shall hereafter have occasion to remark, into the character and habits of his mind, and give to his political writings in after-life a profound and philosophical cast which distinguished them eminently and favorably from the productions of the ablest of his contemporaries."

11. Witherspoon was the first to introduce the lecture system into American colleges. He lectured upon Rhetoric, moral philosophy and divinity, and he taught Hebrew. He introduced to America the first working model of the solar system, and procured for the college at Princeton the finest set of scientific equipment then existing in the Colonies.

There is no need for conjecture or prolonged search to discover the heart and thought and the spring of action of this great American churchman and patriot. He has himself summarized it for us carefully and eloquently in the preface to a selection of his works printed in London in 1764. The purpose of that edition was to support vigorously the fundamental Biblical and reformation doctrines of sin, justification and grace, which were then neglected by many of the most influential preachers and professors of theology. May we be allowed to speculate that it was this book that established John Witherspoon's reputation in the Colonies, and that induced the sons of the Log College in New Jersey to see in him the gifted teacher whom God had chosen to train a generation of townsmen and legislators for the new continent?

Indeed, it is no mere speculation to find in John Witherspoon the pillar of erudite orthodoxy and humane eloquence, upon which the Princeton theology was established, later to bear fruits of such blessed sweetness and world-nourishing effect, down to our 20th century.

Rev. Dr. Witherspoon made his will Sept. 15, 1793, as residing at "Tusculum" in Somerset County, J. J., naming wife, Ann, executrix; leaving children 'by my first wife': John Witherspoon, David Witherspoon, Ann Smith, each fifty pounds; grandsons: John W. Smith, John W. Ramsay, and John Nash Witherspoon, at age 18, two hundred and fifty pounds each. "Daughter Frances (2d) Witherspoon half of the estate, residue to wife. By a codicil, of Nov. 11, 1794, "daughter Mary Anne Witherspoon, to have half of the estate instead of Frances" (who died in November 11, 1793). Will probated November 28, 1794.

Dr. Witherspoon died Nov. 15, 1794. A monument to his memory was erected in Fairmont Park, Philadelphia, which was publicly unveiled Oct. 1876, 100 years after the signing of the Declaration of Independence, during the Centennial Exposition.

The History of Williamsburg by William Willis Boddie, page 31, states: "Dr. John Witherspoon (1722 – 1794), President of Princeton, member of Continental Congress and signer of the Declaration of Independence, during the time, was a nephew of Janet Witherspoon (ca. 1670 – 1734), the wife of John Witherspoon (ca. 1670 – 1737), original settler of Williamsburg, S. C." The bracketed information is supplied by Robert Sidney Witherspoon.

"THE SIGNER, while journeying to Europe was thrown against the side of the ship during a storm, and injured one eye, and in 1791, he was thrown from a horse and lost the sight from the other eye."

Dr. Witherspoon was on the committee appointed to prepare a recommendation for setting apart a day of public Thanksgiving and prayer.

JOURNALS OF THE CONTINENTAL CONGRESS, Vol. XXI, 1781
Page 957, Thursday, September 13, 1781. On motion of Mr. (Roger) Sherman, seconded by Mr. John Witherspoon, RESOLVED, That Thursday, the 13th day of December next, be appointed to be observed as a day of public thanksgiving throughout the United States; and that a committee be appointed to prepare and report a proclamation suitable to the occasion; The members, Mr. (John) WITHERSPOON, Mr. (Joseph) Montgomery, Mr. (James Mitchell) Varnum, Mr. (Roger) Sherman. (Page 1074) Friday, October 26, 1781.

The committee, consisting of Mr. WITHERSPOON, Mr. Montgomery, Mr. Varnum, Mr. Sherman, appointed to prepare a recommendation for setting apart a day of public thanksgiving and prayer, reported the draught of a proclamation, which was agreed to as follows:

PROCLAMATION

WHEREAS, it has pleased Almighty God, the father of mercies, remarkable to assist and support the United States of America in their important struggle for liberty, against the long continued efforts of a powerful nation: it is the duty of all ranks to observe and thankfully acknowledge the interpositions of his Providence in their behalf. Through the whole of the contest, from its first rise to this time, the influence of divine Providence may be clearly perceived in many signal instances of which we mention but a few.

In revealing the councils of our enemies, when the discoveries were seasonable and important, and the means seemingly inadequate or fortuitous; in preserving and even improving the union of the several states, on the breach of which our enemies placed their greatest dependence; in increasing the number, and adding to the zeal and attachment of the friends of Liberty; in granting remarkable deliverances, and blessing us with the most signal success, when affairs seemed to have the most discouraging appearance; in raising up for us a powerful and generous ally, in one of the first of the European powers; in confounding the councils of our enemies, and suffering them to pursue such measures as have most directly contributed to frustrate their own desires and expectations; above all in making their extreme cruelty to the inhabitants of these states, when in their power, and their savage devastation of property, the very means of cementing our union, and adding vigor to every effort in opposition to them.

And as we cannot help leading the good people of these States to a retrospect on the events which have taken place since the beginning of the war, so we recommend in a particular manner to their the goodness of God in the year now drawing to a conclusion: in which the Confederation of the United States has been completed in which there have been so many instances of prowess and success in our armies; particularly in the southern states, where, notwithstanding the difficulties with which they had to struggle, they have recovered the whole country which the enemy had overrun, leaving them only a post or two on or near the sea; in which we have been so powerfully and effectually assisted by our allies, while in all the conjunct operations the most perfect harmony has subsisted in the allied army; in which there has been so plentiful a harvest, and so great abundance of the fruits of the earth of every kind, as not only enables us to easily supply the wants of the army, but gives comfort and happiness to the whole people; and in which, after the success of our allies by sea, a General of the first Rank, with his whole army, has been captured by the allied forces under the direction of our Commander in Chief.

It is therefore recommended to the several states to set apart the 13th day of December next, to be religiously observed as a Day of Thanksgiving and Prayer; that all the people may assemble on that day, with grateful hearts, to celebrate the praises of our gracious Benefactor; to confess our manifold sins; to offer up our most fervent supplications to the God of all grace, that it may please Him to pardon our offenses, and incline our hearts for the future to keep all his laws; to comfort and relieve all our brethren who are in distress or captivity; to prosper our husbandmen, and give success to all engaged in lawful commerce; to impart wisdom and integrity to our counsellors, judgement and fortitude to our officers and soldiers; to protect and prosper our illustrious ally, and favor our united exertions for the speedy establishment of a safe, honorable and lasting peace; to bless all seminaries of learning; and cause the knowledge of God to cover the earth, as the waters cover the seas.

This report, in the writing of JOHN WITHERSPOON, is in the Papers of the Continental Congress, No. 24, folio 463.

SPEECH OF REV. DR. JOHN WITHERSPOON ON THE MESSAGE FROM LORD HOWE

5 September 1776

Mr. President:

The subject we are now upon is felt and confessed by us all to be of the most consequence, and perhaps I may also say, of delicacy and difficulty. I have not been accustomed in such cases to make solemn professions of impartiality, and shall not do it now, because I will not suppose that there are any suspicions to the contrary in the minds of those who hear me. Besides, the variety of opinions that have been formed and delivered upon it, seem to prove that we are giving our own proper judgement without prejudice or influence, which I hope will lead to the discovery of what is most wise and expedient upon the whole.

As the deliberation arises from a message sent to us by Lord Howe, at least by his permission, I think it is of importance to attend with greater exactness to all the circumstances of that message than has been done by any gentleman who has yet spoken on the subject. It comes from the Commander-in-Chief of the forces of the King of Great Britain, and one who is said to carry a commission to give peace to America.

From the conduct of the Ministry at home, from the acts of Parliament, and from Lord Howe's proclamation in conformity to both, it is plain that absolute, unconditional submission is what they require us to agree to, or mean to force us to. And from the most authentic private intelligence, the King has not laid aside his personal rancour; it is rather increasing every day. In these circumstances Lord Howe has evidently a great desire to engage us in a treaty; and yet he has constantly avoided giving up the least punctilio on his side. He could never be induced to give General Washington his title. He plainly tells us he cannot treat with Congress as such; but he has allowed a prisoner of war to come and tell us he would be glad to see us as private gentlemen.

It has been said that this is no insult or disgrace to Congress; that the point of honour is hard to be got over in making the first advances; This sir, is mistaking the matter wholly. He has got over this point of honour; he has made the first overtures; he has told General Washington, by Colonel Putnam, that he wished that message to be considered as making the first step. His renewed attempts by Lord Drummond, and now by General Sullivan, point out to all the world that he has made the first step. It will, doubtless, be related at home; and I am of opinion it is already written and boasted of to the Ministry at home that he has taken such a part. Therefore any evil or condescension that can attend seeking peace first, has been submitted to by him. Yet he has uniformly avoided any circumstance that can imply that we are anything else but subjects of the King of Great Britain in rebellion. Such a message as this, if in any degree intended as respectful to us, ought to have been secret; yet it has been open as the day. In short, such a message was unnecessary; for if he meant only to communicate his mind to the Congress by private gentlemen, he might have done that many ways, and it needed not to have been known either to the public or the Congress till these private gentlemen came here on purpose to reveal it. These, then, are the circumstances which attend this message as it is now before us; and the question is, shall we comply with it in any degree or not? Let us ask what benefit shall be from it? There is none yet shown to be possible. It has been admitted by every person without exception who has spoke, that we are not to admit a thought of giving up the independence we have so lately declared; and by the greatest part, if not the whole, that there is not the least reason that any correspondence we can have with him will tend to peace. Yet I think in the beginning of the debate such reasonings were used as seemed to me only to conclude that we should grasp at it as a means of peace. We were told that it was easy for us to boast or be valient here, but that our armies were running away before their enemies. I never loved boasting, neither here nor anywhere else. I look upon it as almost a certain forerunner of disgrace. I found my hope of success in this cause, not in the valour of Americans or the cowardice of Britons, but upon the justice of the cause, and still more upon the nature of things. Britain has first inflamed America to the highest degree, and now attempts, at the distance of three thousand miles, to carry on war with this whole country, and force it to absolute submission. If we take the whole events of the war since it commenced, we shall rather wonder at the uniformity of our success than be surprised at some cross events. We have seen bravery as well as cowardice in this country, and there are no consequences of either that are probable, that can be worth mentioning as ascertaining the event of the contest.

Lord Howe speaks of a decisive blow not yet being struck, as if this cause depended upon one battle, which could not be avoided. Sir, this is a prodigious mistake. We may fight no battles at all for a long time, or we may lose some battles, as was the case with the British themselves in the Scotch rebellion of 1745, and the cause notwithstanding be the same. I wish it were considered, that neither loss nor disgrace worth mentioning has befalled us in the late engagement, nor comparable to what the British troops have often suffered. At the battle of Preston, sir, they broke to pieces and ran away like sheep, before a few Highlanders. I myself saw them do the same thing at Falkirk, with a very little difference — a small part only of the army making a stand, and in a few hours the whole retreating with precipitation before their enemies. Did that make any difference in the cause? Not in the least — so long as the body of the nation were determined, on principle, against the rebels. Nor would it have made any other difference, but in time, though they had got possession of London, which they might have easily done if they had understood their business; for the Militia in England there gathered together, behaved fifty times worse than that of America has done lately. They generally disbanded and run off as soon as the rebels came within ten or twenty miles of them. In short, sir, from anything that has happened, I see not the least reason for our attending to this delusive message. On the contary, I think it is the very worst time that could be chosen for us, as it will be looked upon as the effect of fear, and diffuse the same spirit in some degree through different ranks of men.

The improbability of anything arising from this conference, leading to a just and honourable peace, might be shown by arguments too numerous to be even so much as named. But what I shall mention only is, that we are absolutely certain, from every circumstance, from all the proceedings at home, and Lord Howe's own explicit declaration in his letter to Dr. Franklin, that he never will acknowledge the independence of the American States.

I observed that one or two members said, in objection to the report of the Board of War, that it was like a begging of a question, and making a preliminary of the whole subject in debate. Alas, sir, this is a prodigious mistake. It was not only not the whole, but it was properly no subject of debate at all, till within these three months.

We were contending for the restoration of certain privileges under the Government of Great Britain, and we were praying for re-union with her. But in the beginning of July, with the universal approbation of all the States now united, we renounced this connection and declared ourselves free and independent. Shall we bring this into question again? Is it not a preliminary? Has it not been declared a preliminary by many gentlemen, who have yet given their opinion for a conference, while they have said they were determined on no account and on no condition to give up our independence? It is then a necessary preliminary — and is quite a different thing from any punctilios of ceremony. If France and England were at war, and they were both desirous of peace, there might be some little difficulty as to who should make the first proposals; but if one of them should claim the other as they did long ago as a vassal or dependent subject, and should signify a desire to converse with the other, or some disputed by him, and propose him many privileges so as to make him even better than before, I desire to know such a proposal would be received? If we had been for ages an independent Republic, we should feel this argument with all its force. That we do not feel it, shows that we have not yet acquired the whole ideas and habits of independence; from which I only infer, that every step taken in a correspondence as now proposed, will be a virtual or partial renunciation of that dignity so lately acquired.

I beg you would observe, sir, that Lord Howe himself was fully sensible, that the Declaration of Independence precluded any treaty, in the character in which he appeared; as he is said to have lamented that he had not arrived ten days sooner — before the declaration was made. Hence it appears, that entering into any correspondence with him in the manner now proposed, is actually giving up, or at least subjecting to a new consideration, the independence which we have declared. If I may be allowed to say it without offense, it seems to me that some members have unawares admitted this, though they are not sensible of it; for when they say that it is refusing to treat, unless the whole be granted us, they must mean that some part of that whold must be left to be discussed and obtained, or yielded, by the treaty.

But, sir, many members of this House have either yielded, or at least supposed, that no desirable peace, or no real good, could be finally expected from this correspondence, which is wished to be set on foot; but they have considered it as necessary in the eye of the public, to satisfy them that we are always ready to hear anything that will restore peace to the country. In this view it is considered as a sort of trial of skill between Lord Howe and us, in the political art. As I do truly believe, that many members of this House are determined by thiscircumstance.I shall consider it with some attention. With this view it will be necessary to distinguish the public in America into three great classes: 1. The Tories, our secret enemies. 2. The Whigs, the friends of independence, our sincere and hearty supporters. 3. The army who must fight for us.

As to the first of them, I readily admit that they are earnest for our treating. They are exulting in the prospect of it; they are spreading innumerable lies to forward it. They are treating Whigs already with insult and insolence upon it. It has brought them from their lurking holes; they have taken liberty to say things in consequence of it, which they durst not have said before. In one word, if we set this negotiation on foot, it will give new force and vigour to all their seditious machinations. But, sir, shall their devices have any influence upon us at all? If they have at all, it should be to make us suspect that side of the question which they embrace. In cases where the expediency of a measure is doubtful, if I had an opportunity of knowing what my enemies wished me to do, I would not be easily induced to follow their advice.

As to the Whigs and friends of independence, I am well persuaded that multitudes of them are already clear in their minds, that the conference should be utterly rejected; and to those who are in doubt about its nature, nothing more will be requisite than a clear and full information of the state of the case, which I hope will be granted them.

As to the Army, I cannot help being of opinion, that nothing will more effectually deaden the operations of war, than what is proposed. We do not ourselves expect any benefit from it, but they will. And they will possibly impute our conduct to fear and jealousy as to the issue of the cause; which will add to their present little discouragement, and produce a timorous and despondent spirit.

Varnum Lansing Collins in his "President Witherspoon", 1925, Vol. I, page 7, states: – that Rev. Dr. John Witherspoon, the signer, in a letter to his favorite brother, David, dated 1761, mentions his sister, Margaret Ann; he also states that David was an unfortunate merchant in the West Indies. (He was lieutenant on British warship of 60 guns).

"David (baptised, Feb. 1725) seems to have been the favorite brother of Dr. Witherspoon (1722/3 – 94)'The Signer and President of the College of N. J. (Princeton) 1760 – 94. The draft of a letter written to him in 1761 by the President, and seen in later years by Dr. Ashbel Green, but now lost, shows that he engaged in mercantile business in the West Indies and was unfortunate. Through his older brother's influence with the Marquise of Tweedale a lieutancy was obtained for him on a British warship of 60 guns in which he sailed once more for the West Indies, and there he disappeared from record. The President's son, David, was named after him, 'your namesake is a comely, thriving boy', says the letter alluded to, 'he is to be weaned in a few weeks'. It will be seen later that the nephew shared his uncle's spirit of adventure and to some degree also his fate of unsolved mystery." – See President Witherspoon by Varnum Lansing Collins, 1925, Vol. 1, page 7.

She married, as his second wife, Mr. James French, one of the masters of the High School of Edinburgh, a native of Tweedsmuir in Tweeddale. He was parochial school master first of Temple,afterwards of Yester. On 14th Feb. 1759, he was selected one of the masters of the High School of Edinburgh; he resigned that office in June, 1786, when he received, in acknowledgement of his services, a life pension in excess of the salary. He died at Armunnok, Lanark, March 9, 1789.

Their son, Rev. James FRENCH, Jr., was Rector of East Kilbird and tutor to Sir Walter Scott (1771 – 1832). A daughter of Susanna, Anne FRENCH, married James Todd of New York, and their daughter Susan Todd, married Gabriel Walker of York County, Pa. They also had Mary and Isabella Todd. Their (Susanna and Mr. James French) daughter, Susan French, married a Mr. McCune.

3. John (16 Oct. 1766 – 16 Mar. 1856)

He was born in a small town on the River Tweed in Scotland, his father's name was James. V. L. Collins says his mother, Anne Walker, was baptised July 19, 1696. Her son, John, the signer, made a trip to Scotland in 1784, and was reported to have seen his mother shortly before her death in 1787, "when very aged".

This James, father of James and two brothers (John and Robert), who came from the North of Ireland to America about 1775. James settled in N. C. and John & Robert in New England. Robert "left the Eastern St? es and settled in South Carolina", "he never returned and was soon forgotten", according to a letter to R. S. W. dated Jan. 20, 1890, from Captain Thomas B. Witherspoon (N212) a grandson of John, (1755 – 1849), who died at 84 in Camden, Maine. He also states: "My grandfather was a nephew of Dr. John Witherspoon, the signer."

James Witherspoon, a younger brother of Dr. John Witherspoon and 4th son of Rev. James Witherspoon of Yester Parish, was born in the village of Gifford, Yester Parish, near Edinburgh, Scotland. He married in Scotland. He and his wife had sons: John, Robert, and James W. About 1750 he emigrated from Scotland, going to Lancaster Co., Pa. He was accidentally killed.

In his "President Witherspoon", Varnum Lansing Collins, the negatavistic writer, says that Dr. John's brother, James, was born in 1730 and died before Nov., 1744. With all the evidence from the Pennsylvania Witherspoons, it does not seem credible that they could be wrong about their Pennsylvania ancestor, James Witherspoon of Lancaster Co., being brother to Dr. John. A letter written to David Harper Sibbet in 1902 by his mother, Sarah Elizabeth Witherspoon Sibbet, states that her great grandfather, James Witherspoon of Lancaster, Pa., was brother to the signer. She must have had her information from her father who lived to an old age (he died when she was 49) and who must have known well the identity of his Lancaster grandfather because the latter did not die until her father was 38.

Wardlaw of the southern branch in his "Genealogy of the Witherspoon Family" has no particular interest in the Pennsylvania Witherspoons or in James Witherspoon of Lancaster Co., but he does state on pps. 27, 34, and 48 that James, younger brother of Dr. John, was born in Scotland, married, and had sons in this country. James would not have been old enough to marry if Collins' dates are correct.

Many descendants of James Witherspoon of Lancaster Co. have kept up the traditional Witherspoon-Walker-Welsh-Know interest in Presbyterian religious matters. His great granddaughter, Sarah Elizabeth Witherspoon married a Presbyterian minister, Wm. Ryan Sibbet. One of her sons, Lowry Witherspoon Sibbet, became a Presbyterian minister, as did her grandson, Lansing Witherspoon Sibbet. A great, great grandson of James Witherspoon, John Willison Witherspoon II, became a Presbyterian minister in Pennsylvania, is listed in "Who's Who Among the American Clergy." The latter's sister's daughter, Janet Wingerd, is a missionary in East Africa. A cousin of Rev. John Willison Witherspoon II, Capt. Maurice Marlow Witherspoon (O362), another great, great grandson of James Witherspoon, became a Presbyterian minister and is a well-known Chaplain (ret) in the U. S. Navy. Besides this, nearly all of the descendants of James Witherspoon of Lancaster Co. have been very active in their respective Presbyterian churches.

Among the early settlers of the section which at that time was known as Rowan County, but which later became Wilkes County, North Carolina, was John WITHERSPOON. Many of his descendants now reside in the states of North Carolina, Tennessee, Kentucky and Alabama. He was a native of Scotland and is supposed to have come to America about the year 1760, settling in the state of Pennsylvania, where some of his children are known to have been born, and later removing to the state of New Jersey, where he lived for a period of time. He was a member of a Scotch family whose coat of arms is preserved, the motto inscribed being "Deo juvante," or "God helping". He was a direct descendant of John Knox, Scotland's Great Reformer, and was closely related to Dr. John WitherSPOON, President of Princeton College, in all probability a nephew, as the records in regard to this relationship speak of him as a lateral descendant, and the tradition in almost all branches of the family is that he was a son of the signer's uncle and his first cousin that signed the Declaration of Independence. His father is supposed to have been REV. THOMAS WITHERSPOON, a Presbyterian divine of the state of New Jersey, reference to whom is found in certain of the New Jersey archives. No thorough search has been made of the records of either Pennsylvania or New Jersey to ascertain what connection, if any, he had with any of the civil or military organizations of either of these states.

It is not known definitely when he moved to North Carolina, but it is supposed to have been about the year 1771, when his name appears as a petitioner of the House Assembly of North Carolina asking for the creation of a new county. At this time he had settled in the forks of Kings Creek on the Little Yadkin river in Wilkes County, where the village of Grandin is now located. Tradition, amongst his descendants now living in the state of Tennessee, is that he had settled lower down on the Yadkin river, but that he found the land too flat, sandy and swampy, and he had made some boats and poled up the Yadkin River until he came to the junction of the Little Yadkin and Kings Creek, where he found "a beautiful valley with hills on either side densely covered with a forest of such trees as he was accustomed to in his native land, and there on the Yadkin River in North Carolina he staked out his grant." The location in which he settled is one of great natural beauty, and from time immemorial this section has been known as the Happy Valley.

His wife was named MARTHA PETTIGREW OF North Carolina.

At the time John Witherspoon (1726 – 78) settled on Kings Creek the land was on the Indian frontier, and it indicated the great courage and hardihood of this pioneer to engage in a step attended with such anger in the endeavor to conquer the wilds of nature and carve out the wilderness a home for him and for the generations coming after.

As a result of the efforts before the General Assembly of North Carolina, a county which was called Wilkes was established in 1778 out of a portion of Surrey, Rowan and the District of Washington, and the new county became the center of revolutionary activities, and from its confines came the hardy frontier troops under Col. Benjamin Cleveland, who contributed so much to America's success in the war, and whose activities so greatly aided in breaking British power in the South at Kings Mountain. It is not known definitely what rank John Witherspoon had among the military forces. Tradition says that he was a commissioned officer, but all muster rolls of the forces of Wilkes County have been lost and documentary evidence connecting any names with these activities is exceedingly scarce, and in most instances entirely lacking. (This has been accepted for DAR membership).

It is known, however, that when the legislature established Wilkes County, John Witherspoon was appointed one of the commissioners to lay out a site for the courthouse, jail and other public buildings, and that he, and those appointed with him, established the site of the present town of Wilkesboro on what was then known as the Mulberry Fields or the Mulberry Meeting House.

The records of the Court of Common Pleas and Quarter Sessions of Wilkes County show that this court was organized on the 2nd day of March, 1778, the first meeting being held at "John Bron's" at the bent of the Yadin." John Witherspoon was not present at this meeting of the court, and the cause of his absence can only be left to conjecture. Possibly he was off upon a military errand, but at the next meeting of the court, the first day of June 1778, the records show that John Barton, John Witherspoon and Micajah Benton, pursuant to a commission from His Excellency, the Governor, "appeared, took oath of allegiance and also the oath of a justice and took their seats accordingly, and at this meeting of the court he was appointed to take a list of the taxable persons and ordered to administer the oath of allegiance in his district to all male persons above the age of sixteen years. At this meeting a report of the commissioners appointed by act of the General Assembly of North Carolina to lay out and appoint a proper place in the County of Wilkes whereon to erect the court house, prison, pillory and stock of said county was reported and spread upon the records. John Witherspoon's name appears as a signer of this report. The records of the court show that he did not sit further as a justice until Wednesday, September 9th, when he, together with Benjamin Cleveland and George Morris, were sitting as a court, and at this meeting an order was entered relieving all persons in the Continental Service from the pay ment of poll tax for the year 1778.

There is no further record of his presiding as a justice, and on the first Monday of December, 1778, the records state, "The last will and testament of John Witherspoon, Esq., deceased, was proved by the oath of John Robinson, a subscribing witness thereto, whereupon letters testamentary was ordered to issue to Thomas Witherspoon (153) and David Witherspoon (154), executors named and appointed in said will." "The original will is in possession of the North Carolina Historical Commission at Raleigh, N. C." "Their graves have been found in Wilkes County, North Carolina and his stone says John Witherspoon Died November 7, 1778, aged 52 years." The cause or manner of his death is not known, but he was at that time in middle life, and it is possible that his death was occasioned by wounds received in military service.

His widow, Martha Witherspoon, survived him for many years, and traditions says that she is buried at the old homestead on Kings Creek, but the writer made diligent search for the tombstone or other monument during a recent visit to this section, but none was found.

John Witherspoon and his wife, Martha, had children as follows: Thomas, David, James and John; Mary Floron, Martha, Nancy, Jane and Elizabeth. All of his sons were by tradition soldiers in the cause of the Revolution, but so far no documentary evidence has been discovered showing service only by David Witherspoon and John Witherspoon. David served as a Lieutenant under Captain George Gordon, at "King's Mountain, N. C., Oct. 1780", whose daughter he afterwards married, and was a distinguished soldier in the Revolutionary war; while John Witherspoon served as a private, corporal and sergeant and was in General Green's campaign in North Carolina. He later was granted a pension by the United States government, and his original application for a pension is preserved in the office of the Commissioner of Pensions and a copy of it is attached to this sketch for the reason that it is a matter of exceeding interest to all persons desiring the genealogy of the family.

John and Martha Witherspoon were both buried near King's Creek, Wilkes County, North Carolina, on a farm owned in 1934 by Rufus W. Greene. It is about 2 3/4 miles from the King's Greek school house (on Highway 81), and about 24 or 25 miles from Wilkesboro. It was formerly the old John Bradley farm. John Witherspoon and several members of his family were buried there. The old stone at his grave bears this inscription: "Here lies the body of John Witherspoon Esq. Deceased November 7th 1778. N. B. Who was a follower of the Lamb."

8. John Ramsey (17 Mar. 1774 – 9 May 1852)
9. Thomas II (23 Jul. 1776 – 8 Jul. 1836)

He was born in County Down, Ireland, Aug. 20, 1728, and died in Williamsburg County, S. C., April 5, 1788. He came to America with his father and grandfather in 1734. He wrote the first GENEALOGY of THE WITHERSPOON FAMILY, and to him we are indebted for the important and interesting history of our ancestors from 1670 to 1780. This genealogy is dated Williamsburg, S. C., May, 1780, and is published in full by Joseph G. Wardlaw, in 1910, on pages 7 to 15, in his Genealogy of the Witherspoon Family, from which this record from 1670 to 1910 of the Witherspoon Family in Scotland and America, by Robert Sidney Witherspoon (1868 – 1945) is largely copied. This genealogy of 1670 to 1780, on pages 212 and 215, was published in part by Dr. George Howe, D. D., in 1870 in his History of Presbyterian Church in S. C., and W. W. Boddie in 1923, publishes it almost in full in his History of Williamsburg, on pages 10-20, and also by McCrady in 1901 in his South Carolina under the Royal Government 1719 – 1776, pp. 133-35.

This Robert (1728 – 88) lived at Ox Swamp, on Black River four miles below Kingstree. He was a man of intelligence, industry and deep piety. He was a Ruling Elder in the Williamsburg Church, a great Presbyterian and a man of considerable prominence in his time.

He married in 1758, Elizabeth Heathly (1740 – 1820); she was buried by the side of her husband at the old Witherspoon graveyard, nine miles south of Kingstree, and about three miles from Lanes, S. C. Robert's grave is marked by a stone bearing the following inscription: – "In memory of Robert Witherspoon, son of James and grandson of John Witherspoon, who was born in August 1728 and died the 5th of April 1788, in the 60th year of his age. In the character of this excellent man, humility of mind, benevolence of heart and undissembled piety shone conspicious." Also the following for his wife: – "Sacred to the memory of Elizabeth, consort of Robert Witherspoon and daughter of William and Mary (Hamilton) Heathly, June 5, 1740 – July 5, 1820, aged 80 years and 1 month. Ardent in piety, deep in humility, eminent for charity to the poor and hospitality to strangers, punctual in her attendance on the ordinance of God's house and distinguished for her reverence."

William Heathly (1715 – 1743), the father of Elizabeth, was born in England; married first, Miss Fowler, who died leaving one daughter, Mary, who married a Mr. Kibbon.

He married, second in 1739, Mary Hamilton (1718 – 69), daughter of William Hamilton (b. 1690?), one of the first emigrants to Williamsburg. She married first a Mr. Brady, then William Heathly in 1739. Issue by second marriage: 1. Elizabeth Heathly, married Robert Witherspoon; 2. William Heathly (1741 – 1800), married 1784, Mary (Fulton) McClelland, daughter of Samuel Fulton and widow of Jas. McClelland. Their daughter, Eliza, married Hugh Wilson.

Mary (Hamilton Brady) Heathly married a third time on August 28, 1744, Thomas McCrea (d. 1776), and had issue by him: 3. James; 4. Jane; 5. Mary; the two daus. died in infancy. All are buried at Cedar Swamp, S. C.

Elizabeth (Heathly) Witherspoon (1740 – 1820), in her will dated June 7, 1820, mentions sons: Robert, Thomas, and John Ramsay; grandsons, James Hervey, (1784 – 1842), son of Captain James, James E. Wilson (b. 1793 – ____), son of Samuel, Sr., and Robert Pinckney Frierson (b. 1800 – ____) son of Robert; granddaughters, Mary Ann Frierson (b. 1796) Witherspoon and Sarah A. Frierson, (daus. of Robert Frierson); grandsons, Jno. R., W. Wilson and George White Witherspoon; great grandchildren, Jas. E., Eliza A., Thos. E. and Robt. M. Wilson, (children of David Wilson and Ann Fleming, (M13) Ester D. and Langdon Cheves Witherspoon (children of Robt. Sydenham, and $50 to Bethel Congregation.

The following is an account written by Robert Witherspoon about his family.

"I was born August 20th, 1728, in Ireland. I was my father's 2nd son; in my youth he taught me to weave, also my oldest brother, David, he taught us to make Reeds; the family lived together at the Bluff until March, 1749. My Father (then) moved his family to Thorntree; I went and wrought (at Uncle Gavin's, who lived then at Migerth Swamp) at the weaving business until September following, when I went to overseeing and lived with Mr. Flemming, near Black River Church (25 miles below King's tree); I lived with him till August, 1750 when he died; I continued with his widow until January, 1752, when I returned home to my Father again. The reason of my return was it pleased God in the late awful distemper (that was in Williamsburg, which begun about the 1st of November in 1750 and carried off nearly 80 persons in a short time, many of which were the principal people of the congregation) to remove by death my oldest brother, David, and my sister, Jane. My Father being in a very weakly state, unable to take care of the Plantation, I left my own Concerns to take care of his. I remained with my parents until March 2nd, 1758. I left them and settled for myself (4 miles below King's tree and near the river).

The aforesaid 2nd of March (1758) I was married to Elizabeth Heathly, a young woman in the 18th year of her age. (I afterwards removed and settled one mile higher up the river, nearer King's Tree, in 1761, and immediately on the public road leading from that place to the lower bridge on Black River. There I had a more comfortable and healthy residence, and here also, I expect to spend the remainder of my days).

Our 1st son, James, was born March 20th, 1759. Our 2nd son, named Thomas, was born the 22nd of March, 1761 and died the 8th of September, 1765.

Our daughter, Ann, was born January 20th, 1765, and died the 24th of July, 1767. Our son Robert was born January 29th 1767. Our daughter Mary was born March 20th, 1769. Our daughter Elizabeth was born July 25th, 1771. Our son John was born March 17th, 1774. Our son Thomas was born July 23rd, 1776.

My honored Mother (Elizabeth McQuoid) departed this life the 25th of January, 1777 in the 72nd year of her age. She was the last surviving branch of the Old Stock of our Family, and as I have had an opportunity of having a personal knowledge of their lives and deaths I bear them this testimony; that they servers of God, they were well acquainted with the Scriptures, they were much in Prayer, they were strict observers of the Sabbath; In a word they were a Stock that studied outward piety and inward purity; indeed God blessed this settlement at first with a number of Godly pious men, out of which I chose to set down some of their names; – WILLIAM WILSON, DAVID ALLON, WILLIAM HAMILTON, JOHN PORTER, WILLIAM JAMES, DAVID WILSON, JOHN JAMES, JAMES McCLELAND, ROBERT PRESSLY, JAMES BRADLEY, JOHN LEMON, WILLIAM FRIERSON, to the which I add my own Father and my three uncles, viz., DAVID, ROBERT AND GAVIN (WITHERSPOON): these were men of great piety in their day, and indeed they were men of renown.

May the glorious king and head of His Church, for His own glory, still maintain and keep us men of piety and holiness as a blessing to this place to the latest posterity, is the heart request of the unworthy scribe."

He was born 1747 and died in Williamsburg, May 18, 1818; was a corporal in Captain Daniel Conyers company of Marion's Brigade. The following "tradition" was handed down to Robert Sidney Witherspoon (1868 – 1945), by his father, Captain Thomas Franklin Witherspoon (1825 – 1909) about 1890, who got it from his father, Dr. John Ramsay Witherspoon (1774 – 1852), who was a newphew of "Corporal" Gavin. His father, Robert, being a brother of Corporal Gavin. Corporal Gavin was a very large man, weighing, it is said, over 250 pounds. One day while off duty, he came upon five British (or Tory) soldiers, who had stacked their arms and were some distance away, after eating some were dozing; he crept noiselessly to their guns – secured them – and ordered the five to surrender, which they did; and when he marched them into his camp Captain Conyers, was, of course, very much surprised to see one man bringing in five prisoners, so he said, "why Corporal! how did you manage to capture five men at one time?" The Corporal replied, " why Captain, I just surrounded 'em." Captain Conyers said, "well Sir!, if there is anyone in my company who could surround five you are the man".

Gavin's will is dated 10 Jan. 1816.

He was born in Williamsburg, 1742, died in 1802. He was an elder in the Hopewell church and lived in the Pee Dee Section; was a captain in the Revolutionary War, and W. Gilmore Simms in his Life of Francis Marion, 1856, on page 136 says: "There was another Witherspoon with Marion (on his flight to North Carolina with sixty men in the Fall of 1780). John, a brother of (Captain) Gavin, and like him distinguished for great coolness, strength and courage. Both of the brothers delighted in such adventures and were always ready to engage in them – the rashness of the attempt giving a sort of relish to the danger, which always sweetens it to the life of our partisans."

Lee led the way with his legion toward the Santee, while Marion, placing Witherspoon with a small party (Captain Gavin Witherspoon, on the trail of Watson, pursued his line of march through Williamsburg (S. C.).

Of these (mounted officers) he (Gen. Marion) ordered out a party under Gavin Witherspoon to reconnoiter.

Meanwhile, Witherspoon with his reconnoitering party, advanced out a little distance in the woods, when they were met by the enemy's cavalry (under Frasiar) and instantly charged. A long chase followed, which soon brought the pursuers into view of the partisan. His men were half concealed behind the thick boughs of the cedars behind which they were drawn up. The interest of the chase, as they drew more near, was increased by a little incident which was greatly calculated to encourage the militia. When in full view the horse of Witherspoon failed him, or its rider purposely fell behind to bring up the rear of his little escort. At this sight a British dragoon darted forward to cut him down. Witherspoon cooly suffered him to advance until he was almost within striking distance. With sword uplifted the assailant had already risen in his stirrups to smite, when quick as lightning, Witherspoon, who had watched him narrowly, poured the contents of his carbine into his breast. This was followed by a shout from the Americans, and with furious yells the British dashed forward upon Marion's left.

John's name and rank are recorded in Book O, p. 113, Revolutionary Records in the office of Secretary of State, South Carolina.

M: (2) Mrs. E. Thompson (_____ – _____)

He was born in Williamsburg, S. C., 1748, died in 1834; was an elder in the Hopewell church. He settled on the Pee Dee River in South Carolina.

Like all his family, he was noted for piety, courage and gentleness of disposition; he died aged 85, without sickness or decay; was a great athlete; the day of his death he rode 30 miles on horseback and died in his chair.

He was distinguished as a captain in Marion's Brigade and history is full of his daring exploits; see Simms' Life of Marion, page 227, for the "ammunition incident", where Marion says, "You are an extraordinary soldier"; on page 135 is an account of his capture of seven Tories . . . which according to a Witherspoon tradition should refer to "Corporal" Gavin (1747 – 1818), and not "Captain" Gavin, and the tradition states five were captured instead of seven.

On page 321 there is an account of the "Killing of a British Dragoon"; also see Wallace's History of the Williamsburg Church, for notice of his gallant soldier and noble man.

Gavin Witherspoon was a notable scout under Marion; he knew the woods and all the trails; the Tories, his neighbors, were in great fear of him; his adventures with the enemy were many. The Tories, in his absence, drove into their camp a pen of fattening hogs from his premises. After nightfall, Witherspoon secretly reached the Tory camp and, with little delay, located the pen and his hogs. With little noise he removed one or two rails, then on his hands and knees, from the opposite side he uttered a gutteral sound, guff, guff, like a hog. The imprisoned animals, in fright, all rushed through the ready-made gap and, one by one returned home.

This and other successful enterprises of retaliation greatly incensed the enemy; they burned his house.

FROM THE WITHERSPOON OF SOCIETY HILL
BY JOHN WITHERSPOON DEBOSE, BULLETIN OF THE PEE DEE HISTORICAL ASSOCIATION 1910. HARTSVILLE PUBLISHING COMPANY PRESSES, HARTSVILLE, SOUTH CAROLINA

The following account is from the files of ROLAND WITHERSPOONof Shreveport, Louisiana.

Gavin Witherspoon was one of the fearless men, who side by side with Marion, accomplished those daring feats of partisan warfare, which made the bravest and boldest of the English hosts turn pale, whenever Marion and his men were mentioned! He was one of that devoted band who chose the swamp for their resting place, and night after night, from Snow's Island plunged their snoring steeds into the waste of waters, swam to land and before the morning light had struck a gallant blow for liberty, and were again in the coves of Snow's Island.

Gavin was born in 1748 and died in 1834 aged 86. He married first Elizabeth Dick and had three children, then Mrs. E. Thompson.

Gavin Witherspoon was also a member of the South Carolina Legislature, was a planter, and is mentioned in several books. McCrady, Howe, Wallace, and Wm. Filmore Simons in their Life of General Francis Marion, mention him and his exploits. He rose from Corporal to Captain.

Sketches of Gavin Witherspoon, Captain in the Command of General Francis Marion and father of John Dick Witherspoon, from the History of the Presbyterian Church of South Carolina written by George Howe.

We find in civil history many and thrilling accounts of the sufferings, of all this region, peopled by the descendants of the first settlers of Williamsburg. It was they, already risen in arms, that summoned the undaunted Marion from the camp of Gates to be their leader. Gavin and John Witherspoon of this congregation were with him. While Marion was at White Marsh, previous to the battle of Black Mingo, Gavin, whom he had sent out with four men, achieved one of those surprises which too often distinguished the men of Marions' command. He had taken refuge in the Pee Dee Swamp from his pursuers and while hiding there, discovered one of the camps of the Tories who were seeking him. He proposed to his four comrades to watch the evening camp till the Tories were asleep. His men shrinking from the performance, Witherspoon undertook it himself. Creeping quietly he found them sleeping at the butt of an uprooted pine, with their guns leaned against one of the branches, a short distance from them. Creeping still nearer, he first secured their guns, then arousing the Tories, demanded them to surrender. They were seven in number, disarmed and knew nothing of the force of their asaailants. Witherspoon's companions drew near and assisted in securing the prisoners. On another occasion when Major McElraith challenged Marion to combat in an open field and Marion replied that he wished to witness a combat between 20 picked soldiers on each side, he was not unwilling to gratify him, the proposition was agreed to by McElraith. Marion chose Major Vanderhorst and Captain Samuel Price as leaders and second in command. The names of the men were written on separate slips of paper and handed to them separately. Gavin Witherspoon received the first. Vanderhorst asked Witherspoon at what distance would you prefer as the most sure to strike with buckshot." "Fifty yards for the first five," was his reply. "Then," said Vanderhorst, "When we get within fifty yards as I am not a good judge of distances, Mr. Witherspoon will tap me on the shoulder; and I will give the word." But McElraith had reconsidered, Vanderhorst was advancing, and got within one hundred yards, when the British detachment was withdrawn and retired with a quick step towards the main body. Vanderhorst and his party gave three luggars but not a shot was fired. The incident shows like many others, the estimation in which Gavin Witherspoon's soldierly qualities were held by his commander. On another occasion Marion crossed the Pee Dee and encamped at Warlus within five miles of Watson whose force was twice that of Marion's. Here he planted himself to watch an enemy whom he could not openly encounter. In addition to bands of men he labored under a still greater want of ammunition. When asked by Capt. Gavin Witherspoon whether he meant to fight Watson (which Witherspoon strongly advised) before he was joined by enough Tories, he answered, "That would be best but we have no ammunition." "Why General", said Witherspoon, "any powder house is full". "Ah my friend", was the reply of Marion, "you are an extraordinary soldier but for others there are not two rounds to a man." Near the close of the war Marion had left a small body of infantry at Warloo on Cooper River. He had taken his cavalry to Georgetown, and the enemy appraised of this, send a detachment of dragoons, one hundred strong, under Major Frasier to surprise the post of Warloo. Marion was back in season, but when Frasier approached, his cavalry was absent for rolling down the river. In their absence his only mode of obtaining intelligence was through his officers, who alone were provided with horses. Often he ordered out a party under Capt. Gavin Witherspoon to reconnoiter. Meanwhile he dispersed his infantry, many of whom a this juncture were new made Whigs, whose fidelity had not been tried. Witherspoon with the reconnoitering party had not advanced far into the woods when they were charged by the enemy's cavalry. A chase ensued which soon brought forth parties in view of Marion and his men. When in full view, the horse of Witherspoon failed him, or he disregardedly dropped behind to bring up the rear of his little band. A British dragoon darted forward to cut him down. Witherspoon suffered him to come almost within striking distance. The dragoon had risen in his stirrups to strike when Witherspoon whose eye was on him, quick as lightning, poured the contents of his carbine into his breast. This was followed by a shout from the American side, who delivered their fire with fatal effect. Marion charged his front with every remainder of the foe, and they found no opportunity of extricating their disasters.

The "New Jersey Archives", Vol. 27, page 268, says: "James Witherspoon, a son of President Witherspoon, was a young man of great promise. He joined the American Army as aide to General Nash and was killed at the Battle of Germantown, Oct. 4, 1777." He was unmarried.

L32 – K12 Dr. JOHN WITHERSPOON, Jr. (29 Jul. 1757 – 30 Jan. 1796)
Unmarried

He was born in Scotland in 1757, died at sea in 1796 ae. 39, as stated in South Carolina Historical and Genealogical Magazine, Vol. 23, page 153, May 1922; "Died, on board the Brig.'John' Captain Webb, on his passage from New York. Doctor John Witherspoon, late of St. Stephen's parish, in this state. (Saturday, January 30, 1796)." "He was a member of the Society of Cincinnati in S. C." He died unmarried.

Graduated at College of New Jersey in 1773, the New Jersey Archives, Vol. 27, page 582, on Sept. 25, 1771, says: "Yesterday was held at the Public Library in this place (Princeton, N. J.) before about twenty gentlemen of liberal education, a Competition for Premiums in the following branches of study; Reading the Latin and Greek language with propriety; 1 st premium – John Witherspoon, Sophomore, (1770 – 73) 2d premium – Aaron Burr, Junior, (1769 – 1772) 3d premium – Henry Lee ("Light Horse Harry"), Sophomore, (1770 – 1773).

Series 1, Vol. 26, p. 525, Master John Witherspoon delivered the valedictory oration.

In The Works of John Witherspoon, by Rev. Dr. John Rodgers, 1802, pp. 380-1, a letter from John Witherspoon, "the signer" dated March 20, 1870, says:

"My (now) eldest son, John, sailed in October (1779) last, for France with Mr. Girard and Mr. Jay, late president of Congress. He is to purchase a few medicines and instruments in Europe, and return to prosecute his business as a physician. My other son (David) was studying law, but for the mean while is private secretary to the present president of Congress (Samuel Huntington of Connecticut), and my youngest daughter (Frances, who in 1783, married Dr. David Ramsay, the historian, of S. C.) is at home."

Dr. John Witherspoon, son of the "Signer", and formerly a surgeon in the Continental Army, was captured on the Privateer Degraaf in 1780 at St. Eustaticus (an island off the West Indies) by the British and he was imprisoned in London and very harshly treated on account of his father's prominence, Benjamin Franklin, a friend of his father, and then in England, secured his release and advanced him the money necessary to return home to Princeton, which he did. He afterwards settled at St.

Stephens, S. C., where he practiced his profession for ten years, but during most of this time he was estranged from his father and never wrote till 1794, which was a source of much regret and sorrow to his father, according to Dr. John Ramsay Witherspoon (M17) (1774 – 1852), who was the amaneunsis of John Witherspoon, the signer, during the last two years of his life (1792 – 94) while a student at the College of New Jersey.

Jas. H. Witherspoon Phillipps in his History of the Witherspoon Family, 1907, says: "John Witherspoon, M. D. graduated at Princeton 1773; was a surgeon in the war of Revolution. A Family quarrel caused him to locate in St. Stephens, S. C., with his tripple fourth cousin, Capt. James Witherspoon (1759 – 91), he never held any further communication with his father, and practiced his profession among his relatives in South Carolina until his death. He was lost at sea in 1795" (1796).

His will of 27 Dec., 1795, (proved Feb. 1796),in Charleston, S. C., Probate Court, Wills Book C., 1793 – 1800, on page 274; "JOHN WITHERSPOON, late of South Carolina but now of City of New York, Physician," Bequests to "Friend, William Payne, of Charleston, S. C., Merchant, (and to his wife and son; Nephew, John Witherspoon Smith, son of sister, Ann Smith). Executors, William Payne and Captain Charles Palmer. In presence of: Jacob Morton, Wm. Laboyteaux, Abraham TenEyck."

John Witherspoon, son of James Witherspoon was the brother of Rev. John Witherspoon, D. D., first president of Princeton University and signer of the Declaration of Independence, was born 16 Oct. 1766, probably in Francestown, N. H., that being his residence in 1793. He married in Amherst, N. H., 14 Nov. 1793, ABIGAIL MILLS, daughter of Capt. John Mills, a Mills, a Revolutionary patriot (born in England) and Keziah Lyon (born in Sherborn, Mass.), the marriage service being performed by the Rev. John Barnard.

John Witherspoon, after his marriage, lived in Fisherville (Penacook, N. H., a short time and by 1797 had moved to Thomaston, Maine. At St.

George (Thomaston), Maine, he managed the estate of Maj. Gen. Henry Knox, a Revolutionary hero. Later he managed the Brigadier (now Sears) Island property owned by General Knox in Penobscot Bay, all of which properties had been granted to General Knox for his services in the Revolution, and made his home for the rest of his days on Butter Island, where he died 16 March 1856. Mrs. Witherspoon died on the Island 24 Dec. 1848. A stone to their memory still stands in the small family cemetery on Butter Island. The Island remained in the Witherspoon family through John, Unadella and Capt. Rodney K. until it was bought by a syndicate which erected a pavilion and operated it as an amusement park, changing the name to Dirigo Island. The eldest son, Unadella, "a man of more than ordinary intelligence . . . . great reader of history," stated that he was a descendant of the brother of Dr. John Witherspoon, Signer. The pavilion burned and the Island has been deserted for the most part since, having recently been purchased by private parties.

A number of letters which passed between John Witherspoon and General Knox relative to the management of the Knox estate to be found in the Knox Collection owned by the New England Historic Genealogical Society, now on loan to the Massachusetts Historical Society.

Captain Thomas B. Witherspoon, (N212) of Chicago, Ill., in 1890, writes: "My grandfather's name was John Witherspoon, died at the age of 90 years in Camden, Maine. My grandfather was a nephew of Dr. John Witherspoon, the Signer." "He was born in a small town on the River Tweed in Scotland." He was a son of James.

Donald Witherspoon (in a letter of Feb. 21, 1908) states of John Witherspoon (1726 – 78) (M26), the father of David, and John, his brother: "He seems to have been possessed of a good education." With Col. (Benjamin) Cleveland and another he was appointed a commissioner (on June 2, 1778) to select a site for the county court house and other public buildings. The Commission chose Mulberry Fields, a small village at that time, and changed the name to Wilkesboro. He died in September 1778. John left surviving him two sons, David and John, who were both noted soldiers in the contest for freedom. David was born in 1758 and John in 1760. They entered the army at the ages of 18 and 16 respectively and served throughout the war. David attained the rank of Lieutenant and later Captain, while John held some inferior officer's place, rising in the militia service after the war to the rank of Colonel. Both brothers were in the battle of King's Mountain." (Oct. 7, 1780). See "King's Mountain and its Heroes", by Lyman C. Draper, LL. D., 1881, page 261; also see Western North Carolina by John Preston Arthur, 1914, pp. 105-6.

DAVID WITHERSPOON was a lieutenant in the Revolutionary War under Capt. George Gordon whose daughter Elizabeth he afterwards married. He took a prominent part in the Battle of King's Mountain and rendered gallant service. He was under Captain Cleveland there.

From a manuscript statement of one of David's sons I quote an interesting incident. "Sometime after this David and John dropped in home to see their mother and sisters – they had three sisters – in the night and the house was surrounded by Tories, the two brothers captured, carried to a Tory camp located in the Western part of Wilkes. This camp was composed of say 200 men. David and John were tried by Drum Head Court Martial and condemned to be shot. Blindfolded, placed on a log, men detailed in position to shoot them. While waiting for the command to fire an officer stepped up and proposed if they would go home and come back and bring with them a noted fast animal called the O'Neal mare, belonging to David, and join their band, their lives would be spared. They reached home safely. A Col. Herndon had a battalion of light horse down the Yadkin River, 60 miles from the Tory camp. David mounted his flying mare, bent for the camp of Col. Herndon, and 24 hours after that David and John, with Herndon's Battallion, composed of say 250 men, dash into the Tory Camp and capture the whole of them without the loss of a man. David and John redeemed their promise of returning to the Tory camp, but under circumstances not expected by them."

Thus ended the career of the noted band of freebooters known as "Riddle's Gang." The place of this exploit is today called "Riddle's Knob." These prisoners were delivered by David and John to Col. Ben. Cleveland, who executed Capt. Riddle and twelve others in Wilkesboro by hanging to an oak tree. This tree is still standing and is pointed out today as "Riddle's Oak." This was before King's Mountain and it broke the back of Tory warfare in this section of the country.

After the close of the war David and John engaged in the business of raising and dealing in fine horses. So frequent and daring were the raids of horse thieves that a great deal of their time was occupied in running them down and delivering to the civil authorities. Upon one occasion they had captured Sale Coffee, a nephew of Ben. Cleveland, and while he was under guard John Cleveland, a brother of Ben, commenced throwing whiskey into the guards' faces to give Coffee a chance to escape. David Witherspoon said to the Sheriff, "If I was on guard I would shoot that fellow". The Sheriff summoned him to take his gun and stand guard, when Cleveland rushed up, seized his gun and attempted to wrench it from him, but David drew his gun back close to his body and fired, the ball passing completely through Cleveland's body. So close was the shot that his clothes were set on fire. Cleveland finally recovered. David was tried and fined $100 and costs. When he called to pay this to the clerk of the county court he found that someone he could never ascertain who — had paid it for him.

The Clevelands had become extremely unpopular and this was a very popular act. As a result of this occurrence a feud arose between the Witherspoons and Clevelands which lasted many years. At one time a challenge for a duel was exchanged between Col. Ben. Cleveland and John Witherspoon. They met in Wilkesboro armed for that purpose, but the people got together and prevented it.

He took a prominent part in civil affairs and was twice a member of the House of Representatives from Wilkes County, North Carolina. His record is given in the book, King's Mountain Men. In 1827 he moved to Jackson County, Georgia, and in May, 1828, went to visit his sister, Mary Harbin, at Fair Play, Oconee County, South Carolina, and was taken suddenly ill and died at her home and was buried there.

He visited Dr. John Witherspoon, President of Princeton, and corres-responded with him. He lived in Wilkes County, N. C.

L55 – K26 JAMES WITHERSPOON (_____1760 – 22 Apr. 1790)
Unmarried:

He also died during the epidemic of French measles, April 22, 1790. He was not married. His will was probated on the 29th of April and one of the witnesses was Ann Donnahue, a young lady to whom he was engaged at the time of his death and who was so much attached to him that she remained single throughout her life, and a short time prior to her death she conveyed all of her property to Joshua Witherspoon for the reason that he looked so much like James, her intended husband. Her heirs-at-law brought action against Joshua Witherspoon to have this deed set aside, but after long litigation he was successful and acquired a large amount of property from this source. James was also buried in Wilkes County by his father, and the stone bears this incription: "Here lies the body of James Witherspoon Deceased April 22, 1790. Aged 27 years. Stop youth, remember you were born to die."

John was born in Pennsylvania Oct. 14, 1763 and died in Wayne County, Tenn., in 1839; he was a private in Capt. Joel Lewis' and Col. Benjamin Cleveland's regiment at King's Mountain (Oct. 7, 1780) when barely 17 years of age; lived two years with his uncle or cousin, Dr. John Witherspoon, President of Princeton.

John Witherspoon, after the Revolutionary War, served one or two terms in the state legislature, and later removed to Williamson County, Tenn., and later to Wayne County in said state." (letter of Donald Witherspoon).

Col. John's grandson, James Green Witherspoon, (N296) states about 1905, that Col. John served under Gen. Nathaniel Greene as a subordinate officer, also that he moved to Nashville, Tenn., when it was a fort. His application for a pension was dated Sept., 1832.

He served in the Revolution under General Pickens and General Greene in North Carolina, and also rendered valiant service at King's Mountain. In 1832 John made application for pension and this application has been preserved in the Pension Office at Washington, D. C. In this application he states that the record is in his Bible of his birth on the 14th day of October 1763 in the state of Pennsylvania. At the time of his application he was living in Wayne County, Tennessee. This gives a complete record of his service and says that he entered the service in July 1780 and served about 15 months during which time he was wounded. John married Elizabeth Shute in 1796 and they had 13 children. They lived in Tennessee near Duck River and many of their descendants still live in that vicinity — Wayne County.

The following is copied from "State of Tennessee, Wayne County Court of Pleas and Quarter Sessions, September Term, 1832.

"On this 25th day of September 1832, personally appeared in open court before the justices of said County now in session, John Witherspoon, (14 Oct. 1763) a resident of Wayne County aforesaid, and State of Tennessee, aged sixty-nine years, who being first duly sworn , according to law, doth on his oath make the following declaration, in order to obtain the benefit of the act of Congress passed June 7, 1832: That he entered the service of the United States under the following named officers and served as herein stated, under Benjamin Cleveland, Colonel; Micajor Lewis, Major; and Captain Moses Guess; this was the first tour. Second tour, Colonel Cleveland, as above stated; Major Lewis, same as above stated; Captain Joel Lewis (who died at Nashville, Tennessee); Lieutenant Townson, Colonel Cambell, Colonel Savier, Colonel Shelby, Colonel Williams. I entered the service in the month of July, the latter part, in 1780 in the State of North Carolina, County of Wilkes. From there we marched to Ramsour's Mill in the state aforesaid. The battle was over before we got there. There we joined General Rutherford; from there I returned home, and from there I was marched by one Beverly, who took command of us as a Captain, but was not commissioned. He marched us to Burk County, where we were taken under the command of Major McDowell; from thence we were marched near the Cowpens, where we joined Colonel Pickens of South Carolina. General Morgan commanded there. I was in the battle at this place. Colonel Howard commanded the Maryland line at this place; from here I returned home for some clothes, and went under Captain Joel Lewis. From thence I was marched to the neighborhood of Hillsborough and joined General Pickens and Colonel Lewis. From here we went to the Hawfields, where we defeated the enemies under Colonel Piles. From thence I went, under Captain Simmons, as a volunteer to reconnoiter the British at Hillsborough. We charged on the pickets at Hart's Mill near Hillsborough. Here we took the whole of the grinders and guard prisoners, and on the next day joined Captain Lewis, my former Captain. In a few days we returned to Whitsit's Mill on the Reedy Fork. Here we attacked part of Lord Cornwallis' army, which was commanded by Colonel Webster. We were commanded by Colonel Arthur Williams, who acted as General in place of Morgan, who was sick. Here I was wounded by a sword of a British dragoon. Major Lewis was here mortally wounded and died the same night after being wounded. From here we marched to the High Rock-ford on Haw River; here we had a cannonading; from here we marched to the shallow ford on the Yadkin River, under General Pickens, for the purpose of breaking up some Tories. From thence I returned home to get some clothes and refreshments. There, I joined Captain Gordon, and David Witherspoon and Lieutenant Silas Hempkins Ens. From thence we marched to Camden, in the State of South Carolina, under the command of Colonel Lock. Near this place we joined General Green. After this I was put under one Colonel Demalburry, a Frenchman. I went out on a scout one or two days at the battle of the Eutaw Springs. Here I remained in the army until I was discharged. I served in all about fifteen months. Returned home to Wilkes County, aforesaid, where I remained until the fall of the year, 1793 or 1794, and from thence I moved to the neighborhood of Nashville, Tennessee, and there I remained until the year 1827. I removed to Wayne County, in said State, where I now remain. I know of no person by whom I can prove the above service and I have no documentary evidence to establish same. I was born in the State of Pennsylvania, 14th of October, 1763. I have a record of it in my Bible. I refer to William Barnett and John Criner as to the veracity and report on my life and reputation.

I hereby relinquish every claim whatsoever to a pension or annuity except the present, and declare that my name is not on the pension roll of the agency of any state or county.

JOHN WITHERSPOON

Sworn to and subscribed in open court the date first above written. Witness: WILLIAM BARNETT, Clerk.

The following is copied from the State of Tennessee, Wayne County, Court of Pleas Quarter Sessions, June Term, 1833.

Be it remembered that on this the 5th June 1833, JOHN WITHERSPOON (L56) came into open court and made the following declaration as an amendment to his former declaration heretofore made, to wit, on the 25th September 1832, and prays that this may be attached to the same and together with the original, transmitted to the War Department.

"I entered the service as a private soldier and short time after I entered the service I was appointed by Captain Joseph Lewis a Corporal in the Company, and in a short period after this I was appointed a Sergeant in the same Company and served out a tour of three months. I served under Captain Beverly and the above-named Lewis a second tour of four months.

The time I was under command of each I cannot positively state. This term of service I was a private soldier. I also served a tour of three months under Captain Guess as a private soldier. I also served a tour of five months as a private soldier under Captain Alexander Gordon in Colonel Lock's Regiment.

"I transferred to de Malbery Regiment. I refer to William B. Lewis, Auditor; the Hon. Hugh L. White, Hon. Felix Grundy, Hon. John Bell, Hon. James K. Polk and to the President of the United States, who are all well acquainted with me.

2. Frances (_____ 1805 – _____)

She married after the Revolutionary War, Thomas Wylie Harbin (1760 – 1808) of Fair Play Oconee County, South Carolina. It was said that Mary, when a mere girl, carried a private dispatch to General Washington and that she had to swim her horse across a creek with the banks overflowing. Their daughter, Frances Witherspoon Harbin (1805 – _____), married Henry Farmer Chandler, of Tugalo River, Ga. He was a member of the Georgia Legislature about 1848. Their daughter, Mary Harbin Chandler (1833 – _____) married A. Sloan Stephens, and their daughter, Mary Frances Stephens (1870 – _____) married Henry Lafayette Adams of N. C.; her residence in 1909 was 327 N. Tryon Street, Charlotte, N. C., 1934, Anderson, S. C.

The following is a letter of Mrs. H. L. Adams written to Mr. James Harvey Phillips of Tampa, Fla.
Dear Sir:

Your Uncle, Dr. R. G. Witherspoon of Anderson, S. C., has advised me to consult you in regard to the Witherspoon family as you have made a thorough study of it. My great grand Mother, Mary Witherspoon married Thomas Harbin. They had land grants on Beaverdam Creek in the upper part of South Carolina. To establish my claim as a lineal descendant of John Witherspoon, I must find which one was her father – I fancy though, without any authority for saying it – that she was one of the sisters or a granddaughter of John Witherspoon. If you can help me in any way to establish my claim, I will certainly appreciate it.

The following is a letter dated Jan. 26, 1909 from Mrs. H. L. Adams to Mr. Phillips:

Dear Mr. Phillips,

Truly I am under lasting obligation to you for your promptness in replying to my many querys and for valuable information given me about the Witherspoons. Thomas Wylie Harbin and Mary Witherspoon (L57) and their daughter was Frances Witherspoon Harbin married Henry Farmer Chandler and their daughter Mary Harbin Chandler married A. Silvan Stephens and their daughter Mary Frances Stephens married Henry Lafayette Adams. I am not giving you dates but this is my correct lineal descent from Mary Witherspoon as I have told you before we know absolutely nothing of Thos. W. Harbin. He came to S. C., after the Revolutionary War. Miss Lexington writes me, she has much more data of the Harbins than Witherspoons and after I get the Witherspoons untangled I shall have Miss Lexington to give me the Harbin line – although I prefer the Witherspoon. Will you kindly tell me which part of the Coat of Arms is red, gold, and silver? I want to have one painted, for framing going back to Mary Witherspoon, Mr. J. S. Turner writes me that Mary Witherspoon Mother was a Miss Pettigrew – daughter of James Pettigrew.

Hoping to have another prompt reply I am sincerely,

Mrs. H. L. Adams

Abner married 1842, Mary Greenlee Stewart, whose granddaughter Ouida Ragsdale (1875 –) m. 1895, J. R. Bradfield of Dallas, Texas.

Martha Witherspoon, daughter of John and Martha, was born in North Carolina November 17, 1771, was seven years old when her father died and left her rearing to her mother for whom she was named. The Witherspoon family was strict Presbyterian, but when Francis Asbury held a camp meeting in their neighborhood, when Martha was fourteen years old, she went to hear him and joined the Methodist Church. This so enraged the family that they sent her to her Uncle David's, a hundred miles away, until she was willing to give up this new religion. But on the next visit of the preacher to the vicinity, the family decided to hear for themselves and they all joined the new Methodist Church, brought Martha home, and invited the preacher to hold his next service in their home. Later Thomas, brother of Martha, named one of his sons Wesley for the founder of this new church.

It is said that while Martha Witherspoon was living at her Uncle David's she met a young man who had come there to work. His name was Kenneth McKenzie, whose ancestry was also Scotch. They were married in March, 1794, and the original marriage bond is in possession of the North Carolina Historical Society at Raleigh, date March 20, 1794, in Wilkes County.

Four sons and five daughters were born to this couple. In 1824, Kenneth McKenzie decided to move his family to Georgia and he and one son went with a wagon load of their household goods to that state. When they were near Rome, or Athens, something frightened his team and they ran away, throwing him out and injuring him so badly that he died and was buried in Georgia. The son returned to North Carolina and his mother and her children continued to live there.

One son, John Witherspoon McKenzie, was sent to the University of Georgia and graduated there in 1824, was licensed to preach in the Methodist Church in 1833, went to Tennessee, later to Indian Territory as a missionary to the Indians, from which place he crossed the Red River into Texas where he established churches. Because of the hardships of traveling in all kinds of weather over long distances on horseback, his health failed and about 1836 he established a school with sixteen pupils. This school grew and in 1860 had more than 400 students, boys and girls, boarding on the school grounds. It was the most famous school of its time with students from four states, but was broken up by the War Between the States. Religion was the most important factor in this school and few left there without having professed religion and uniting with some church. Many early Methodist preachers of Texas were once students at this school.

Martha Witherspoon McKenzie remained in North Carolina and made her home in McDowell County near the town of Dysertsville where she died July 6, 1855 and was buried on a little knoll that was selected by her as it was her favorite spot. One of her sons and three of her daughters never married and made their home with their mother until her death. These four children all lived to ripe old ages and died in North Carolina.

Two sons went to Texas, and one went to New Orleans where he lived and died. His descendants are in North Carolina and Texas.

Jane married Cleveland Coffey and moved the same year to Kentucky and located in Madison County, later moving to Russell County. Elijah Coffey, their son, lived in 1873 at Liberty, Casey County, Kentucky.

"Mrs. J. R. Bradfield (Ouida Ragsdale) of 3807 Gillen Avenue, Dallas, Texas is a descendant of Martha Witherspoon who married Kenneth McKenzie. She has written me hundreds of pages of information of the family, which constitutes the large part of this sketch. I am greatly indebted to her for this service.

Mr. Bradfield is a linotype operator for a Dallas newspaper, who usually has a month's vacation in the summer. He and Mrs. Bradfield get in their car generally and start immediately and spend the most of the time traveling and have toured most sections and nearly all of the States of the Union." – Wm. B. William Weatherspoon, Jr. served in the Revolutionary War. He was a private in the Continental Line of the North Carolina Militia. He served for eighty-four months, and received for that service, a grant of land from the state of North Carolina – six hundred and forty acres of land located on Station Camp Creek, Sumners County, Tenn., then still a part of N. C. This he traded to Mathew Kerkendole, grant dated May 20, 1793, and land transfers in Wake County show him as a substantial land owner of that county at his death at the age of 75.

There had been lean years during the Revolution and many that followed, as all crops and products from the plantations had been taken to feed the Continental Army with only a slip of paper in return.

Most plantations from Raleigh to the coast lay in waste along the path of the Tory Army.

Commencement of a pension, March 4, 1831. He received $141.96. The Roster of Revolutionary War soldiers states him as being seventy five years old at the time of his death on 6 Sept. 1833. His will was made on August 31, 1817 and was registered in February term of court 1818, at Wake County Court House, Raleigh, N. C.

WILLIAM WITHERSPOON came to America in 1790 or 1791 with his wife, Mary, and two children, John and Elizabeth. At least one brother, Samuel, came with him. They were a part of that great emigration of Scotch-Irish who came to America following the Revolution. They were Seceder Presbyerians, and apparently all came from the Scotch clan of Witherspoons. Some Witherspoon families went to northern Ireland as early as 1712 and it is believed that this branch of the Witherspoon families came from Ireland on census records. John's daughter, Drusilla, stated many times that her father was five years old when he came to America. There is some disagreement between Bible records and tombstone inscriptions as to whether John was born in 1785 or 1786.

This family must have gone on rather soon to Western Pennsylvania, the frontier of pioneer settlement in the early 1790s, because we find both Samuel and William Witherspoon on the Tax List of 1793 in Chartiers Township, Washington County, Pennsylvania, at Cannonsburg. There Samuel married Nancy Agness Dobbins, whose family came to America at the same time as the Witherspoon family.

It is not known just when William went from there to Beaver County, but in 1809 we find a deed recording purchase of land on Big Travis Creek, Hanover Township, Beaver County, Deeds are recorded in Beaver County as follows:

Deed Book B, page 477. Thomas Stephens to William Witherspoon, part of a tract of land (72 acres) on which the said Stephens now resides, and which was patented to the said Thomas Stephens, on the 7th day of May 1788 and enrolled in the Rolls office of the State of Pennsylvania in Pat. Book No. 14 Page 178. Dated 1809, Deed Book D, Page 315, Thomas Stephens to William Witherspoon three tracts of land on Big Travis Creek, Hanover township, Beaver County, April 3, 1822.

Deed Book F, Page 315, William Witherspoon to John Witherspoon, two of the above tracts of land on Big Travis Creek, Hanover Twp., Beaver County (88 acres), April 5, 1822. Signed by William and Mary Witherspoon.

Deed Book E, Page 500, William Witherspoon to John Witherspoon, three tracts of land on Big Travis Creek, Hanover Twp. Beaver County (66 acres) dated Nov. 12, 1832. Signed only by William, indicating that Mary had died.

In these early years, Beaver County was still a wilderness in which these hardy pioneer settlers were often threatened with Indian raids, a constant source of danger until after the War of 1812. Most of this area is now a part of Raccoon State Park, where an effort is being made to preserve its natural wooded beauty and wildlife.

William deeded his land at Frankfort Springs to his eldest son, John, in 1822. Mary Witherspoon, wife of William, died at Enon Valley, October 23, 1832, and it is believed that both she and William are buried in the Bethel Church Cemetery five miles north of Enon Valley. Mary's death is recorded in the Bible of her daughter, Elizabeth Allison.

During his later years, William made his home with his daughter, Jane Dungan, wife of Thomas Dungan, whose family were very early settlers at Frankfort Springs. Mary Ramsay, another daughter of William, lived at Enon Valley, as well as the daughter Margaret who married John Witherspoon, son of William's brother Samuel.

William Witherspoon's death is recorded in a Bible in the possession of Robert W. Evans, 130 Elm Street, Oberlin, Ohio, who is a descendant of Williams's daughter, Jane Dugan. According to that record, William died May 29, 1841, at the age of 83 years.

The names of the children of William and Mary Witherspoon and the dates of their birth are recorded in at least two old Bibles. One is in the possession of Mr. William Allison of Carrollton, Ohio, and the other is in the possession of Mr. Floyd Witherspoon, R. F. D. 1, Enon Valley, Penn.

Samuel Witherspoon, of Scotch ancestry, was born in Ireland and came to America about 1790 or 1791. He was married to Nancy Agness Dobbins, whose family also came to America from Ireland at the same time the Witherspoon family. They settled at Canonsburg, in Washington County, Pennsylvania. He was a tailor by trade. Samuel and his brother, William, were taxed in Chartiers Township, Washington County, Pennsylvania, in 1793.

The date of Samuel's birth is not known, though he must have been born at least by 1760 to 1765. His untimely death occurred in 1805. Sometime after his death, his wife and children moved into the woods of Northern Beaver County, where his only son, John, helped his mother rear the family. They resided from about 1805 to 1820 in Shenango Township, and Big Beaver Twnsp. probably living close to some of her Dobbins relatives as we find residents by that name in the same area.

By 1820, John Witherspoon, now a young man, bought land at Enon Valley. There he built his mother and sister a log house, and another for his bride, Margaret Witherspoon, whom he married in 1821. Margaret's father, William Witherspoon, brother of Samuel, also moved to Enon Valley at about the same time.

Nancy Agness Witherspoon, b. 1765, d. 1849, while visiting a daughter who was residing in Mercer County, Pennsylvania at that time. She was buried in Fair Oaks Cemetery.

Moved to Newton Co., Mo., from Rutherford Co., Tenn. He is listed in the 1850 census taken in June. He lived with his newphew, Robert Boyd, in 1850. They are buried in Newton Co., Mo. Joseph came from Penn. to New Castle Del., and into Va.

The first mention of Joseph Witherspoon in the Tennessee records is in Sumner County in 1799 at which time he is named as one of the hands appointed to work with Anthony Sharp, overseer of "that part of the road from where the road from Green Town in Kentucky intersects the State line, to the Nashville Road near David Taylor's." (Sumner County Order Book, Vol. 3, 1796 – 1802 – July Term 1799). This is the only reference to Joseph in Sumner County.

In that same year, Wilson County was cut from Sumner. Joseph's name appears in 1803 on the earliest tax list extant of Wilson County. He is also on the tax lists of 1805 and 1806, but no deeds show in the record books for the land on which he paid taxes. In 1806 he registered in Wilson County the ear mark of his stock as "a crop and 2 splits in the left ear, and a swallow fork in the right.

Joseph's first deed of record is in 1810 in Rutherford County when he is described as being of "Wilson County", when he buys at a Sheriff's sale 160 acres of a 640 acre tract from James Sanders and George Smith of Sumner County, for the sum of $40.50. The land lay "on the first creek that empties into the East fork of Stone River above the mouth of Bradley's Creek and in Rutherford County." This deed was proven at the April 1811 term of Court in Rutherford County.

From 1811 to 1838 many deeds are on file in this County between Joseph and his sons and also between the various sons. To list them all would not be possible.

In 1837 one son, Thomas Addison Witherspoon, (N19) departed for Alabama with his family. In 1850 he was in Dade County, Georgia; and in 1860 in Ellis County, Texas. He became a minister of the Church of Christ.

The following year, 1838, Joseph and Jane Witherspoon, with their 14 year old son, Alexander Donnell, Son William and family, son David and his family, left Rutherford County, Tenn., for Missouri. This left only one son, Winfrey, who stayed in Rutherford County, dying there on Feb. 26, 1852.

The Boyd and Witherspoon emigrants come together from Ireland to Iradell Co., N. C., consisting of John Boyd, Robert Boyd, James, Josiah and William Boyd.

M12 – L6 Capt. JAMES WITHERSPOON (20 Mar. 1759 – 9 Sept. 1791)
M: 8 Jan. 1782 Nancy White (—— 1765 – —— 1797)
Issue:
1. Robert Lynn (30 Dec. 1782 – 23 Dec. 1814)
2. James Hervey (20 Nov. 1784 – 27 June 1842)
3. George White (20 Mar. 1787 – 3 Jan. 1834)
4. Martha Ann (—— 1789 – —— 1790)

He was born March 20, 1759, in Williamsburg Township or District, S. C., and died there Sept. 29, 1791, of a visious billous fever and inflamation of the brain. He was nearly six feet high and weighed over 200 pounds, was dignified and courteous, very active, energetic and athletic, intelligent and of fine sense and judgement, without the advantages of a liberal education, a fine talker, strictly sober and moral, without being a member of the church, which he regretted. He had fine blue eyes, a prominent nose and forehead, his whole countenance being of the Roman type. He was exceedingly brave, very popular and greatly respected for his good sense, courage and engaging manners.

On July 15, 1781, he was commissioned 1st Lieutenant of Captain John McBride's company, Col. Archibald McDonald's regiment, by Gen. Francis Marion. The original commission is now in the possession of the family of his great-grandson, Capt. Barlett Jones Witherspoon, of Lancaster, S. C. (1910). (See Books X, page 976 and Y, Page 987, Rev. Records in office of Secretary of State, Columbia, S. C.

On April 16, 1782, he was promoted to be Captain of the Kingstree Company. The original commission is also in the hands of the family of Capt. B. J. Witherspoon (1910), a faithful copy being as follows:

"State of South Carolina, by His Excellency, John Mathews, Esqr., Governor and Commander-in-Chief of said State.

"To James Witherspoon, Esqr:

"I, reposing special Trust and Confidence in your courage and good conduct, in your Fidelity and attachment to the United States of America, have commissioned and appointed and by these Presents do commission and appoint you the said James Witherspoon to be Captain of the King's Tree Company you are to Lead, Muster, and Exercise according to Military Discipline, and you are to follow and observe such orders and Instructions as you shall from time to time receive from the Governor, the Commander-in-Chief for the time being, or from any of your Superior Officers according to the Rules and Discipline of War, pursuant to the Laws of the State. And all inferior officers and others belonging to the said Company are hereby required and commanded to obey you as their Captain. This commission to continue during pleasure.

"Given under my hand and seal. April 16th, A. D., 1782. Seventh year of the Independence of the United States of America. JOHN MATHEWS."

This latter commission, as Captain, was sent to James Witherspoon with the following letter from General Marion:

"St. Stephens, April 14, 1782

"Sir:

"Inclosed is a commission to command the King's Tree Company, and hope you will accept it, and let no trifling matter induce you to refuse. In these times when our country calls for men of bravery and ability, such as you, no good man, well-wisher to his country ought to resign or shun the service, and it gives me great pleasure to see you at the head of a Company, which I know will be let on by a man whose conduct and spirit I have been an eye'witness of, whom I have always had the highest opinion of, and the highest regard for. I am your obedient servant,

FRANCIS MARION."

This autograph letter was for many years in the possession of the family, as well as a wine glass said to have been used by Captain Witherspoon and General Marion, but they were lost during the Confederate War. A copy of this letter is in Bibbs' Documentary History 1776 – 1782, page 171 and reference is made to the young Captain in James' Life of Marion, pages 153-161.

He is said to have been one of the most popular officers from Williamsburg and had the confidence of his superior officer, Marion, Harry, Postel and James; he was engaged in most of the battles of the Revolution fought in South Carolina. He was interred in the old Meeting House graveyard, near his wife's family. He married, 1782, Nancy White; she was born at Kingstree in 1765 and died at Indiantown in 1797. After his death she married Col. Alexander Calcleug, of Sumter (in 1793), by whom she had a son, dying in infancy.

She was possibly the daughter of George White, the son of Moses White and Mary Campbell, who were originally from the West of Scotland, but emigrated to Ireland, and then to Lancaster County, Pa. George White was granted 500 acres of land on Lynch's Creek, S. C., 1762 and 1765. . .

8. Elizabeth Heathly (16 May 1819 – 22 Aug. 1820)
9. Hamilton Gaillard (24 Nov. 1824 – 22 Feb. 1873)

He was born in Williamsburg, Jan. 29, 1776, and died in Sumter County, S. C., at his plantation "Coldstream", in 1837.

He was elected Treasurer of the State of South Carolina in 1800; member of State Legislature in 1806, and in 1809 was elected to Congress where he ably represented his district until 1811 when he declined a re-election and returned to his plantation where he lived in easy circumstances.

His influence was widespread, he was a leader in his section and noted for his intelligence, great integrity and piety. On Nov. 14, 1793, he married his cousin, Janet JAMES, daughter of his first cousin, Major John James of Indian Town, S. C. (1732 – 91).

On Jan. 21, 1808, he married second Elizabeth, daughter of Col. Thomas McFadden (1759 – 1823) and Sarah Witherspoon (1762 – 1820), who was a daughter of John Witherspoon (1730 – 1805). Elizabeth McFadden's mother, Sarah Witherspoon, was a first cousin of Hon. Robert Witherspoon, Elizabeth was born in 1759 and died in 1858.

Hon. Robert Witherspoon was violently opposed to Nullification in 1832. He was interred at Salem (brick) church near his home, "Coldstream". "The Christian, the Patriot and the Gentleman, respected and revered by all who knew him for his integrity, intelligence and virtue" is on his tomb.

10. William Alfred (13 Jan. 1830 – 30 Nov. 1867)
11. Ann Louise (31 Mar. 1832 – ——— 1891)

He was born in Williamsburg District, S. C., March 17, 1774, and died at his plantation "Brookland", near Greensboro, Ala., May 9, 1852, at age 78. He is buried in the old "Stokes" Cemetery (north) of Greensboro, Alabama. His monument bears the inscription "Honored, Loved and Mourned".

He graduated at the College of New Jersey, (Princeton) in 1794, in the last class under Dr. John Witherspoon (1722 – 1794), the President and Signer of the Declaration of Independence, whose amanuensis (or Secretary) he was during the last two years of his life, the old Doctor being blind in both eyes during his latter years from two accidents. At his graduation he tendered the usual fee, which was a gold English sovereign, to the President, but he declined to accept it and said, "Oh no, John! I feel that I am indebted to you, instead of you to me, for acting as my amanuensis during the past two years."

In the preface of his Witherspoon Genealogy dated May 12, 1840, Dr. John Ramsay Witherspoon (1774 – 1852) says: "For the brief notice of his ancestors prior to 1670, he has been indebted to his venerated friend and preceptor, the late Reverend Doctor (John) Witherspoon, President of the College of New Jersey (Princeton), who was induced from traditional facts and other circumstances common alike to his own and the writer's ancestry, to consider both as descended from the same original stock in Scotland." According to my (R. S. W.) conclusion, Rev. Dr. John Witherspoon, the Signer, "was a triple second cousin of Dr. John Ramsay Witherspoon's grandfather, James Witherspoon" (1700 – 60). They were both descended from John Knox (1505 – 72). (Traditionally fifth in descent.) Anne Walker (1696 – 1787) the SIGNER'S mother, was a great-granddaughter of Luyse Welsh (born 1613), who was a granddaughter of John Knox, and likewise James Witherspoon (1700 – 68), the father of Robert Witherspoon (1774 – 1852), and grandfather of Dr. John Ramsay Witherspoon (1774 – 1852), was also a great-grandson of Luyse Welsh. The SIGNER'S father, Rev. James Witherspoon III (1691 – 1759), was a grandson of Rev. James Witherspoon I or Jr. James Witherspoon (1700 – 68) was also a great grandson of Rev. James Witherspoon I (1610 – 1649), through his father John and his mother, Janet Witherspoon (1670 – 1734). As all information so far obtained indicates she was the daughter of Rev. James Witherspoon II (1640 –). This would make John, the Signer's son, a triple third cousin of Robert Witherspoon (1728 – 88).

Degree of M. D. was conferred on Dr. John Ramsay Witherspoon by Transylvania University, Lexington, Ky., March 19, 1823. He practiced medicine in Charleston, S. C., until 1810 when he moved to Lexington, Ky. He was a member of the South Carolina and Kentucky legislatures. A Ruling Elder in the Williamsburg, S. C., Church. "Was a noted man in his day, fine physician, quite literary, author of several works and greatly respected for his learning and integrity. He continued his father's (Robert's) genealogy to 1840. He was married three times and we copy what he says of his wives; "I married Jane Harrison (1780 – 1808), only daughter of Rev. Dr. Daniel and Mrs. Eliza (Todd) McCalla, at Pine Grove, Christ Church Paris, near Charleston, S. C., Dec. 21, 1802, married by Rev. Dr. (William) Hollingshead (1748 – 1817) of Charleston (where he was pastor of the "Circular" Independent Presbyterian Church from 1783 to 1817; she was (her mother was the second daughter of Rev. John Todd, of Louisa County, Va.) born in Louisa County, Va., October 15, 1780, and died in Christ Church Parish, Feb. 28, 1808, buried between her parents in the cemetery of the Wappetaw church, 17 miles northeast of Charleston!"

"Married second Mary Ann Todd (1794 – 1812) near Lexington, Ky., Nov. 13, 1810. She was the eldest daughter, born March 27, 1794, while her brave and patriotic father (General and Judge Robert Todd, who was wounded at battle of Blue Licks, Ky., Aug. 18, 1782, and McClellan's Fort) was engaged in fighting the battles of his country in the North-Western Army under General Anthony Wayne. She died without issue at the Wappetaw

Farm, August 25, 1812, age 18, and was interred near her parents in cemetery near Lexington, Ky. It may be said of each of these estimable women, as of Mary, Queen of Scots, that youth, beauty, innocence, virtue, all combined to render them lovely.' Mary Ann Todd's younger sister, Eliza J., married in 1817 General William Orlando Butler (1791 – 1880), who served under Gen. Andrew Jackson in the War of 1812, taking part in the Battle of New Orleans, and he fought with distinction in the Mexican War. In 1848 he succeeded Gen. Winfield Scott as commander of the United States Army in Mexico. Her first cousin, Robert Smith Todd (son of Gen. John Todd, killed at battle of Blue Licks, Ky. in 1782) (1791 – 1848) was the father of MARY TODD (1818 – 82) who married ABRAHAM LINCOLN (1809 – 65), sixteenth President of the United States.

"Married third Sophie Graham (20 Feb. 1791 – 20 Dec. 1865), eldest daughter of General Joseph (1759 – 1836) and Mrs. Isabella (Davidson) Graham (1761 – 1808) of Lincoln County, N. C., May 2, 1815, an estimable woman.

"Being the oldest daughter, she (Sophia), at the death of her mother in 1808, had, when she was only 17 years of age, to assume the cares of the family and the rearing of the younger children . . . . She performed the duties with faithfulness, consideration and affection. She was regarded as a typical older sister and daughter and remembered with great love and pleasure by those to whom she had given her attention and affection. Died 1865. Buried in Charlotte." (See General Joseph Graham and his Revolutionary Papers, by Major William A. Graham, 1904). Governor of N. C., William A. Graham (1804 – 75), her youngest brother, was reared under Sophia Graham's supervision.

Varnum Lansing Collings in his President Witherspoon, 1925, Vol. I, page 233, says: – "During the last two years of his life he (Rev. Dr. John Witherspoon, 1722 – 94, the "SIGNER..) employed as his amanuensis third cousin, John Ramsay Witherspoon, who entered college in November 1792, as a sophomore. It is to him, next to Dr. Ashbel Green that we owe most of our knowledge of Dr. Witherspoon's personality."

"The principal manuscript of Dr. Ashbel Green's sketch (of Rev. Dr. John Witherspoon) is preserved in New Jersey Historical Society's Library at Newark, N. J. Dr. John Witherspoon (1722 – 1794) in his Scotch dialect pronounced his name WOTHERSPOON though he spelled it WITHERSPOON."

"The Presbyterian Church at Williamsburg, a M. S. History by Dr. John Ramsay Witherspoon (1774 – 1852), M. D., of Grookland, Ala., a descendant of John Witherspoon (1670 – 1737), the emigrant to South Carolina in 1734, is quoted in the History of the Presbyterian Church in South Carolina, by George Howe, D. D., Vol. 1, page 578 (1870).

History of Kentucky, by Lewis Collins, 1882, states: – Vol. 1, page 30: Dec. 18, 1821, John R. Witherspoon (one of six) appointed " (Dec. 18, 1821) to confer with eminent educators, collect information and prepare a plan of common schools, to be supported by these revenues, made an able and elaborate report to the next General Assembly in 1822, with an accompanying report from the Governor of Kentucky, the Honorable George Robertson." Vol. 2, page 170: "House of Representatives – from Fayette County John R. Witherspoon, 1821 – 22."

Dr. John Ramsay Witherspoon, M. D., was the author of Genealogy and Biographical Sketches of the Witherspoon Family, 1670 to 1840, dated "Brookland", near Greensboro, Hale County, Alabama, 12th May 1840, which together with his History of the Williamsburg Church, was burned, it is thought, with the residence of his daughter, Mrs. Eliza Isabella Goldthwaite (1816 – 84), in Mobile, Ala., in 1879. Only partial copies of the "Genealogy" and "History" have been found.

History of the Presbyterian Church in S. C., by George Howe, D. D., 1870, states: – "Daniel McCalla, D. D. born Penn. 1748 – died S. C. 1809. Licensed by first Presbytery of Philadelphia, 1772, Minister at church of Wappetaw, S. C. 1788 for 21 years. This church was incorporated as the Independent Church in Christ Church parish 1786." Vol. 2, pp. 34, 36, and 37 has the following: – "Obituary and sketch of Dr. McCalla. Graduated at Princeton, 1766, A. B., when 18 years of age. (Had) Academy at Hanover County, Va., 1776. His only daughter, Jane Harrison McCalla (1780 – 1808), married Dr. John Ramsay Witherspoon and died aged 28. In 1810 two volumes of his works, edited by his son-in-law, Dr. John Ramsay Witherspoon, were published with notices of his life by Dr. William Hollingshead (1748 – 1817), D. D., who married his sister, and was pastor of the (Circular) Independent Church, Charleston, S. C. 1783 – 1817). Dr. McCalla married Eliza (June 8, 1758 – November 3, 1809) second daughter of Rev. John Todd, ("Parson") of Louisa County, Va." Another daughter of Rev. John Todd, the "parson" of Va., married General (and Judge) Robert Todd, her cousin of Ky., and their daughter, Mary Ann Todd (1794 – 1812), married in 1810, Dr. John Ramsay Witherspoon, as his second wife, and died without issue in 1812.

Dr. Daniel McCalla, before his death in 1809, gave to Dr. John Ramsay Witherspoon, to be handed down to his son, Daniel McCalla Witherspoon, (Dr. McCalla's grandson), and to the eldest son through succeeding generations, the old "Manuscript Bible", which is written by hand in German text on parchment, in Latin, and illuminated; it was the work of a Monk who lived in Cornwall, England, and was begun about the year 850 A. D. and finished about 40 years later, after the death of the Monk who started it, by another Monk. This Bible was loaned to Dr. William Hollingshead (brother-in-law of Dr. McCalla), who took it on to Harvard University to show it, and while it was in Massachusetts in 1817, he died and Dr. John Ramsay Witherspoon had much difficulty in getting possession of it again. But through Judge William Johnson, an Associate Justice of the U. S. Supreme Court, it was finally started back to him in Kentucky, but the ship touched at Philadelphia and was sunk for three days in the Schuylkill River there, and when it was raised the Bible showed the effects of water upon it, which were still visible in 1903, when in possession of Thos. Casey Witherspoon, (O77) of St. Louis, Mo., who said he had been offered $20,000 for it, some years before, by Princeton University. Dr. Thomas Casey Witherspoon (1868 – 1917), M. D. of Butte, Montana, eldest son of Thomas Casey Witherspoon (1836 – 1917), of St. Louis, Mo., in 1903, was the next in line to inherit this Bible.

A portrait of Dr. John Ramsay Witherspoon was painted by Matthew Harris Jouett (1788 – 1827), of Lexington, Ky., about 1821, while Dr. John Ramsay Witherspoon was a member of the Kentucky Legislature and a trustee of Transylvania University. (Dr. Witherspoon was elected to the Board of Trustees of Transylvania University on April 29, 1815. Mrs. Betty B. Graves, Lexington, Ky., March 4, 1938). Jouett was a pupil of Gilbert Charles Stuart (1756 – 1828) in Boston, Mass., during 1816 – 17. Among his most celebrated portraits are the following: HENRY CLAY, JOHN J. CRITTENDEN, GENERAL ISAAC SHELBY, (the first Governor of Kentucky), the MARSHALLS of Kentucky, the Marquis De Lafayette and others. "The portrait of General LaFayette was ordered by the State of Kentucky in 1825 and was haning in the House of Representatives hall, State Capitol, Frankfort, Ky., in 1874, where it still hangs (1934) in the same building, now used as a State Museum."

Judge William Johnson (1771 – 1834), an Associate Justice of the United States Supreme Court (1804 – 1834) and Dr. John Ramsay Witherspoon were college mates at Princeton, N. J., and both having lived in Charleston, S. C., were very warm friends. They each had their portrait painted by Jouett and being so well pleased with his work they ordered replicas, so as to exchange portraits with each other and each keep one of himself for his own family. About 1821 – 25 Daniel McCalla Witherspoon (1805 – 55), son of Dr. John Ramsay Witherspoon, and Charles Worthington Johnson (1805 – _____), son of Col. Baker Johnson, of Frederick, Md., became college mates at Princeton, and through their knowledge of the previous exchange of portraits between Judge Johnson and Dr. Witherspoon a re-exchange was discussed and was later effected (probably by their sons about 1858) and in this was the two Jouett portraits of Judge Johnson and the two of Doctor Witherspoon again came into the possession of their own respective families.

Charles Worthington Johnson (1805 – _____) of Frederick, Md., was the father of Gen. (C.S.A. 1864) Bradley Tyler Johnson (1829 – 1903) who married in 1851, Claudia Sanders, a granddaughter of Judge William Johnson, of U. S. Supreme Court (1804 – 34), whose daughter, Anna Hayes Johnson, married Judge Romulus N. Sanders, of North Carolina Supreme Court, and his daughter, Claudia Saunders (1832 – 99) married Gen. Bradley T. Johnson, who graduated from Princeton in 1849.

Captain Thomas Franklin Witherspoon (1825 – 1909), (N36) son of Dr. John Ramsay Witherspoon, said he thought the exchange was made by General Bradley T. Johnson (1829 – 1923) and John McCalla Witherspoon (1837 – 88), son of Daniel McCalla Witherspoon (1805 – 55), probably about 1858. The replica of the Witherspoon portrait was in the possession of Mrs. Carrie Bell Witherspoon (the widow of John McCalla Witherspoon) in Chicago, in 1893. The original of Dr. John Ramsay Witherspoon's portrait is now (1932) in the possession of Robert Sidney Witherspoon (1868 – 1945) of Louisville, Ky.

He was born in Williamsburg District, S. C., July 23, 1776, and died in Greene County, Alabama, July 5, 1836; buried in old (Stokes) cemetery, Greensboro, Ala. He was a ruling elder, an eminently pious, good man, useful and greatly respected. Moved from Williamsburg County, S. C., to Greene County, Alabama, in 1825.where he engaged in farming quite extensively. Over five weeks were required to come from South Carolina to Alabama by private conveyance in 1825. Married his first cousin, Janet Witherspoon, (1776 – 1815), daughter of "Corporal" Gavin Witherspoon (1747 – 1818).

"This amiable and exemplary woman and her promising son, Hayward Gavin, who was a very intelligent, lovely and pious lad, both died with that fatal epidemic, typhus fever, which prevailed extensively in Williamsburg District in 1815 – 16. She died Dec. 20, 1815 and her son on Feb. 4, 1816. "

Thomas Witherspoon married second on Jan. 8, 1818, Mrs. Mary (Way) Dick (b. 1784), widow of William Dick, (b. 1775) and amiable and interesting woman and the mother of Amarintha Mary Dick (1812 – 57) who married her mother's stepson, Dr. James Minto Witherspoon (1801 – 63). She died at Bradford Springs in Upper Salem, shortly after the birth of twin daughters, who also died, all three being interred in the same coffin.

He married third in 1828, Mrs. Sarah Lapsley of Kentucky, but she being an unfortunate disposition they did not live together pleasantly and were separated.

She married as his second wife Governor of S. C., 1814 – 16, David Rogerson WILLIAMS (1776 – 1830), of Charleston, S. C., and died without issue. He married, first, Mary Powers, of Rhode Island, and his son by this first marriage, John Nicholas WILLIAMS, married Sarah Cantey Witherspoon (N108) daughter of John Dick Witherspoon (M39).

Governor David Rogerson WILLIAMS, born at Centre Hall, his father's home, a part of Society Hill Community, must be allowed a place among the great men of South Carolina. He was educated in Charleston and matriculated at Brown University; was called home, before graduated, by the death of his father. He returned to Providence to marry Miss Sarah Power. By her he had one son, John Nicholas, who inherited the hundreds of slaves and many plantations of his father on the Pee Dee; also the cotton mill on Cedar Creek, at Society Hill, built in 1812, and one of the first south of New England. Gen. Williams' second wife was Elizabeth, daughter of John Witherspoon. They had no children.

BIRMINGHAM, ALA., NOV. 1909

He married 1808, Elizabeth Boykin, daughter of Samuel and Elizabeth (Inman) BOYKIN, of Camden, S. C.; she was noted for her elegant manners, and rare intelligence, a woman who would attract attention in the most polite society of any country. He graduated at Brown University, Rhode Island, in 1797 (after studying under Rev. Dr. Thos. Reese), read law with Mr. Bothmalan at Georgetown, admitted to the bar in Columbia, S. C., in 1800, and for many years was the only lawyer in his section; was a member of the legislature in 1818 and the S. C. Senate in 1828; he lived at Society Hill, S. C., he was a man of perfect physical development, erect and noble in bearing, never in a hurry, always on time; the soul of honor, he was called 'Honest Jack Witherspoon', cheerful, dignified, reliable and very intelligent; he was the central figure of a delightful country neighborhood, Society Hill, where the greatest refinement, culture and wealth existed. He was a living example of the Southern gentlemen."

John Dick Witherspoon was an early settler of the community on the hills above Long Bluff. His first residence there was a lot on a number of acres of forest and was a log house of several rooms. Soon he built a two story frame house of imposing proportions on the same lot, with his double room law office near by. He cleared a little farm there for home convenience; his children were born there, and there he lived for many decades, to the day of his death. The grave that received him was made on his own land, by his request.

Mr. Witherspoon prospered from the start; he was a man of rare intelligence, plain manners and generous impulses.

A valuable feature of the history of all the southern states is in the character of the immigrants, who came from over the sea to Virginia and the two Carolinas, especially South Carolina. They came from England, Scotland, Ireland, Wales, France and the Barbadoe Islands. No other inhabitants were of perceptible influence upon the early character, different from the English colony of Virginia.

The Wotherspoon, finally Witherspoon, name became early associated with the protestant religion in Scotland, and the reform in civics, which that faith carried with it. From that time forward, from Bothwell bridge to Appomattox, the men of that blood have appeared in extraordinary proportion of numbers in the conflicts of popular rights for supremacy.

JOHN DICK WITHERSPOON was born March 17, 1778, on his father's estate in Williamsburg district. He was educated by Dr. Thomas Reese, whose fame in that part of South Carolina as an educator, rivaled that of Waddell, on the opposite side of the state. He was graduated from Brown University, Providence, Rhode Island, in 1799, the twenty-first year of his age.

Young Mr. Witherspoon applied himself without delay to the study of law, at Georgetown. After admission to the bar, a serious undertaking it was then, he opened an office at Williamsburg, but he was the only lawyer there, because clients were not among the people. The Witherspoons , in a large measure, had moved higher up the state, others were preparing to go to the far West.

Soon the young lawyer made his first and final move from home, to the hills above Long Bluff.

May 5, 1808, having established a satisfactory practice, Mr. Witherspoon married Miss Elizabeth, daughter of Captain Samuel Boykin, of Camden, fifty miles away. The Boykins of Camden, four brothers originally, came from James River, Virginia. The family were of Welch origin. They were all prosperous and influential people, Whigs in the Revolution, and Captain Samuel Boykin was a captain in the defense of Fort Moultrie, or Fort Sullivan, as it was known. Mrs. Witherspoon brought to her husband a good property in slaves.

For perhaps 25 years, Mr. Witherspoon continued in the practice of the law with decided success. His profession was remunerative, at the bar he was held in the highest respect by the Court and members. The law firm of Witherspoon and Richardson, John S. Richardson of Sumter, later circuit judge, was famous in the criminal branch of the practice. Some incidents that, from time to time seemed to indicate an extreme of punctilious regard for his personal property, gave to Mr. Witherspoon among his fellows at the bar the soubriquet of "honest lawyer." I remember to have heard when a child this story: A young man retained him for the defense against a bill charging bastardy. The prosecutrix was a white woman. The defendant had earnestly denied to his attorney any guilt on his part. In course of the trail the bastard infant appeared in the court room and the moment Mr. Witherspoon laid eyes on it he turned to his client with the whispered remark: "The likeness to you is strange!" "Yes, sir", was the prompt reply, "and there is a good reason for it". Without hesitation Mr. Witherspoon rose and addressing the court, said: "Your honor please, I retire from the case before the court." From this and like incidents, it was said he never accepted a retainer in a case that failed to recommend itself to his conscience. In the earlier period of his practice he opposed the great criminal lawyer, Falconer, a Scotchman of imperious temper. Falconer always carried his holsters with a brace of loaded pistols into the court room and laid the weapons on the desk before him. This was in the time when the presiding judge was escorted from his hotel to the court house by the high sheriff with unsheathed sword, the judge wearing his black silk gown. Well, young Mr. Witherspoon, in opposition to venerable and reverend Mr. Falconer at the bar, offended him. The pistols were there, ready for such an opportunity. Mr. Falconer fired promptly. The ball passed through Mr. Witherspoon's coat, burying itself in the wall beyond. The gentleman, thus attacked, seized a law book at hand and hurled it furiously but harmlessly at the head of his assailant. He then walked to the wall, picked the ball out with his pen knife and slipped it in his vest pocket. Next he went to the store across the street and purchased a "cow hide whip". Taking his stand at the court house outer door, he was prepared to horsewhip the great Mr. Falconer, when he was stopped from his revenge by competent interference.

Falconer lived a few miles from Society Hill in Chesterfield district. Not long after the event described, he was sent for by a prisoner in Kershaw jail, Camden, more than fifty miles distant from his home. In response to the venerable lawyer ordered his saddle horse and rode to Camden without a pause. He visited his client in the jail and remounting, rode back to his home. He was thrown into a fever and died soon after. Mr. Witherspoon was in attendance upon the court at Darlington when a great shouting was sent up from without, that the roof of the jail nearby was on fire. The fact was apparent to the lawyers as all rushed out upon hearing the alarm. No fire company existed, no ladder could be found. Thereupon Mr. Witherspoon had a long pole brought from the scene, one end resting upon the eaves of the burning house, the other upon the earth. Removing his shoes, he climbed the pole, walked to the roof and extinguished the fire.

The Witherspoons, in American politics, seem to have been classed as conservatives, or federalists or whigs, as phrases passed.

John Dick Witherspoon was a follower of Clay on the tariff question. While at the zenith of his practice at the bar, he was chosen a representative in the legislature. This was in 1818, when the tariff question was maturing. About the time he retired from the bar, 1828, he was chosen to the senate of the state, in opposition to the teachings of Mr. Calhoun. In the time of his professional career, he often met John C. Calhoun, Langdon Cheves and Benjamin Cudworth Yancey at the court of appeals in Columbia. His ordinary remark was, "that Yancey was a greater lawyer than Calhoun." Probably Mr. Witherspoon never solicited a vote from his neighbors in his life. Political preferment came to him, because he was accepted as the most worthy man available for the occasion.

An eye witness related to me the following occurence: "Darlington district was known to be a union community; when preparations were made to take a vote on calling a sovereign convention in October, 1832, to nullify the Clay tariff, the nullifiers sent for United States Senator and Ex-Governor Stephen D. Miller, on the their ablest debaters, to make a speech in the lower part of the district. Miller came and Mr. Witherspoon met him in joint debate. Governor Miller's first wife was Miss Dick of Sumter. His then living wife was Mary Boykin, first cousin of Mrs. John D. Witherspoon, both women natives of Camden and reared there. The two debaters were also personally attached to each other. When Governor Miller passed through that section he was the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Witherspoon. He was a man of medium height and of slender frame. His delight was to challenge young gentlemen to a leaping match. I remember hearing that after dinner at Mr. Witherspoon's, he invited several young men present to the back steps to try their jumping powers. He easily outclassed all in this trial.

This was United States Senator and Governor Miller. The debate, however, was spirited. John M. Davis was there and sat immediately in front of the stand, carrying a heavy, knotted hickory walking stick. To give some idea of the feeling of the day, Governor Miller remarked, whispering, to my father, that young Davis, an ardent Witherspoon man, was indelicate in exposing his stick so conspicuously to his view!

The speech of that day was the last appearance of Governor Miller in public. At the close of the day a messenger arrived on the ground reporting to him the severe illness of his son, Elias Dick, in Columbia, a student of the college. The father drove home in all haste; the son died. The effect was most grievous. The Governor bought land in Mississippi and gave the remainder of his life to the plantation care.

After leaving the bar, Mr. Witherspoon lived in ease at Society Hill. He owned perhaps 25 acres of land about his residence. Some of this space was devoted to a vegetable garden to which he gave close attention. In other parts he cultivated rye for a cow pasture, and corn. Wednesday was the day for weekly drive to Lowther's lake plantation. Tuesday was the day for mixing the calomel and jalap powers for the sick negroes there. Quinine was then unknown in the family medicine chest. He weighed and mixed all with great care, spending an hour or more at that labor. He returned Friday. The other days of the week were given to reading, visiting his children in the neighborhood, and looking after his home farms. His collection of books was considerable.

It may be worth while to recall somewhat of the institution of slavery in the habit of control exercised by this hereditary slave holder of the negroes he owned. I suppose if those he gave to his children were taken into the estimate, his possessions in that kind of property reached the number of 500 at the time of his death.

The negroes at the Lawther's lake plantation were a little more liberally fed and a little more freely clothed than other plantation negroes in the Pee Dee, as I remember. Once every year, bales of Georgia plains and jeans came up the river to the Long Bluff landing, to go to the old law office on the resident lot, where women, under the direction of Mrs. Witherspoon, manufactured the many garments for the plantation people.

When the wagons were loaded with the garments, Mrs. Witherspoon was driven in her carriage to the plantation, where she remained several days engaged in distributing the load.

The bacon in plentiful supply, all home cured, was weighed to the people once a week. Not so with corn meal. A grist mill was run on the place one day in the week; the night before mill day, every grown person on the property went to the open corn crib with his or her sack, shelled corn ad libitum, and sent the full sack to the miller the next day. No restrictions on meal was placed to the consumers. Several steady going negro women kept the nursery for the children, where they were fed and taken care of until their mothers carried them home for the night. The discipline was firm, but I doubt if any negro of Mr. Witherspoon's ever had a scar left by a whip.

I will relate an incident in line: Mr. Witherspoon desired to make a substantial present to each of four grandsons named for him. I was one. While on a visit to his house, in 1859, he made known this purpose to me. He said he had given the other three grandsons contemplated, each a fine negro man, but I lived in Alabama, and although he had selected the young man for me, it was with pain that he considered the separation involved of the gift from his local surroundings. If agreeable to me, he would give me his check on Kirkpatrick, in Charleston, his cotton factor, for whatever amount the negro, already selected, might be worth on the market in Alabama. I promptly named the sum, he turned to his desk, wrote out the check and handed it to me.

In the forties, Mr. and Mrs. Witherspoon occasionally drove to Charleston to spend a week or two. She sat with her maid in the carriage while he drove his sulky on the trail. That was before the time of railroads. For perhaps 25 years, he with his family spent the summers at Rocky River settlement springs in North Carolina. General Williams and others besides had summer houses up there. They carried their maids and horses, they kept a billiard table there and maintained in other respects an active social life. The Rocky River settlement was abandoned in the early forties and thereafter from time to time Mr. and Mrs. Witherspoon drove over the wagon roads to the famous mineral springs of Virginia.

Taking Mr. Witherspoon as a type of the hereditary slave holder of South Carolina we find the institution of slavery at the zenith of its influence in that State and in other States, from the first to the last of his life. There is something to be gained to a great epoch, in its historical rights, by remarking upon the habits of the individual. He never let fall a blasphemous word or a vulgar word. His religious views were positive. Every Sunday morning he walked to Trinity church, Society Hill, of which his wife was a devout member. He never joined any church because he was too honest to subscribe to certain theological views which churches required of members. He was a vestryman all the time of Trinity church and a liberal supporter. When he built a larger house he provided a large upper room for suppers for his company.

At one time the pastor of a neighboring church ventured upon an unfriendly criticism from the pulpit of the social purposes to which that upper room was put. Mr. Witherspoon, who was present when the criticism was made, left his seat in the congregation at once and never appeared at this church again.

He took a glass of brandy and water every day, but he was never intoxicated in his life; he never chewed tobacco. He gave the utmost care to the education of his children; while they were very young they were sent to St. David's Academy. I have before me now a Life of Decatur, leather bound and illustrated, a prize won by my mother at the age of twelve years, for superiority in a spelling class when Thomas Smith, later the distinguished citizen, Dr. Thomas Smith, was principal of that school.

Later on, the two eldest daughters were sent, for several years, to the school of a West Indian refugee, a lady in Charleston, the first school of the kind in the state in its character. The two sons were graduates from the South Carolina College. The two younger daughters were given equal educational advantages.

As soon as the daughters, by pairs, completed their scholastic terms, they were taken, by their father, for a summer's tour of the eastern states and Canada. Such a tour then was of far greater moment, and of heavier expense than one to Europe now is.

I suppose one of the first family coaches introduced into the Pee Dee country was Mr. Witherspoon's, and one of the first pianos brought there was my mother's gift from her father.

In the interest of home amusement, Mr. Witherspoon bought in Charleston two violins (fiddles), so that "Ben", the nego cook, and "William", the coachman, might play after tea, at the back door, for all who would listen, white and black alike. When the old home was finally dissolved by death and removals, as I remember, there were at least ten servants there, men servants and women servants mostly idle for want of masters and mistresses to attend.

John D. Witherspoon had taken his regular Wednesday drive to his plantation in the spring of 1854. The next day he mounted his horse, taking his shot gun along, to hunt wild hogs in the swamps. Returning late in the afternoon, he received a call at his plantation house from his negro foreman "Will". While walking the floor, stirring a brady toddy as he talked, he fell heavily from a paralytic stroke. In the course of a few weeks he resumed his visits to his plantations, nevertheless a physical wreck.

He died at his home in November, 1860, aged 82 years. A unionist in 1832, he was a warm sympathizer with his section in 1860.

At his request his body was interred in a quiet woods on his own home lot. In later years it was removed to Trinity church yard where man and wife now rest.

Mrs. Witherspoon died, an unnatural death, at home in September, 1861, aged 75 years, in full possession of all her mental and physical faculties.

The Witherspoon colonists of Williamsburg multiplied rapidly. By the middle of the 19th century they had carried the name and blood to various parts of South Carolina, to Georgia, Florida, Alabama, Mississippi, Louisiana and Kentucky. In the civics of the country, in the profession of law and medicine but especially, perhaps, in the ministry of the Presbyterian church the name has been preserved through the generations and the centuries with honor."

JOHN WITHERSPOON DuBOSE

Birmingham, Ala., Nov. 1909.

JOHN DICK WITHERSPOON was born 17 Mar. 1778 in Williamsburg District. He was the son of Gavin Witherspoon and Elizabeth Dick, who were Scotch Irish Presbyterian, having migrated from Ireland to Williamsburg in 1734. His mother was Elizabeth Dick of Sumter District. At nine years of age John D. was sent to school to Thomas Reese, a Presbyterian preacher and a scholar of some celebrity. He reamined at this school for five years, and then went to Long Bluff, (now Society Hill) to Thomas Park (afterwards Dr. Park) professor of Latin and Greek in the South Carolina College. In 1795 he entered Brown University, Rhode Island. He graduated in 1797, he entered Mr. Rathmaliss office as a law student at Georgetown, S. C. In December 1800 he was examined and admitted to the bar at Columbia in a class with Abram Blanding, James Ervin and Charles Matte Leds. After his admission he lived in Masion District for four years at the residence of his father, and practiced law. He removed to Society Hill in 1805 and on the 5th of May 1808 married Elizabeth, daughter of Samuel Boykin of Camden by whom he had seven children. From 1806 to 1820, he practiced his profession with great diligence and success in the districts of Masion, Darlington, Chesterfield, Marlboro and Kisolaw. In 1809, he was one of the able counsel who, in vain endeavored to turn aside the sword of justice from Hey and Rochelle for the murder of murders. In 1818 he was elected to the House of Representatives and after a lapse of four years was again elected in 1824. In 1825 he performed the troublesome duty of reducing into one act, all the acts and clauses of acts, relating to the powers and duties of the commissioners of Roads. He was elected to the senate in 1828. He was the intimate friend and associate of that great and good man, Judge Wilds, and succeeded him in his practice after his election to the Bench. His known ability and honesty and his impulsive generous disposition, which made him turn his whole soul into his cases, rendered him a very successful advocate and jury lawyer. He inherits that stern integrity which distinguishes the Scotch Irish Presbyterians and by his character and conduct in court won the enviable title of the honest lawyer. Honest Jack Witherspoon was the soubriquet by which he was known during his professional career. When I was admitted here Witherspoon examined me in Equity. He so managed my examination, as to place me in the most favorable light before the Honors of the Chancellors and to cause my admission, as it were, by acclamation. His kindness I always have and still do remember. I met him from 1814 to 1820 at the court of Appeals in Columbia and afterwards in the legislature, and I always found him as a professional man and gentleman entitled to the most profound respect. In 1820 he retired from the bar and after serving his term in the Senate, he abandoned public life, and as a country gentleman filled all those kind offices of hospitality and social intercourse, for which he was so well fitted. He was born in 1778, and his infancy was therefore in the midst of that partisan warfare which his gallant father with Masion and his men by night and day waged against the enemies of their country. His memory is filled with hairbreadth escapades and daring attacks with his father used to pour into his youthful ears. These combined with his accurate knowledge of the politcal and social history of the country, render him a most interesting companion. His father's home was burned and his mother, while he was yet a mere infant, was driven in the woods by Major Wemyss in his memorable campaign. Such an incident was not likely to be forgotten by a child and his heart burned with that same inextinguishable hatred of tyranny and cruelty which sent his father in to the swamps of Pee Dee in defence of liberty. Mr. Witherspoon as a husband, parent, master and friend, has won the respect and love of all who knew him."

James Erwin lived in Pee Dee, S. C. Elizabeth married Mr. Erwin and bore several children. Gavin Witherspoon married a second time, and his wife bore him one child. His residence was then on the right bank of the Pee Dee, near Lowther's Lake. Taking his wife and infant child, and a single barrel flint-lock gun, into a canoe, he paddled over the stream, intended to make a visit of sympathy to a sick neighbor on the left bank.

As the canoe struck land, the fowling piece was discharged and the wad killed the child aboard.

He was born at Pembroke, near Newberne, N. C., in 1790 and died at Hillsboro, N.C., in 1853, age 64; was an eminent Presbyterian minister of Columbia and Camden, S. C.; was a D. D. and LL. D.

He graduated (A. B.) in 1810 from University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill, N. C. His wife was a granddaughter of Hannah Arnett, a Revolutionary heroine. He was minister of the Presbyterian Church at Hillsboro, N. C., 1816 – 32.

In his Newberne Presbyterian Church , Rev. L. C. Vass, A. M., 1886, page 7, says: "On 1st January 1827, all the records of Orange Presbytery were consumed in the burning of the residence of Rev. John Knox Witherspoon, the stated clerk in Hillsboro, except one volume, containing its proceedings from the 18th November 1795 to 26th September, 1812. A committee consisting of Rev. Messrs. Witherspoon, McPeeters, Joseph Caldwell, E. B. Currie, and Wm. Paisley was appointed to recover as far as possible, the history embraced in those burned minutes. "

On page 107 he says: "He lived in Hillsboro, founded the Presbyterian Church there and was its first pastor. Newberne church was organized 7th Jan. 1817, by Rev. Jno. Knox Witherspoon. He was moderator of the General Assembly at Pittsburg, Pa., in 1835, and several times in North Carolina and South Carolina.

Rev. John Witherspoon was pastor of the Presbyterian Church at Hillsboro, N. C., and was 'engaged in teaching in connection with the church there" (D. I. Craig's Historical Sketch of New Hope Church, N. C., p. 27.)

The first volume of Orange Presbytery's Records was burned in the home of Rev. John Witherspoon at Hillsboro, N. C., January 1, 1827. (Craig's Hist'l. Sketch of New Hope Church, p. 19).

Rev. John Witherspoon's name first appears in the Minutes of the General Assembly as a representative from Orange Presbytery, May, 1817; he is a representative again in the next year, 1818. In 1819 he is listed in the General Assembly's Minutes as pastor at Hillsboro, Orange Presbytery, N. C. (See G. A. Mins. for dates given).

"Bethesda Church, 7th January, 1833"
(Camden, S. C.)

"Agreeable to adjournment, this meeting was held for the special purpose of electing a successor to Mr. Davis, when the Rev. John Witherspoon, of Hillsboro, N. C., was put in nomination, and unanimously elected. A salary of $1,200 a year and the surplus from pew rents was guaranteed to the pastor elected . . . . .

A letter was received from the Rev. J. Witherspoon stating that he would accept the call to this church, provided he was allowed one year to close his arrangements in North Carolina and to enter upon the duties of his office on 1st February, 1834.

"Mr. Witherspoon's proposal was acceded to and in addition to his salary a subscription was raised to rent a furnished house for him during the current year.

"At the appointed time Mr. Witherspoon arrived and labored with acceptance and success, until the year 1837, when a call was presented from the church at Columbia, which finally resulted in a separation . . . . He removed to Columbia in July 1837." (Howe's Hsitory of the Presbyterian Church in South Carolina, V. 2, p. 495).

"In the month of November of this year (1836) Dr. Leland sent in his resignation of the Pastoral Office (First Presbyterian Church, Columbia, S. C.) to take affect at the close of the year. Accordingly, at a meeting of the congregation held December 19, 1836, Rev. John Witherspoon, D. D., LL. D., of Camden, was chosen pastor, at a salary of $2,000, and the session was instructed to make out and subscribe the call. . . . He was installed pastor July 2, 1837. He held this charge a very short time. Being in infirm health, he resigned his charge April 29th, 1839." (id., p. 500-01).

Some records list Rev. John Knox as John Nash but apart the following letter from Eugene D. Witherspoon, Quail Hill Apartments, 5949 A Quail Hollow Road, Charlotte, North Carolina, will clear this matter:

"With regard to the debate about the name of Dr. John Witherspoon, of Hillsborough fame, let me quote from the history of the Presbyterian Church of that place, compiled for the celebration of its 150th anniversary. 'The Presbyterians called Dr. John Knox Witherspoon, a native of Wilmington, North Carolina, a graduate of the University of North Carolina, and a grandson of Dr. John Witherspoon, New Jersey's signer of the Declaration of Independence . . . . On Wednesday, September 25, 1816, Dr. Witherspoon organized the Hillsborough Presbyterian Church, and served as its first pastor until 1833." This should wrap up any uncertainty about his name. It was John Knox, not John Nash. The mistake came in no doubt, from the fact that his mother was a Nash."

The committee appointed to prepare a minute relative to the death of the Rev. J. Witherspoon D. D. made a report which was accepted and adopted and is as follows:

"The committee to whom was referred the preparation of a minute on the death of Dr. John Witherspoon, respectfully report:

"Resolved 1. In view of the death of our beloved brother, John Witherspoon D. D. we acknowledge the Hand of God, who has appointed the boundaries of the habitations of all men and set them a limit which they may not pass.

"2. Though sorrowing that we shall see his face no more on Earth, yet we rejoice in the hope that to him, death has been the end of all sorrow and the beginning of all joy.

"His latter days now marked by many and peculiar sufferings and these were rendered the more severe by the fact that in his earlier life his career had been one of peculiar prosperity.

"The son of a noble race, a lineal descendent of John Knox and the grandson of John Witherspoon of Revolutionary memory, having enjoyed opportunities of instructional, better than most men of his day, and gifted with talents of the highest order, he entered at an early age upon the duties of the sacred office.

As a popular speaker he was excelled by none, the silvery tones of his voice, the grace and elegance of his manner, his ready flow of language, combined with a remarkable memory, Vivid imagination and vigorous power of thought made him a most attractive preacher.

"For his success however he was perhaps no less indebted to his qualities as a man than as a preacher. Gentle, courteous, affable and kind, he was a pastor greatly beloved.

Chosen Moderator of the General Assembly in times that tried men's souls, he was found equal to the task, and made the finest impression on the whole church as to his ability and impartiality.

But the Master ever mysterious in His despensation saw fit soon to lay His servant by and for many years he was called to suffer much and do but little.

It is a singular fact that in the same community where he first held the pastoral office and where in the vigor of early manhood he preached with so much success; there he spent his last days, there too as a supply he preached the Gospel of peace and though with less of mental vigor and bodily strength, possessing no longer the sweet voice which had attended the fathers, yet with the same affectionate manner and with a Christian's piety he taught lessons of wisdom to their children.

There by the friends that survived and by the children of others that had gone before, he was ministered to and wept over and committed to the dust.

"3. Resolved that we offer our best sympathy to the affected family of our brother and pray that God may comfort them in the hour of darkness.

Respectfully submitted,

S. A. Stanfield
Chairman."

JOHN WITHERSPOON, born Haddingtonshire, Scotland, married Sarah (Sallie)Hopson of Wake Co., N. C. Sarah Hopson was the daughter of Richard and Elizabeth Hopson who in 1785 – 86 made a will in Orange Co., N. C., leaving property in Wake Co., N. C., to his daughter Sarah Hopson and her brother Younger Hopson.

Much can be said about the Witherspoon Family, they were noted for piety, integrity, intelligence and a high sense of duty. They were educated people who served both church and State. Many of them have risen to political prominence and they have fought in almost all the battles of their country. They have always been a religious people, and, with few exceptions, have closely adhered to the Presbyterian faith. Richard Hopson as were all the Hopsons of N. Carolina, people of wealth. As one genealogist states: "They were men of great power in their day and generation in society, at the bar and in the council of their country." Several family genealogists state a family relationship in that John Witherspoon was an own cousin to his wife, Sarah Hopson, also according to family tradition.

We know there was a large colony of Witherspoons in Pennsylvania during colonial days. Some genealogists say John Witherspoon, the SIGNER, lived there for a while, in Lancaster Co. Many of his descendants live there now. James Witherspoon probably lived there for a while and moved with the migration of Scotch Irish from Pennsylvania down the Shenandoah Valley to Virginia, and many continued into North Carolina.

The Witherspoon and Hopson families lived in Wake, Green, Orange and Craven Counties. The children of John and Sarah Witherspoon and their migration into Kentucky are our principal subject.

According to some early church histories of Kentucky, John and Sarah Witherspoon with their children came through the gap and over the mountains and settled in Allen Co., Kentucky about 1809. (According to Records of Abstracts and Wills of Warren Co., Ky. by Annie Walker Burns, Will Book B, page 12) Allen Co. was created from Warren in 1815. John Witherspoon made a will dated July 4, 1812, naming his wife, Sarah, Sons, James, William, Major, Wiley, Younger . Daughters, Dorcas, Elizabeth, Polly, when they marry or become of age. Executors, wife Sarah, son James and brother Hardy Witherspoon. Dated July 4, 1812. Witnesses: John Travers, John Beard, Lee Allen, Hugh Hagan. Recorded July Court 1814. Teste: Jona Hobson C. C.

According to family tradition John Witherspoon died about 1812, soon after the will was made. He is buried somewhere in Allen Co., Ky.

This line comes one down through Younger Witherspoon, son of John and Sarah Witherspoon. According to family records and early church history, Younger Witherspoon was born in Green Co., N. C., July 14, 1804, coming as a small boy with his parents to Warren Co., later Allen Co., Ky.

He came to General Knox's farm, "Monticello", at St. George (Thomaston), Maine, with his father and was with him on Brigadier (Sears) and Butter Islands. After his marriage he lived for eight years in Bucksport, Maine, where he cultivated a farm, taught school and held several town offices of trust. He then returned to Butter Island and made it his home for fifty years. He lived with his son Rodney K. in Camden during the last years of his life.

An obituary notice of him in the Camden newspaper stated: "Mr. Witherspoon was a man of more than ordinary intelligence, being a great reader of history and keeping fully informed of the political affairs of his country. He attributed his long life of ninety years to his strict habits of 'temperance in all things'. Though not a member of any church he was a great reader of the Bible and a firm believer in its doctrines and made its precepts the governing rule of his life. In politics he was originally a Whig, but on the breaking up of that party became a warm supporter of the principles and policy of the Republican Party".

My Grandmother on the maternal side, the aforementioned Margaret Haldane, who married Alexander Witherspoon at Haddington on August 5th, 1802, I never knew, to my great loss, as she died at her home in Hatts., Dundas, while my own mother was still a young girl. She was the second and only married daughter of Provost George Haldane and his wife Catherine Murray.

Margaret and her husband Alexander gave to the world, I might say the new world of America, a large family, ten living children, so that the old stock through her, and by her only, survive in great numbers.

Within my memory as a child, I knew of forty of her grandchildren, I myself was the youngest living child of her youngest child. Now in 1930 when Alexander Witherspoon and his wife Margaret are followed by their great-great-great-grandchildren (as witness one was born in Monroe, Michigan, the other day, December 9, 1929, the daughter of Marjorie T. Bush and her husband, young Joseph Stirling. The child's name is Shirley Stirling). Their number for aught I know is legend. I regret to say I have lost trace of many — even some of my second cousins.

Sometime after their union, Mr. and Mrs. Witherspoon removed to Tranent (ancient name Travernent) a very interesting town historically, lying part way between Edinburgh and Haddington. The old church spire can still be seen from the railway train as it passes. The church which the family attended is very old, it being mentioned in connection with battles and other remarkable circumstances in 1728. Tranent lies in East Lothian.

My own dear Mother Margaret (N240) the last and youngest child of Mr. and Mrs. Witherspoon, was born in Tranent. They then moved to the city of Edinburgh where my grandfather entered business as a watchmaker and jeweller at Greenside Place, later in Prince's Street.

The family took up residence in St. James Square. Many times have I heard my mother tell of her nurse taking her by the hand and leading her up Calton Hill, which lies at the one end of Prince's Street and is a favourite and most inviting walk for all who may be fortunate enough to sojourn in what is often termed the modern Athens, whilst ever above just across the gardens from Prince's Street towers the ancient castle of the middle ages.

Grandfather was awarded a gold medal for a very notable improvement in watch-making at this time. It is still in our possession. Just here I may offer an explanation of some of the rather curious ways in which they did things in those days. Hearing that Alexander Witherspoon, the expert watch-maker, was about to sail with his entire family for Canada, a number of his fellow townsmen desired to make him a presentation, thinking that a purse of gold might prove of more use to him than a gold medal they consulted him personally. Not being able to visualize what he could do with a gold medal in Canada of that date, wise man that he was, he chose the coin instead. His friends, however, also gave him a large bronze medal for his fine improvement in watch movement. On the bronze medal it states, this gold medal is presented to Alexander Witherspoon etcetra, which of course seems rather strange unless explained.

Two of Alexander and Margaret Witherspoon's sons were married before leaving Scotland. Their wives accompanied them to Canada. Grandfather having six sons thought, as many others did at that period, that it would be to their advantage to migrate to this wonderful land.

He had been in correspondence with the Honourable James Crooks of West Flamboro near Dundas, Upper Canada, and through him purchased a farm. His fond dream of this property was never realized, as he did not live to see it. As the family neared the date of sailing many were the sad farewells of those last days.

Mrs. Witherspoon was leaving behind her the graves of her Father and Mother, knowing she would never see them ever more. Her sisters too and brothers bade her farewell and Haddington her girlhood's home was left behind, in future years to be only a memory.

Mr. Witherspoon had no near relatives living but was loath to part with a dear friend who was almost a brother to him, Dr. John Williston. This Dr. Williston had a brother a doctor also, living in Dundas, Canada. I understand it was through him that the idea of coming out first took form in my grandfather's mind.

The young people, too, were brave indeed to set their faces toward the unknown and break all the ties of youthful friendships by their departure.

After nine long weary weeks of tossing on the Atlantic in a sailing vessel, the family landed at Hamilton.

Grandfather was ill. Responsibility was great, anxiety for the future welfare of his loved ones told on him. He was seized with what was then called Lake Fever, a form of typhus. It seemed to fasten on many of the newcomers of that time who came up the lakes. The family managed to secure a house still partly under construction on James Street, Hamilton. Grandfather was most anxious to see his farm, so with his second son, George, he started to walk along the Hamilton road toward Lancaster. The farm, which I have often seen, would be about seven miles distant. The fever was gaining and he was obliged to rest by sitting on a large stone by the roadside near a farm gate. He made another great effort but was unable to rise. His son, George, ran up the land to the farmhouse (owned by a Mr. Banbarger) for drinking water. The farmer and family were most kind, bringing their horses and quilts at once and placing grandfather comfortably in the wagon and driving him carefully back to the house in the city. A doctor was called and he was visited by the Revd. Mr. Gayle, who proved a most helpful friend to the entire family. But Alexander Witherspoon never recovered and died only four days after the landing, August 19th, 1834. His heartbroken widow and family had now only the last sad rite to perform of burying his remains in Hamilton, in this new strange land, so far from the dear old home and bonnie hills of Scotland. Twenty-three years later they were removed to the Dundas cemetery where husband and wife have rested side by side for many long years.

To continue about my grandmother, she never really overcame the terrible loss, although she bowed to the will of the Almighty. She seemed to sit for hours thinking, just thinking. It was very difficult, as one may imagine, for her under such painful circumstances to adjust her mind and thoughts to such changed conditions and entirely new surroundings.

Her third son, George, who was about twenty and unmarried, at once most manfully for so young a lad assumed all responsibility for the care of the family. He had carried with him from across the sea many fine letters of introduction and recommendation. These for the present he laid aside, putting himself and his affairs in the background.

He went to Dundas, met and told his sad tale to the other Dr. Williston, a former dear friend of his late father's. This friend advised him to build a new house in the pretty little valley city as at present called, for his mothers and sisters, which he did. It was fairly commodious, pretty, and for those days comfortable, two story, painted white, green shutters and a neatly designed lattice porch with a seat along each side.

Once settled there, Mrs. Witherspoon had no wish to go further. She gave the management of her household affairs into her daughters' hands. As before mentioned she had four girls, Catherine, Helen and Jane. My own mother, Margaret, was still a child of about eight years.

When the Witherspoons left Edinburgh, Dr. John Williston said I am following you, Alexander, as soon as I can settle up all my affairs, so that I may spend the rest of my life reunited with my borther, who is in Dundas and you my best friend.

Amid all the confusion and sorrow this promise of Dr. John Williston had been almost forgotten, so it was a great surprise on Sunday morning when the girls all dressed in deep black on coming out of church came face to face with their old friend. He threw up his hands and exclaimed almost in a voice of fear, "Do not tell me that my friend Alexander is gone." In a dazed state he walked with them to the house and three days after, he was dead. His brother felt this shock keenly. He had been very much overworked and had a large country practice for miles about Dundas. So in a few days he too came to my grandmother's door saying, "Mrs. Witherspoon, will you let me put my head on the pillow where my brother died?" In deep content, he, too, turned his face to the wall, sighed and passed to the better world, and the doctors called it Lake Fever.

All these events following each other so closely gave my grandmother a somewhat unreal impression of this country. To her it was a land of disaster.

Later in the summer seasons she began to interest herself in the garden. She was always a great lover of flowers.

A path ran from the front door to the little gate in the white fence. She had a small rustic bower placed in the corner of the pretty grass plot. Here she could be found sitting on many a summer day among her lovely flowers. She tended them herself.

Such a garden was unusual in those days as most of the people had many other duties to perform to obtain the mere necessities of life. Therefore on Sunday afternoons it was a favourite walk with many of her townspeople just to saunter past and exchange a word with Grandma Witherspoon among her flowers.

Margaret Haldane Witherspoon had black eyes and very long jet black hair which never changed color. She was of medium height, her face was rather full and round.

She was possessed of a quiet thoughtful, earnest, devout mind. In her early married life constantly busy with her needle, trying to meet the requirements of a large growing family, be it known that sewing machines had not been invented. Her husband was very proud of her fine needlework and used to brag that no one could see her take a stitch, so swiftly did she ply her needle and thread.

The years passed. In 1857 only two of her children remained at home, Jane and the youngest, Margaret, now a tall, slight girl.

Failing health was overtaking their dear mother. The sisters were devotedly attentive to her but sadness mingled with their gentle ministrations.

At one time in her more active days not forgetting the useful as well as the beautiful, she planted a plum tree beside her bedroom window.

One lovely May day in Springtime, just as the tree burst into its first glorious white bloom, the sweet fragrance of which was wafted through the open window and swaying muslin curtains as God's incense, she quietly passed away, 18th May, 1857.

Then it was, twenty-three years later, that Grandfather Witherspoon's coffin was raised and brought from Hamilton, joined by his widow's funeral cortege and lovingly placed in the Dundas, Ontario, Cemetery."

REV. GEORGE GORDON WITHERSPOON, who was born at Wilkesboro, North Carolina, July 7, 1793, who migrated to Georgia while a young man, became a Methodist minister, and married Jane Holman Clower, who was born in Georgia, July 28, 1802.

Theirs was a typical pioneer family of that day and lived in several sections of the State. Grandfather preached, farmed, raised stock, acted as overseer of large plantations, and taught school sometimes.

They were living on a farm near Tunnel Hill, Catoosa County, Georgia, about twelve miles from Chattanooga, Tenn., during the war and three of their sons enlisted in the Confederate Army from that county. Two of them, George Washington and Junius Hillyer, enlisted in July 1861, and died in Virginia from 7 wounds received in battle. John Daniel, the youngest son, too young when the war began, entered near the close and gave service. He survived the war.

After the war the remnant of the family moved to a farm near Clinton, Jones County, Georgia. He died there August 11, 1866. Jane Witherspoon died in the home of her oldest son, Charles Wesley Witherspoon, at Gaylesville, Alabama, December 11, 1884.

James Witherspoon married first Jane Harris, born in Dublin, Ireland, March 26, 1815. A letter from the youngest child, James Hamilton Gordon, Witherspoon, from Ada, Oklahoma, dated July 24, 1933, says he was two years old when his father died and that there were 11 children by the first marriage and two by the second.

James H. Witherspoon married a second time, Mary Medera Lucas, on January 25, 1877. They had two children: Rose Odelia, who died at Waterloo unmarried at the age of 23 years, and James Hamilton Gordon, who retains only James Gordon, and lives in Ada, Oklahoma, engaged in automobile financing. He has a son at home operating a ranch, another in the Army Air Corps at San Antonio and a son-in-law in the Army Ordinance Department in Oregon.

Rev. James H. Witherspoon was a man of affairs doing mercantile business in Waterloo a life time, was called Major Witherspoon and occasionally represented Lauderdale County in the state legislature. He was a local preacher. When the writer was living in Florence, the county seat, in 1890, he was told by officers of the First Presbyterian Church that when their pastor had occasion to be absent from his pulpit he often got Major Witherspoon to come up from Waterloo and fill his place and whenever he announced that he would be away and Major Witherspoon would fill the pulpit they were glad for they knew they would have a good sermon.

L. C. Draper, Exq.

My dear Sir: Your esteemed favor received and contents carefully noted. I will endeavor to answer your enquiries as accurately as my knowledge and recollection of events will permit. Coming to Alabama when a youth, leaving all of papers and family records behind, consequently must rely on memory entirely for the details of events often heard from the lips of my father, David Witherspoon.

First. John Witherspoon, the father of David, moved from Jersey to Wilkes County, North Carolina. Settled on Kings Creek, western portion of Wilkes. He was a lateral descendant of John Witherspoon, President of Princeton College, and signer of the Declaration of Independence. Here David and John were born about the years 1758 or 1760. They entered the army at the ages of 18 and 16, respectively. The first act of violence, a band of Tories rode up to the residence of their mother, she then being a widow, shot down her cows, took the feather beds, ripped them open, scattering contents in the air.

Some time after this David and John had dropped in home to see their mother and sisters — they had three sisters. In the night the house was surrounded by Tories. The two brothers were captured and carried to a Tory Camp located in the mountains in the western portion of Wilkes. The camp was composed of say 200 men. David and John were tried by drumhead court martial and condemned to be shot, blindfolded, placed on a log and men detailed drawn up in position to shoot them.

While waiting for the command to fire an officer stepped up and proposed to them if they would go home and come back and bring with them a noted fast animal called the Oneal mare, belonging to David and John, their band would spare their lives. They reached home safely. A Colonel Herndon had a battalion of light horse down the Yadkin River sixty miles from the Tory camp. David mounted his flying mare bent for the camp of Colonel Herndon, and twenty-four hours after that David and John, with Herndon's battalion, composed of say 250 men, dashed into the Tory camp and captured the whole of them without the loss of a man. So secure did the Tories feel, they had out no pickets. I don't remember the number of Tories killed or hanged. Mr. L. L. W. must have got the information of thirteen being hanged from some other quarter. David and John redeemed their promise of returning to the Tory camp but under circumstances not expected by them. I have no doubt hanging took place, as it was common.

After this David and John never allowed themselves taken prisoners as their lives would have been forfeited. They had many hair-breadth escapes.

All these events occurred before the Battle of Kings Mountain.

David and John Witherspoon were in the battle of Kings Mountain in Colonel Cleveland's command.

Colonel Ferguson took his position for battle on top of Kings Mountain and it was said dispatched to his superior officers that he was then encamped on Kings Mountain and that he defied the Living God to take him off. The three divisions ascending the mountain from different directions kept the enemies' forces distracted. Further, my father said the attacking party firing uphill shot low down and with deadly effect, while the British and Troies overshot all the time, balls rattling in the trees overhead. David said in getting into close quarters a British soldier was lying on the ground loading and firing; he drew his gun on him when the Red Coat pitched the butt of his gun to him and threw up his hands. He took him prisoner and found he had a number of balls in his mouth chewing them to make the wound more fatal. He used to describe the battleground after night. The groans of the dying and the cry, "Water, water," was heartrending. I have no recollection of the names of the officers in Colonel Cleaveland's command.

I know nothing of the history of Colonel Cleaveland's brothers. He had several sons – rather desperadoes. My father did not admire the character of Colonel Cleaveland, though brave was rapacious and cruel. One instance, he had been on a scout, returned to camp and found nine Tories hung on the limb of one tree. He had a great many Tories hung. Acts of rapacity were frequent, for instance, any back in the country who had fine horses, a report would be started that he was favoring the Tories. A squad of men would be sent and confiscate his stock and he and his sons would get the lion's share.

After the war closed there were regular bands of horse thieves. David and John were engaged in raising and dealing in fine stock. They had so many stolen a good deal of their time was spent in running down and capturing horse thieves. They had captured a man name Sale Coffee, a cousin of Cleaveland's sons. He was under guard. One of the Cleavelands commenced throwing whisky in the guards' faces to get up a row and let the fellow escape. My father said to the sheriff, "If I was on guard I would shoot that fellow." The sheriff summoned him to take his gun and stand guard. As soon as he took his place Cleaveland rushed up, seized his gun, tried to wrench it from him, but my father drew the gun back against his body and fired, setting his clothes on fire, fined $100.00 and cost. When he called to pay it off he found that friends unknown to him had paid it all off. He never knew who, but it was a popular act.

My father, David Witherspoon, lived in Wilkes County, North Carolina, until 1827, having raised a large family of sons and daughters. The family then moved to Georgia, Jackson County. In May, 1828, he was on a business tour in South Carolina. He had a sister living in that section. He was taken sick and died suddenly and was buried in the same neighborhood. John Witherspoon settled in Tennessee, Williamson County, and raised a large family; again removed to Wayne County, Tennessee, where he died about the year 1839.

I have given you all the information I can on the subject you desired. There is a deficiency in names and dates but the main facts are strictly true.

I received a volume of your historical collection for which receive my warmest thanks.

It will give me great pleasure at any time if I can assist in advancing your interest or views.

You have been pleased to give me your political position. In return I enclose you a little circular as to my own. Shall be pleased to hear from you any time. I am to my seventy-third year — an active man of my age. May heaven's choice blessings attend you through life.

Yours with sentiments of esteem.

JAMES HAMILTON WITHERSPOON

TO MY FELLOW-CITIZENS OF LAUDERDALE COUNTY

*My name is before you as a candidate for a seat in the next Legislature. The short time before the primary election comes off makes it impossible to canvas the county and see you as I would like to do.

I take this method to give you my views on some of the political questions of the day, and reasons that influence me to place my name before you.

First. The Presidential election comes off during the next year. I look for the country to be agitated to the center and a political storm may arise that may endanger, if not overthrow, our republican form of government. My honest conviction is that our only safety is to stand by the great principles of the Democratic party, based upon the Constitution as handed down to us by our fathers of the Revolution. It will require all the cool judgment, prudence and fairness we can command to meet the crisis. It is no time to divide. Let us stand together one time more. In looking over our grand old country, you can see we have a climate and soil unsurpassed by any section, where may be produced all the necessaries of life in great abundance. In addition, we have splendid water power sufficient to run any amount of machinery. It has been one of the cherished dreams of my life for the time to come when we could hear the whirl of the spindle, the clang of the loom, and the sound of the hammer, giving employment to hundreds of well-paid laborers. Nothing would so much promote the great farming interests of our county; it would give our farmers a home market for everthing they could raise. I hope to see the time when the farming and manufacturing interests may take the high stand they merit, and when labor shall become honorable, and every farmer's home shall be surrounded by golden grain, bending corn, fine stock, good schools, a high moral standard and happy families. When we look over the American continent we see that Nature's God has operated on his grandest scale. Here we have the largest rivers, the loftiest mountains, the richest valleys, with vast mines of all precious metals, and I would add the bravest men and fairest women the world ever produced.

I hope soon to see the time when sectional prejudice and ill feeling shall be swept away, and when we shall have a grand union of states from the Lakes to the Gulf, and from the Atlantic to the Pacific Oceans. Where peace, prosperity and universal good will shall prevail, and we may ever remain in the "land of the free and home of the brave."

Should I be elected as your standard-bearer, I will endeavor to see you more generally before the regular election takes place, that we may consult as to measures that will best promote our common interest.

With sentiments of high regard, I remain,

Your obedient servant,

J. H. Witherspoon

Willis was taught the trades of his Scotch-Irish fathers and certainly the cobbler's bench, the turning lathe, or the cooper's wheel were no strange objects to him, not to mention the forge and anvil in the shop where many articles of wrought iron were fashioned in his father's workshop. So it was not without skill or hard work they were lacking. This was the childhood life of our Sally Beavers and Willis Weatherspoon.

To live well in those trying years meant toiling and making the best of craft one could possibly manage. Sally was a natural, her skill of crafts had been handed down through the ages and her will power was strong as that of her foreparents who had chosen the neighbors of the Scotch Irish and English country folk who had land grants in this territory, to that of being pushed by the great onslaught into the West as most of her kin had been.

But the Union Jack had not flown over Williamsburg, Va., since the Revolution and any orthodox minister; or for the want of such, any lawful magistrate, could perform a marriage ceremony legally without the sanction of the Church of England.

We found records in Wake County, N. C., that a Baptist Church located on the plantation owned by Willis and Sally and on this same land today the old church that stood in the valley shaded by big oak, cedar and pine is still in existance, being moved across the road and on the hill in a new brick building – a credit to any community.

By the road is the Weatherspoon burial ground of another day. It is shaded by a half dozen big oaks with markers of well placed field stones – maybe it can boast a dozen marble markers dating around 1815.

Was it this church that the little "hymnbook" was used, then among the prized possessions of Willis and Sally brought to Tennessee. These old hymns of praise sung by our foreparents in Scotland, then into Ireland to the Carolinas a hundred years or so before by a Presbyterian ancestor had not changed in tempo or praise much when Uncle Jimmy (their youngest son) sang to his hearts content and to the pleasure of the great-grandchildren of Sally and Willis as he visited in the homes of his kin.

Tradition is they came to Tennessee in 1827. Land grants show a later date and Spence's history show they moved much earlier.

Sally had borne four or five children, Calvin, Dorenda, Dorsey, William, Redden, and Jesse Ruffen before she packed to the top the big cherry wood chest with homespun jeans breeks for the boys, lenzies and homespun cottons her hands had wrought, the bright striped woolen balmonal petticoats for herself and little daughter, her spun flax and cotton sheets that covered the plump feather beds. This must last until they found a new homestead in the rich forest of Tennessee — tucked in the folds of these garments and hidden safely in the bottom of the chest was a pouch of silver milled dollars for the new home must be paid for.

They placed and securely bound the chest in the bottom of the bed along with a parcel of barrels — one containing a few pieces of ironstone, the blue willow sugar dish, a pewter porriage bowl or so — and the tea set of china.

Yes, they must take the candle molds, crocks, the spice mortar and pestal, the cedar peggins and her gallon pewter noggin that had been made in Ireland. All of these must be carried, for it had been told her such luxuries were most impossible to get after they would leave Raleigh, for it was a long journey to the port of New Orleans from Tennessee and the wagons were slow; while Raleigh, and not too far away Richmond, were well established coach roads and imports not so hard to obtain.

The flax wheel, the big spinning wheel, the reel, her sleighs, harness and shuttles from the old loom must go. They would be used on her new loom Willis would make from the fine pine trees at their new home. The favorite rocker, a few chairs, yes, the wool cards must be carefully tucked in; they were a much used article.

Furniture wasn't such an object. She had the pattern for the new poster bed and table legs and her Willis was handy with the tools he had selected to bring on the wagon that would be loaded to bring the makings of a sawmill from which he would establish a mill in this new land across the mountains.

Would they drive the hitch of mares — the sorrel and bay? They would be good brood stock as well as mounts after they got to Tennessee. The stronger team would pull the heavier load and Willis had been promised a driver in the wagons they would meet — that made up the train.

Placed handy would be the cooking vessels, a wooden bucket or so, iron pots and the pewter plates for this hearty family must be fed as they journeyed and on fair days or foul hung under the back end of the wagon was the carefully guarded charcoal pot lest its glowing coals die out.

Food was aplenty – much corn, salt pork and dried foods had been packed to last the journey. Good game was plentiful so no one should travel on an empty stomach.

They would bid their kin and friends goodby as they probably would never return to Wake County. Maybe by chance their sons would return by wagon train some day when they were men.

Willis Weatherspoon and his wife Sallie Beavers Weatherspoon, came from North Carolina in 1827 (so tradition has it). They lived near Cedar Creek about fifteen miles from Raleigh, N. C. (Have been told by my father that Sallie Beavers was of Indian descent). They took three weeks on the journey from Raleigh, to Little Piney. They tied a tree to the back of the covered wagon as they came down the Cumberland Mountains to keep it from rolling down on the team. They came by way of the French Broad River; with them was the family dog, and as they would make camp at night, the old lonesome, homesick dog would get out by the wagon and howl, long, lonesome, and loud. When they arrived at the new homestead on Little Piney the dog disliked the wolves and wilderness. He was missed and the family did not know what had happened to him until word was received from back home in the countryside of Raleigh. Comparing dates, he had made the trip back home in nine days.

Willis Weatherspoon operated a mill in the eighth district. "Spence" dates it as 1820; he erected it in the southeastern portion of the district in the midst of a pine forest, and it was a sawmill as well as gristmill. From this mill the settlers procured planks, this being a considerable improvement over the whipsaw method of supplying lumber for the growing demand.

7. John Hamilton (25 Feb. 1835 –_____)

He was born in Ireland and died in Pennsylvania, was the son of William Witherspoon and wife, Mary. He came to America at the age of five with his parents, and one sister, Elizabeth, and by 1793 the family was living at Canonsburg, Washington County, Pennsylvania. Sometime between 1796 and 1809 they bought land on Travis Creek in Hanover Township, Beaver County, Pennsylvania. It is not known when they built the home in Frankfort Springs, but their daughter Drusilla said the family had "always" lived there. He must have built his home solidly because it is still standing today and is said to look very much as it did then, except that the red bricks have been covered at some time with stucco.

Descendants of John Witherspoon (the family of Hunter Stephens, descendant of Martha Witherspoon-Stephens) still live in the house.

John Witherspoon married Margaret Kennedy on Nov. 18, 1813. She was the daughter of Samuel and Frances (Boals) Kennedy, who were also Scotch-Irish emigrants who came to America at about the same time as the Witherspoon family, and settled at Service.

John Witherspoon was a farmer, and he also operated what was then called a "Drover's Stand." Animals had to be driven on foot in those days from one place to another. Frankfort Springs was on the trail West from Pittsburg to West Virginia and Ohio. He maintained pens where the animals could "stand" overnight and be fed and watered.

John and Margaret Witherspoon are known to have belonged to the King's Creek Presbyterian Church. Their daughter, Drusilla, said that John was an elder in the church and an active and staunch supporter of the church. Both are buried in the King's Creek Cemetery, as well as their son, Calvin.

Margaret (Kennedy) Witherspoon died on December 13, 1860 and John Witherspoon on July 28, 1867. Drusilla made a home for her father in his last years and cared for him in his last illness.

COPY OF LAST WILL AND TESTAMENT OF JOHN WITHERSPOON LATE OF FRANKFORT SPRINGS

Recorded in Will Book E, page 50, on file in the office of Register of Wills in County of Beaver, Commonwealth of Pennsylvania. Dated May 31, 1867. Registered July 31, 1867.

I John Witherspoon of the Borough of Frankfort Springs in the County of Beaver and State of Pennsylvania, do make this my last will and testament in manner and form as follows, viz.

1st. I give and bequeath to my son William all my personal clothing one bed stead and bed clothes.

2nd. I give and bequeath to my daughter Drusilla my best carpet.

3rd. I give and bequeath my common carpet, books, household and kitchen furniture to my daughters Martha, Drusilla, Mary and Margaret and my son William to be equally divided among them.

4th. I direct my Executor to give to my son Hamilton a bedstead, bed and bed clothes, a lot of books and saddle which he left with me when he went to California. Should he not request these articles in a reasonable time then I direct that they shall be handed over to my son William.

5th. I give and bequeath to my daughter Margaret one hundred and twnety five dollars if not paid to her before my decease.

6th. I give and bequeath to my daughter Drusilla Two thousand dollars.

7th. The remainder of my estate real and personal I give and bequeath to my son William and my daughter Margaret to be divided equeally between them.

8th. Any real estate I may own or possess at my decease I direct my Executor hereinafter named to sell either at public or private sale and to make and deliver a title therefore as fully and as amply as I myself could do in my life time.

I hereby nominate and appoint Tho. Nicholson of Frankfort Springs Executor of this my last will and testament. Witness my hand and seal the thirty first day of May A. D. 1867.

Done in the presence of us and witnessed at request of testator.

4. Matilda (7 Apr. 1825 – _____)
5. Elizabeth (21 Feb. 1832 – _____)

Elizabeth "Betsy" dau. of William and Mary Witherspoon was born in Ireland and came soon afterward to America. She grew to womanhood at Frankfort Springs, Penna. and there married James who was reared in Beaver County. They settled on a farm in Pennsylvania. In 1833 the Allison Family moved to Ohio, locating near Scroggsfield in Fox Township, Carroll County. Mr. Allison also bought the mill property near Wattsville and carried on that business in addition to his farming until his death.

Elizabeth died at Carrollton, Ohio. Both are buried at Scroggsfield, near Carrollton.

SAMUEL H. WITHERSPOON, son of William and Mary Witherspoon, born near Canonsburg in Washington County, Pa., was buried in Mill Creek Cemetery near Hookstown where he made his home during his active years, and where for many years he was a successful and wealth merchant.

Married (1) Aug. 27, 1822 Martha Moody, dau. of Robert and Martha

Moody who was born about 1800 and died July 7, 1851 at the age of 51. Other sources say it was 1854.

Married (2) Harriet Casselbery July 3, 1855. She was born about 1828 and died Nov. 13, 1861.

Married (3) Lissie Lozier of Philadelphia, said to be second cousin of Harriet, Samuel's second wife. Married in 1862.

From his obituary: "Mr. Witherspoon was a business man. Hookstown was the scene of his active labors. As he was the first merchant at that point who paid cash for produce, he led the way of enterprise for the whole community. He did well for himself, and helped his patrons more. Many poor men did he help to start in life, some of whom rose to success in business. Among the pleasant things in his old age was the testimony of those whom he had befriended when they were poor and needy. The old books on file also tell of many favors granted, for which was received neither recompense nor thanks.

The changes of time in the course of thirty-four years, brought to this man both success and failure. Unfortunate investments following in turn soon wasted an estate established at forty thousand dollars, leaving our friend in his old age without even a home of his own. It was not always thus.

He was a man of great fidelity to his friends, true to the right, firm in his convictions of duty, and steadfast in his maintenance of the profession of the church, a believer in Christ, and a lover of God. He was liberal to the cause of Christ. Subscription papers sought him out, nor were any sent away without their due portion from his liberal hand and generous heart."

No mention is made in his obituary of his third wife, Lizzie Lozier. It is not known whether she had died or perhaps they were separated or divorced. The compiler of this record has an old letter written by Mary Clementine Morehead to her sister, Margaret Ann, telling about Uncle Sam Witherspoon and his new wife, Lizzie, coming to Frankfort Springs to visit them on their way back from Philadelphia and this letter states that she was a second cousin of Aunt Harriet.

Samuel lived his last years with his daughter, Samantha, near Enon Valley, where he died in his 89th year.

M175–L92 MARGARET (PEGGY) WITHERSPOON (17 Jul. 1799 – 20 Oct. 1867)

M: 31 Oct. 1821 John Witherspoon (6 Oct. 1795 – 3 Sept. 1859) (M180)

Issue: (see John Witherspoon M180)

She married her first cousin, John Witherspoon, son of Samuel and Nancy Agnes (Dobbins) Witherspoon. John, b. Oct. 6, 1795 at Canonsburg, Penna. He died Sept. 3, 1859 at Enon Valley, in Lawrence County,

He was a farmer, a Republican, and a member of the Bethel U. P. Church. He served in the War of 1812.

After Samuel, John's father, died in 1805 at Canonsburg, the family moved to North Beaver Township and presumably lived near some of the Dobbins Family. About 1820 John moved his mother and sisters to a farm near Enon Valley and there married Margaret Witherspoon. Margaret's mother and father, William and Mary Witherspoon, also moved to that area at about the same time.

11. Thomas Edwin (_____1850 – _____1852)

Jane and Thomas (son of Robert and Deborah Stevens Dugan) moved to Enon Valley in what later became Lawrence County, Penna., and after Jane's mother died, her father, William Witherspoon, made his home with them. His death is recorded in their family records and he was buried at Bethel Church Cemetery.

Hazen's 20th Century History of Lawrence County, Pa., 1908, page 455, has the following: "Horace R. Dugan, one of North Beaver's representative citizens, resides on his excellent farm of fifty acres which lies on the Small's Ferry Rd. just south of the Mt. Jackson-Petersburg Rd. He was born on this farm in North Beaver Township, Lawrence County, Pa., May 6, 1857, and is the son of the Hon. Thomas and Cynthia (Hamil) Dugan.

"The late Hon. Thomas Dugan was one of Lawrence County's prominent men and a leading factor in public life for a number of years. He was born in Holiday's Cove, Va., and a son of Robert Dugan. Thomas Dugan came to Western Pennsylvania a young and ambitious man. He settled on land which is now the site of Amount Air, which farm he sold in 1856 and moved on the farm which is now owned by his son, Horace R. Dugan. His occupation through life was farming, but public affairs claimed a large measure of his attention. He was the first representative sent from Lawrence County to the General Assembly and served two years and he secured the charter for the Courthouse and the old cemetery at New Castle. He died on the present farm July 10, 1873, aged 75 years.

Thomas Dugan married (2) Cynthia Hamil and had by her four children.

Also "David and Robert Ramsey came originally from Ireland with their father and settled first near the site of Youngstown, Ohio; sometime previous to 1812. They afterward removed to Little Beaver Township, Lawrence County, Pennsylvania. David's son, John, is now living in Big Beaver Township. He was born on the place in Little Beaver to which his father removed subsequent to the War of 1812."

JOHN WITHERSPOON, the only son of Samuel Witherspoon and Nancy Agnes Dobbins, was born at Cannonsburg in Washington County, Pennsylvania. He died near Enon Valley in Lawrence County, Pennsylvania.

He was a farmer, a Republican, and a member of the Bethel United Presbyterian Church. He served in the War of 1812 as a Private in the company commanded by Captain David Clark in the 138 Regiment of Pennsylvania Militia commanded by Col. Robert Miller. He enlisted on the 1st day of January, 1814, and was honorably discharged at Erie, Pennsylvania on March 12, 1814.

His Last Will and Testament is a very interesting and remarkable instrument, and a copy of it is to follow:

John Witherspoon, Emigrant, married Elizabeth Wright.

From History of Washington County, Pa., Forrest, 1926, Vol. 2, page 611; "John Witherspoon, father of Joshua was born and reared in England. He cast his lot with the pioneer settlers of Maryland and prior to the year 1800, moved from that state to Washington County, Pa." Crumrine's History of Washington Co., Pa: "John Witherspoon, born in Scotland, came first to Maryland and later to Pennsylvania. Children were Jonathan, b. Ireland, John, Azariah, Joshua and Elizabeth."

John Witherspoon lived in Cecil County, Maryland, and sometime between 1795 and 1800 moved his family to Washington County, Pennsylvania.

It is not known whether this John Witherspoon was related to William and Samuel Witherspoon or not. He could have been a brother, but there is no evidence to prove that. He came to America at about the same time they did and he came to the same part of western Pennsylvania they did.

He might have been the son John of the "Untraced John Witherspoon Family" mentioned in the Wardlaw Book.

"One Hundred Years Outlined by Decades 1839-1939," by Mona Osbourne, and "History of Missouri, 1888," by Goodspeed in the Neosho Public Library is found this information:

"William Winfrey Witherspoon moved to Newton County, Missouri, in 1837. He settled on Shoal Creek near the present town of Newtonia, which is a few miles east of Neosho. This land became known as Oliver's Prairie. It was known as the fifty miles of the richest land in Southwest Missouri. William Witherspoon's family was neighbor to the Oliver family. William Witherspoon later married one of Lunsford Oliver's daughters. There is a Witherspoon Spring today (1956) near Stark City, just outside of Newtonia. There was a school house called Old Hickory near the Witherspoon Home.

In 1838 letters and mail were distributed by A. B. Anthony. At that time he had a log store house at John Reed's on Hickory Creek 1½ miles from where the Court House of Newton County in Neosho now is located. In 1841 he moved to a new house, the first stone store building in Neosho on the square. This house was erected by Dr. Barlow, David C. Witherspoon, (brother of William Winfrey) and William W. Witherspoon."

Records today (1956) in the First Presbyterian Church in Neosho, Missouri show that William W. Witherspoon and his wife Margaret Jane Witherspoon were received into membership in the New Salem Cumberland Presbyterian Church at the home of John Plummer March 25, 1838. The memberships were transferred from the Mt. Carmel Presbyterian Church in Lebanon Presbytery in Tennessee. William W. Witherspoon was made an elder of the church at the same time. The New Salem Church was organized the year before with the Rev. John McCord as pastor. Other Witherspoons who joined this church in 1838 were: Benjamin, David C., and Jane.

In 1840 the following joined: James Billingsly and wife Malinda, and Tennessee Billingsly of Cane Hill, Arkansas, and James P. and Newton Loftin. In March 1844 William W. Witherspoon gave permission for a congregational meeting of the church to be held in his home near the Old Hickory School House.

In June 1839, before the County was organized, he was appointed County Treasuruer. During the same year he served on the first jury ever summoned in Newton County which was to judge "The case of John Spurgeon for challenging to fight a duel." A year later, 1840, Newton County was organized with 3,790 population. Neosho was to be the County seat. It had three big springs, one of which was a mineral spring.

November 26, 1838, William W. Witherspoon bought land at public auction in the townsite of Neosho, Missouri. He bought Lot 4, Block 2 on the north fronting on Washington Street fifty feet and extending back east 200 feet for $9.95. He was the biggest bidder.

In 1841 W.W. Witherspoon sold forty acres of land to Levi Lee for $50.00. He owned land in Abbott Addition.

In 1841 he was a member of a party of three, others being Matthew Gibs and Josiah Taylor, to draw up plans for a Jail-dungeon and a Court House for Newton County to be located at Neosho, Missouri. The jail was to be made of double-hewed logs and sixteen feet square with a debtor's room on the outside wall. The frame court house was to be 40 by 45 feet.

In 1846 he was the marker when a re-survey was made of the town of Neosho. This survey laid out the present town square and seven streets that cross it.

August 8, 1846, he sold Lot No. 4, Block 2, for which he had paid $9.95 for $60.00 to Daniel W. Clockett. July 20, 1848 he had to pay $25.00 to have the title cleared for this land. It was co-signed with his second wife Mary's name. This proves that he was married to her by that time.

In 1846 he married Mrs. Mary Oliver Wilson, a daughter of Lunsford

Oliver. She had been married to Col. James Wilson, a member of the Missouri Legislature. They lived near Fairview, a town in Southeast Newton County. Once while her husband was in the legislature she had a two story house moved near a spring. William Winfrey Witherspoon and Mary Witherspoon had one child, Thomas Winfrey.

In October 1848, a year before his death, W. W. Witherspoon bought 120.41 acres of land. This was Block 2 Abbotts Addition in the southeast part of town from Lemuel Hearell for $600.00. This land was a grant to Levi Lee in 1844. He sold it to Andrew Young in 1847 and in the same year he sold it to Hearell. Evidently W. W. Witherspoon did not pay for all the land for on Christmas Day three years after his death his widow, Mary, gave a quit claim deed to Hearrell for the land. In 1856 Mr. Hearell secured the clear title to the land which is in his family today (1956).

A letter dated June 11, 1956, received from L. M. Pierce, after this book was started, who is 90 years old and lives in Perry, Oklahoma, and visited his cousins often on a farm one half mile east of the William Winfrey Witherspoon home place near Neosho, Missouri, gives this information:

"The Witherspoon farm was located two miles south of Newtonia. The house was large and built on top of a high hill. The Witherspoon spring was near the house on the south side just outside the yard. The spring flows north as a tributary to Indian Creek.

"A family by the name of Orran owned the Witherspoon farm in 1866. It is reported that Mr. Orran was hanged for some reason during the Civil War.

"There is a school house just across the road now (1956) east of the Witherspoon farm named Mt. Pleasant. It's nick name is Hell's Half Acre.

"The Witherspoon farm had a wild weed growing on it called sweet annie. The boys dried it out in the oven and kept it in their pockets to chew on, The extract from the root made fine flavoring."

William Winfrey Witherspoon (according to New Salem Presbyterian Church records) died in August, 1849. He was only 49 years of age. His illness was seemingly a short one. He was buried probably in the graveyard of the New Salem Church. The present Neosho Cemetery was opened in 1860.

Minutes of Presbyterian Church of Neosho, Mo.

"Session records with deep regret the departure by death of Bro. William Witherspoon, late, an efficient and useful ruling Elder in this congregation. But while we lament the loss of his counsel and Godly example, and while we sympathize with his bereaved family, we would humbly acquiesce in the Inscrutible Providence that has removed him from his labors below to his reward in Heaven".

From History of Newton County, Mo.

A thick, musty volume published in 1880, containing a history ot Newton County stands on the shelf of the local library. It contains a road map of the path the Witherspoons followed through their years in the area.

William Witherspoon is the first member of the family to appear in the entries on the aged pages. He was also the outstanding Witherspoon, to judge by his many activities.

He came here (from what place unspecified) at the beginning of the 1830's. He settled "on Shoal Creek near what is now Kidder Mills."

William Witherspoon cut quite a wide swath in church and civic affairs. If there was anything going on in the '30's and '40's in the area, William Witherspoon was one of the men participating;

The Cumberland Presbyterian Church was his church. The New Salem congregation (perhaps this is a hint as to where he came from) opened their doors in 1837, Rev. John McCord, pastor. William Witherspoon was one of the first members of the new church.

With him other Witherspoons came to the congregation. Margaret, Margaret Jane, David (later noted as school census taker for Neosho in 1847), Benjamin Witherspoon, "George Washington Nutting and his wife, Jane."

But it was William Witherspoon who made the news during those years. In June, 1839, he was appointed County Treasurer. In July of that year, the first jury ever called in the county was summoned to judge "the case of John Spurgeon, for challenging to fight a duel". William Witherspoon was a member of this jury. No notation appears as to the decision in the case. May 1841 — "Matthew Gibs Josiah Taylor and William Witherspoon were requested to make plans for a 16 foot square log jail-dungeon part to be double hewed logs with a debtors room on the outside wall of the dungeon; also requested to plan for a frame courthouse building, 45 x 40 feet."

In March 1844 a full-congregation of the Church was held at William Witherspoon's near the old Hickory Creek school house."

By January 1846 William Witherspoon was caught up in a surveying project. Actually it was a re-surveying project of Neosho.

The entry reads: "Resurvey of Neosho by F.M. Duncan under orders of Nathan Richardson, county seat Commissioner, was made in January 1846, Levi Lee was flag bearer, William Witherspoon, marker. "Plotted in this survey were: Spring, Main, and Hickory Streets, east and west. Lafayette, Washington, Wood, and Jefferson Streets, north and south. Also, "A public square beginning Washington, Wood, Main and Spring Streets."

In August 1849 this apparently most dynamic member of the Witherspoon clan in Neosho died. The 5 Witherspoon brothers left for Texas about this time.

Jane Minerva was born in Rutherford County, Tenn. She was listed on the census merely as Minerva and although she was affectionately called Jane by her husband, her full name on their marriage certificate is Jane Minerva.

She married Matthew L. McElroy in Rutherford County, who was born of Adam C. and Jane Cunningham McElroy in Virginia. They had moved to Rutherford County, Tenn., about 1820. Matthew was a cabinet maker by trade, however, later in life in Ellis County, Texas, he was a farmer. Jane Minerva's parents moved from Tennessee to Southwest Missouri in 1837 but she and her family remained in Tennessee until they moved to Ellis County, Texas, in 1857 following the removal of some of her brothers to Texas from Missouri.

Jane Minerva is buried in Shiloh Cemetery and Matthew in Ferris, both in Ellis County, Texas.

Their daughter, Mary H., married John M. Andrews in Ellis County and they lived there their entire life and are buried there. Martha Jane married Robert Chapman in Ellis County, Texas. He died in 1870 and she married Matt A. Lang on 8 Feb. 1871 and they lived near Ennis, Texas.

Joseph A. married Edna Jane Laughlin. He served in the 12th Regiment of the Texas Cavalry, Co. F of Parsons Brigade in the Civil War. William David married Harriett Culberson who passed away in 1878 and he married secondly Mary Meredith. He served in the same regiment as Joseph in the Civil War. George C. married Elizabeth Jane Chapman and after her death he married Lula Sawyer and all are buried in Shiloh Cemetery. He also served in the same regiment as his two brothers.

James W. married Henrietta C. Summers and both are buried in the Ovilla Cemetery at Ovilla, Texas. Elizabeth Matilda married Thomas J. Moore and died and is buried in the Hutchins, Dallas, County, Texas, Cemetery. Thomas C. married Laura Rebecca Slaton and both are buried in the Methodist Cemetery at Ovilla, Texas. Violet Ina married G. A. Vance in Ellis County, Texas. Stephen E. married first Lula Knight in 1875 and secondly Mrs. Mollie Dickerson in 1887. Relatives of this line say he married Susan _____? between these two marriages although no record is found of this marriage. John Newton married Leila Hood and his grandson John McElroy in 1972 was living at 3646 Dauila in Dallas, Texas. Finis evidently was not married for he died at the age of 22 and is buried beside his mother. Jefferson E. married Lillie Gillan and he died in Tarrant County, Texas.

A grandson of George, Thurman McElroy in 1970 was living in Midlothian, Texas.

M: (2) _____ Mrs. Frances G. McCaw (_____ – 1860)

He was born at his father's home in Williamsburg County, near Kingstree, S. C., and died of apoplexy, at his home in Lancaster, S. C. He was of medium height, rather stout, with dark hair and eyes, especially neat in his dress, very courteous and polished in manners, high-toned, manly and much given to hospitality; was a man of fine sense, good judgement and universally esteemed. After attending school in his native District he was sent to a famous preparatory school in the Waxhaws, Lancaster District, but before entering the S. C. college, then just opened, and for which he was being prepared, he fell in love with and married a lovely young woman, Jane Donnom, only daughter of Captain Isaac and Sarah (Crawford) DONNOM of Lancaster, S. C. They lived very happily and comfortably in the Waxhaws, near the Catawba River, about 10 miles from Lancaster, S. C.

He engaged extensively in planting and amassed considerable property; about 1831 he moved to Lancaster S. C. and entered upon the duties of District Ordinary; he was Colonel of a militia regiment, being commissioned by Gov. Pinckney in 1818; in 1826 he was elected Lieutenant Governor of S. C., Hon. John Taylor being Governor; he was on the staff of Gov. Hayne 1832; was an ardent Nullifier; among his correspondence, letters, were found from General Andrew Jackson (1767-1845), Gov. Taylor, Gov. Hayne, Gov. Miller (his kinsman), John C. Calhoun, Gen. McDuffie, Gen. Blair, and other distinguished men of his day and time. Also a letter from Gen. Jackson, of Aug. 11, 1824, stating: "I was born in South Carolina, as I have been told, at the plantation where James Crawford lived, about one mile from the Carolina road (crossing) of the Waxhaw Creek". See Andrew Jackson, The Border Captain, by Marquis James, 1933, pp. 11, 31, 368, 371, and 376. The following is a true copy of an autograph letter from Gen. JACKSON, which, it seems, would decide the question as to his place of birth: "Hermitage, June 2, 1828.

"Gentlemen:

"I have had the pleasure to receive your letter of the 12th ult. inviting me to celebrate with the citizens of my native District the approaching anniversary of our National Independence. For this pleasing testimonial of the esteem of the citizens of Lancaster, I beg you gentlemen to offer to them the assurance of my heartfelt thanks. If it were in my power, nothing would be more pleasing to my feeling than to comply with their request, but the distance to be traveled, and the various requisitions on my time at home, compel me to say that the pleasure must be postponed to some other period. Be pleased, gentlemen, to accept for yourselves individually and convey to those you represent, my gratitude for your tender recollection of me as a citizen of Lancaster. This obligation is heightened by the conscientiousness on my part that absence and time have not weakened the ardour of that sentiment which consecrates the memory of the place of my birth. I have the honor to be gentlemen,

Your obedient servant,
ANDREW JACKSON."

(A copy of this letter in Jackson's handwriting is on file in the Weatherford Public Library – Weatherford, Texas.)

"Messrs. JAMES H. WITHERSPOON, John Nesbit, John Stewart, Naomi Barber, Jackey Perry, Sam'l Gibson, Bartlett Jones, H. Massey, Sr., I. Donnom, John McKenna." The envelope was postmarked "Nashville, Tenn., June 3, forwarded 25th, and directed to Messr. JAMES H. WITHERSPOON and others, Lancaster, S. C."

Col. Witherspoon was married secondly to Mrs. Frances G. McCaw of Bolton, Abbeville District, S. C.; she was the daughter of Mr. Todd, and widow of Dr. Wm. McCaw, a dashing surgeon of the U. S. Army; she died about 1860, and was greatly respected by her husband's family. After his second marriage he was handsomely entertained for several days by Gov. McDuffie, Major Burt, Col. Tilman and others.

Thornwell's Life and Letters, by Dr. B.M. Palmer, page 132 says:

"Col. Witherspoon was one of the leading men in the District and not without distinction in the State, having served as Lieutenant Governor and was a candidate for Congress, with every prospect of being elected,when he was stricken with paralysis, which terminated in his death. He was a man of large views, of great energy and enthusiasm, and possessed an almost unbounded popularity."

Jane Donnom was born in the Waxhaws. She was a most lovely woman of deep piety, of a quiet, sweet disposition, combining great firmness with gentleness and tenderness. Her portrait, long in possession of her granddaughter, Jane Donnom Wardlaw, presents one of the sweetest faces imaginable. Both Col. Witherspoon and his wife, Jane Donnom, were buried at the old Waxhaw graveyard – one of the oldest burying grounds in the upper part of the state, the church being organized about 1762.

James Hervey Witherspoon was brought up by his uncle, Dr. John Ramsay Witherspoon (M17).

"DEATH OF A WELL KNOWN WOMAN"
By a Friend
–1816 – 1884 –

In a neighboring city on last Saturday evening, April 12, 1884, an event occurred of no ordinary interest – the death of a venerable and remarkable lady, Mrs. Eliza Goldthwaite, who had lived in Mobile, greatly respected for a long course of years. The deceased was a Miss Witherspoon before her marriage with Judge Henry Goldthwaite, the eldest daughter of that highly cultured gentleman, Dr. Jno. Ramsay Witherspoon (M17), of Alabama, Ky., and S. C., a neighbor and intimate friend of Henry Clay, when he resided near him in Kentucky. Dr. Witherspoon was a graduate of Princeton College, Librarian of the Institution, and Secretary of its President, the famous Rev. John Witherspoon, D. D., and after his removal to Greensboro, Ala., his home was the resort of the best people of the State.

Among that number was Henry Goldthwaite, a rising member of the Mobile bar, who was so fortunate as to win the heart of Miss Eliza, one of the great belles in Alabama's olden and admired for her wit and brilliancy. After marriage she became one of the leading women of Mobile, and the home of Judge Henry Goldthwaite was a center and resort of nearly all the distinguished visitors to that town. Mrs. Goldthwaite was noted for her kind attentions to young people, and especially those who came from the North and England and France to engage in the cotton business of that port; also for her kindness to the soldiers of Louisiana, many of whom camped near her residence. Her husband died of yellow fever in 1847 at age of 45 and left her with seven children, and it was then that she exhibited the true greatness of her sex and her blood. Aided greatly by her brother-in-law, Judge Jno. A. Campbell of New Orleans, who married her husband's sister, Miss Goldthwaite and Judge Campbell managed the estate and proved a true and disinterested friend. Mrs. Goldthwaite brought up a family that reflects the highest honor upon their mother's fidelity and care, as they are influential citizens in several states. She educated her children at Princeton, and resided there during the time, when she was kindly received by the professors of the college and seminary, and where her memory is now held in the highest esteem. The deceased was all through life a member of the Presbyterian church and died in that faith.

Her mother was a daughter of Gen. Joseph Graham, of Revolutionary fame, and an aunt of Mrs. (Stonewall) Jackson and Mrs. Gen. D. H. Hill, and she, herself, was a niece of Senator and Gov. William A. Graham, of North Carolina, but it was her own womanly merits that made her name precious to a very large circle of relatives, friends, and acquaintances.

The earth closes on Tuesday next upon a true woman when Mrs. Goldthwaite will be buried by the side of her husband in the Mobile Cemetery.

The funeral of Mrs. Eliza Goldthwaite took place from her former residence. The pallbearers were her own sons, Dr. Henry G., Alfred G., George and her grandsons, Henry Goldthwaite and John Freeland. The floral decorations were the largest and prettiest ever seen here, and many beautiful figures, emblems, crosses, crowns and pillars of roses covered the coffin. Many of those were contributed by the colored people whom she had assisted when the epidemic raged. Mrs. Goldthwaite was highly respected and universally beloved by all. She was connected with the founder of Princeton College, Gen. Graham and others of fame.

He was born at Lexington, Ky., and died at Gallatin, Tenn., and is buried in Gallatin Cemetery; he was prepared for Princeton College, but ill health prevented his going, and his education was completed by a tutor at "Brookland", his father's home near Greensboro, Alabama. At the outbreak of the Civil War, though he was opposed to secession, he was elected Captain of the company, which went into camp at Hall's Hill, Alabama, where he was stricken with typhoid fever; on his recovery, he resigned his captaincy in favor of his first sergeant, and he was appointed, with rank and pay of captain, to the Commisary Department of Confederate States Army, and stationed at Selma, Alabama, as headquarters. He lived in Mobile until 1868; was a member of the firm of J. A. Weymss & Co., in the cotton warehouse business; in 1868 he moved to Fresno County, California, where he owned a ranch about three miles from Centerville, engaged in planting wheat; his crop was destroyed in 1872 by large bands of cattle, which were permitted to roam the country then. In 1873 he removed to Gallatin, Tenn., where he was made Cashier, which position he held until 1894, when he resigned and joined his son, Walter, in the mercantile business. In December 1896, he and Walter, with their families, moved to Louisville, Ky., where they joined Robert Sidney Witherspoon (O88), who had established a shoe manufacturing plant there in 1894, under the style of "R. S. Witherspoon", which was changed to "Witherspoon Brothers and Company" in 1897.

He married the daughter of Rev. Lemuel Durant HATCH (1793-1866) and Martha Hill Dickenson (1803-1880), his wife; (J. G. Wardlaw says of him: "He is described as a 'gentleman of the old school', tall, and fine looking." He was six feet tall, weighed 175 pounds, had blue eyes and dark hair and wore a full beard.

His wife, the eldest daughter, was educated at Parson's Seminary, Albany, N. Y. Her grandfather was Gen. Durant Hatch (1750-1830), who was son of Lemuel Hatch (1721-1777), son of Anthony Hatch, Jr. (1680-1726), son of Anthony Hatch (1630-1688), of Lower Norfolk County, Va., whose will of 10 Dec. 1688, states he was "of the province of North Carolina in the County of Albemarle.

4. Tabitha (26 Dec. 1832 – _____1870)

After he and Mary were married they settled in Illinois, near Springfield, where their four children were born. Some years later they moved and settled in Newton County, Arkansas (Northwestern Arkansas). Here he became so well and favorably known he was elected county treasurer,(1843-1847) at Jasper, the county seat then and today also. I have seen and made copies of some official county papers along with other important papers kept and well preserved to this day, presently in the possession of the late Levi (O112) and O. B. Witherspoon (P230) widows, Bennie and Mattie.

Newton County is in most part rugged and not suitable for extensive farming. Again they removed seeking a more desirable location where opportunity for their way of life could be more rewarding. They settled in Western Polk County Arkansas near where the small town of Vandervoort now stands. This was in the year of 1849 or 1850.

Upon arrival at the newly selected home site, just mentioned, Samuel G. has been quoted as saying in substance:

"Here the land is new and fertile and it should be a healthy place in which we may live in peace and comfort and serve our God that gave it.

"Here also I expect to spend the remaining days of my life, and we shall with hard work prepare accordingly."

At this time, 1850, it was truly a wilderness with few inhabitants, the roads and paths were poor and few, so people soon learned to blaze the trees from place to place to avoid becoming lost in the forest. This was also nature's natural home for wild fowl and animals, such as bear in limited numbers, deer, turkeys and smaller animals and fowl were abundant for more than half a century afterwards, a source of very good food in season.

Both Samuel and his son, Levi, immediately built for themselves large comfortable houses on the land grant place, (now called homestead). Soon thereafter my grandfather Levi met and married my grandmother, Jane Cecil; her father was William Cecil, born in 1802, died in 1880, her mother, Rebecca, was born in 1808, died in 1868.

My grandfather and grandmother had a large family of children of which all of them grew up to maturity except an infant son. The fidelity of this family was outstandingly prominent.

Here on the land grant place both father and son became successful in farming and millers of wheat, corn and oats and also in other business enterprises. Prior to the advent of a railroad some 45 years hence, all supplies were hauled by ox or horse drawn wagons from distant trading posts, taking many days for the round trip. They were truly pioneers of the type of their forefathers who came to America in the 1730's, and were confronted with many similar problems.

Both families and their lovely wives spent their remaining days on this place and were buried on a plot of ground in a wooded area, chosen by great-grandfather who, himself, was the first person buried on land he set aside for that purpose. Many of his descendants, including the writer's mother and infant brother are buried nearby. This free burial grounds are today known by the family name, "Witherspoon Cemetery."

Mr. Boykin Witherspoon was born in Darlington District, S. C., and died near Bloster, La. He graduated from the S. C. College in 1833. Among his classmates were Gen. Wade Hampton and Dr. J. Marion Sims. He moved to DeSoto Parish in 1854, and settled the plantation upon which he lived, until his death.

He was a man of great purity of character, an example of a high type of a southern gentleman. Manly, courteous, high toned, pure in thought and speech. He loved the truth and true men. Having cultivated mind and good judgment his neighbors sought his advice. He was true to great principles and stood unflinchingly to his convictions. Upright and honorable himself, he despised everything low and mean, and would rather have suffered his right arm severed than violate his conscience. He was fond of company and kept open house; the stranger was never turned away from his door. He dispensed a generous hospitality and was delighted to have the young around his board. His heart was ever open to melting charity. The poor and unfortunate never went away from him empty handed, yet his charities were bestowed in such a quiet unostentatious manner, that the world never knew of them.

But it was in the home circle that he shone most conspicuously. A tender, true husband, who "loved with a love that was more than love; an affectionate, devoted father, who made home so pleasant, that his children preferred it to any other place. He was a true, Christian gentleman. And as was said by Rev. Mr. Loftus in his funeral sermon, "a man without guile." It was beautiful to observe the loving devotion of his wife, as well as that of his daughters, who nursed him during his long illness. Surely, no parent was ever blessed with more loyal, filial attention, and they have the happy consciousness of having done all that was possible for the comfort of their beloved father.

Mr. Witherspoon was a State's Rights Democrat. He was a great admirer of Mr. Calhoun, whose work on the "Theory of Government," he made a special study. He often said, "Calhoun's reply to Webster was unanswerable, it had never been answered, and never would be." He was thoroughly conversant with the constitution of the U. S. and of the great constitutional questions that have arisen since the formation of the government, so that it was the delight of his friends to gather around him and absorb the information that fell from his lips in delightful language. During the days of reconstruction he took a prominent part, and rendered effective service in ridding the state of carpet-bag rule. He never missed an election, and though in feeble health, rode several miles to cast his vote for Bryan.

At his death DeSoto has lost one of her best and purest citizens. He was buried at Salem, where a large concourse of sorrowing friends both white and colored, had gathered to assist in laying away their good friend.

Peace to his ashes.

In 1836 he was baptised into the fellowship of the Rock Springs Baptist Church and on 24 Aug. 1839 was ordained a minister and was pastor of the Bethel Church for 14 years. He was the principal instrument in the organization of the Bethany, Drakes Creek and Friendship Churches in Warren County, Ky., and the Liberty and Big Springs Churches in Allen County, Ky. Rev. Younger Witherspoon was the only ordained minister entered into the Association at the time of its constitution. In 1845 the Southern Baptists withdrew from the General Mississippi Convention over the question of slavery and other matters, and then formed the Southern Baptist Convention. He lived a long and useful life and was laid to rest in one of the Church cemeteries, where he had served. He was well acquainted with the Scriptures, had volubility in prayer, and was a zealous adherent to the Church. Before his death he gave thanks for the privilege of being a descendent of a long line of humble and eminently pious ancestry, that his lot had been cast in a land of Gospel light and that his life, in the good Providence of God, had been thus prolonged to prepare and leave as a Memorial to his surviving family and friends.

John lived in Warren County, Ky., and in 1850 moved to Lawrence County, Mo., where one night he was called to the door of his home and shot by Bushwackers. The house and contents were burned and the family saved only the clothes they were wearing and some bedding, which was on the clothes line. Union soldiers gathered the family together and with some other people who had also been burned out, took them to a refugee camp near Springfield, Mo. Mrs. Polina Witherspoon, with some of her children, started for Illinois where her husband's brother, Simeon Lemuel, lived, but died while on the way apparently of grief and although her son, James Knox, looked for many years for her burial place, it was never found. The following quote is from a letter from Mrs. Corrine Witherspoon of Fredonia, Kan., whose husband is a grandson of Polina Witherspoon: "Her son James Knox was a small boy at that time but many times during the few short years that I knew him he spent many hours near Springfield, Mo. searching for his mother's grave. He never found it and if anyone knew where it was he was never told. In the National cemetery at Springfield is row upon row of white stones which bear only the inscription: "Citizen'. I have wondered if one of these stones marks her burial place."

Many members of this line of the WITHERSPOON family spelled their names WEATHERSPOON and it was used interchangeably in many cases. Many of the family still spell the names that way.

Much of the information of this line was furnished by Mrs. Frances Andrews of Palata, Fla., who is now deceased. She was a daughter of Eliza Ann Witherspoon.

James Franklin Witherspoon was born in Anderson County, Kentucky, and was a great-grandson of two famous Revolutionary soldiers: Thomas Prather and Captain John Lilliard, who is buried in a marked grave at Oakview Farm, near Harrodsburg, Ky., owned by Col. John J. McGee, a grandson of James Franklin Witherspoon. Col. McGee, fifth of the John McGees of Kentucky, lives on the farm which was surveyed for the original John J. McGee by Robert McAfee in 1773 and has been in the McGee family continuously since that time. James Franklin's wife, Nancy Penney Witherspoon, also numbered among her great-grandparents two Revolutionary soldiers, John Penney, Sr., and Nathaniel Burrus. Grandfather Witherspoon, known affectionately by his grandchildren as "the old gentleman", was a sterling representative of the Southern soldiers who returned from the war to the ruins of their personal fortunes and courageously laid their hands to the rebuilding of the land they loved. How well he succeeded will be sketched in this narrative by one who knew him well in the author's boyhood and young manhood.

(Quote from the Foreword of a booklet titled: Jim Witherspoon, a Soldier of the South, by James Franklin Corn of Cleveland, Tenn.) The following account of his life is several extracts from the above mentioned booklet:

"The records of the boyhood days of James Franklin Witherspoon are meager. Presumably he spent his boyhood on the farm of his father, Lewis Johnson Witherspoon, for he inherited both land and slaves from his father and mother, Ellender Lilliard Witherspoon, including Robert, valued at $500.00, Jeptha, valued at $300.00, George, valued at $1050.00, and Ben (not valued), as shown by settlements recorded in the office of the County Clerk of Anderson County, Kentucky. He received his education at Kentucky Military Institute and Georgetown College at Georgetown, Kentucky, where as he once expressed it, "aware of his wild ways" he was converted. His church was the Baptist, of which he remained a member until the time of his death."

Details of his military career are vividly given in the booklet mentioned above, but quoting again: "Lt. Witherspoon's military career almost came to an abrupt end while the battalion was in Greenville, S. C. On the fateful evening of March 24, 1864, Witherspoon and another young officer stayed in town late for the purpose of doing some serenading and were arrested by the provost guard for violating curfew. An altercation arose in which the Lt. struck a Corporal of the guard with his pistol and was disarmed 'with considerable difficulty' by other members of the guard. The adventure resulted in a court-martial and discharge, but was to have a happy ending."

He was paroled on April 30, 1865 and later pardoned by President Andrew Johnson whose personal signature was affixed to the instrument dated Sept. 10, 1865.

James Franklin Corn is a grandson of James Franklin Witherspoon and his mother was Emma Julia Witherspoon (O329).

8. David Harper (17 Jun. 1876 – 28 May 1850)
9. Grace (14 Sep. 1878 – _____)

She was born at Chambersburg, Pa., and after the death of her husband in 1879 she sold their place in Burnsville, W. Va., and bought a home with five acres of land near Shippensburg, Pa., where she would be near her relatives. She was a lifelong member of the Presbyterian Church. She was a small and very cheerful person with kindly lines in her face. She had blue eyes and beautiful curly hair. Her children often spoke of her lovely character. She died at the home of her daughter, Mary, at Hutchinson, Kan., and was buried beside her husband in Spring Hill Cemetery at Shippensburg, Pa. Rev. William Ryan Sibbett was born at Newville, Pa. The Sibbett family originally were in Normandy before the Crusades. Many of them settled in Scotland, then some went to the Northern Part of Ireland where they lived for many generations before some of them migrated to the United States. Of these, the grandfather of William Ryan Sibbett, Samuel Sibbett, was born and lived in the province of Ulster. He married Alice Lowry, also Scotch-Irish. The family came to America in 1800. At that time Ireland was struggling against England for separation and Robert Emmet headed the ill-fated rebellion. Samuel Sibbett was Emmet's head leader. When England set a price on Samuel's head, Nobert Emmet advised him to leave Ireland.

The family settled in the Cumberland Valley in Penn., among Scotch-Irish Presbyterian friends. William Ryan Sibbett graduated from Washington and Jefferson College in Pennsylvania and became a Presbyterian minister. After his marriage to Sarah Elizabeth Witherspoon, they went to Caledonia, Ohio, where William had his first pastorate. His next was at Frostburg, Md., where he preached to the soldiers stationed there. After that he came to Newburg, W. Va., then to Burnsville, W. Va., where he bought 60 acres of land. There was a log house on the land, and to this he built an addition. Later, on his own land, he built a church and a school house and gave them to the town. It was in Burnsville that 4 of the youngest of their nine children were born. While living in Burnsville, he preached in the church there, as well as at Parkersburg and Elkton, as a Home Missionary or Circuit Rider. He was a tall, strong man with black hair with a reddish beard. He rode horseback on most of his trips but sometimes drove his "spring wagon", taking along one of his sons. While he was at Elkton on one of his horseback trips in midwinter, he was stricken with pneumonia. The river being frozen, he was carried across it to his home. His death occurred nine days later. He is buried in Spring Hill Cemetery at Shippensburg, Pa.

"Col. William P. Witherspoon inherited a large estate from his Uncle Joshua (M114). He served in the wars against the Creeks and Cherokees (Indians), rising to the rank of Militia Colonel. He was at one time a very wealthy planter, but everything was swept away during the War Between the States. He enlisted in Company "B", North Carolina Regiment of the Southern Confederacy at the age of 14 and served as a courier on special detail of the staff of Gen. Edward Johnson and George Stuart until his capture during the last year of the war, after which he was kept in prison at Elmira, N. Y., until the end of the war. He was wounded five times, once seriously. As long as he lived, he remained true and loyal to the ideals and principles for which the Confederate soldiers fought. He returned to Wilkes County, N. C., for a short time after the war and went to Texas, where he was educated in McKenzie College, under the supervision of a kinsman, Dr. J. W. P. McKenzie, a descendent of Kenneth McKenzie who married Martha Witherspoon (L59), sister of Thomas Witherspoon (L53) and then came back to Wilkes County to study law under Judge R. F. Armfield, and was admitted to the bar and practiced law until 1884 when he moved to Newton where he remained until he removed to Murphy about 1910 and practiced law there with his son, Donald, until his death.

Shortly after his removal to Newton, he connected himself with the Presbyterian Church and was made Ruling Elder. Soon after moving to Murphy he joined the Presbyterian Church there and was elected a Ruling Elder there also, where he served until his death. For a little more than half of his life he had filled this high office.

Col. Witherspoon, as he was universally known, the title coming to him after the war, was a fine gentleman of the "old school", a type unfortunately becoming all too rare. He was greatly honored and loved by all who knew him. Although in active practice, his kindly courtesy toward all who knew him, and his broad charity won for him universal esteem. He did what he could to maintain the lofty ideals of his profession.

A true man in all the relations of life, he could not have been otherwise than loyal to his Church. Every Sunday found him in his accustomed place and his occasional absence was noticed by almost everyone. He participated actively in all its services and contributed liberally of his means to all its benevolences. In the Sunday School he always manifested a deep interest, and was a dependable worker, filling the place of the Superintendent in his absence and teaching the men's Bible Class. He was extremely fond of children and greatly beloved by them. He passed away as he had hoped, without any long, lingering illness and was laid to rest by the side of his wife in the beautiful cemetery at Newton. His funeral from the Presbyterian Church was largely attended and the beautiful tributes from all sections bore eloquent testimony to the esteem in which he was held.

To his friends he left the blessed assurance that his was the peace that "passeth all understanding" and to the bereaved family the priceless heritage of an untarnished name."

The following is a brief description of Elizabeth (Betty) as related by Mrs. Meade F. Griffin of Austin, Texas.

"Betty was a decided brunette, black eyes, 5 ft. 5 in., weighing 132 pounds. She was small and slim, very erect and a bit prim. She was a very strict Methodist and never spoke ill of anyone behind their back. It was said that when she was a very young miss, she defied a mob and prevented one of her slaves from being killed. She hated war, whiskey and cards, but would go any distance to see a horse race.

After her husband's death she purchased a very large house in town on Magnolia St. in Palestine where she held "social court'. Her intimates were Mesdames Shambling, Lacy, Word and Quarles.

James Green and Philip Shute had come to Texas from Tennessee in the late 1870s and formed the Gainesville Land and Cattle Co. in Gainsville. The brothers owned and operated this ranch which is now sprawled over parts of Foard (then Hardeman), Baylor, Haskell, Knox and King counties.

They also visited Glenn Halsell, who now owns about 100,000 acres of the first ranch, and the old original ranch headquarters on his place. Best known brands on the ranch then were Three Nines, Ula, Teaspoon, Hip C and Turkey Track. Cattle were driven to Montana markets and to other ranges which the brothers owned.

So remotely settled was the country that the brothers' address was Margaret; however, on Dec. 6, 1887, a postoffice, known as Ula, was established. Mail was then brought from Benjamin by Ula to Margaret.

After the organization of Foard County, a venture in which Jim Witherspoon was the leading figure, the postoffice of Ula was discontinued on August 1, 1891. But long after horses and cattle ceased to wear these old brands, the old Witherspoon Ranch cowboys would gather in Fort Worth for the "3 --Nines" Roundup. They recalled experiences on this ranch which had offered so many employment in the early days, when men were proud to say, "I was a Witherspoon cowboy."

Quoted from the Daily Register of Gainesville, Texas, on Thurs., Mar. 27, 1969.

"Samuel Dobbins Witherspoon, who resided on a farm of 106 acres of land in Little Beaver Township, Lawrence County, Pa., was a venerable and respected citizen who experienced the hardships and privations of pioneer life in that community and witnessed the wonderful transformation time had wrought since that early day. He was born on the farm on which he lived and spent most of his days there. Being the oldest son, the task of clearing the land developed largely upon him and his father.

"The woods abounded in game and the conditions and character of the houses, the manner of living and of harvesting the crops, were so vastly different from the comprehension of the younger generation. He attended the old school house in his District, which was built of logs, and with the ceiling so low the pupils could strike it with their fists. With the exception of a three months trip to the west, during 1858, he had been almost continuously located on his present farm which he purchased from the heirs, upon the death of his mother in 1867. He erected a comfortable home in that year and in 1885 built a large and substantial barn. He was a hard worker during his active career, thrifty and economical, and he laid by a competency which enabled him to spend his declining years in the peace and comfort of a retired life.

"In 1860 he married Mary Douglas, daughter of William Douglas. Politically, he was a Prohibitionist and served as a member of the School Board as well as four years as a Supervisor. Religiously, he was a member of the Bethel United Presbyterian Church."

The following is a discharge from the Army.

"I do certify; That I have carefully examined the said – Alexander Martin Witherspoon of Capt. John T. Smith's Co. B. and find him incapable of performing the duties of a soldier because of protracted pneumonia. In my opinion the severity and duration of the disease renders him too liable to a recurrence of it that he cannot be of service as a soldier during the next six months. He is 43 years of age and has apparently suffered much from previous disease". Surgeon P.A.C.S.

5. Newton Allen (8 Jul. 1858 – 20 Jun. 1931)
6. Cora (29 Jun. 1863 – 13 Dec. 1942)

She was born in Newton County, Mo., and came to Texas with her brother, Joseph H. (O23) in 1850 and settled in Ellis County, living near Ovilla. Her son, Donald Porter, lived in Midlothian, Texas, until 1890 when he and his family left with his Uncle William Anderson Witherspoon for West Texas. Donald Porter stopped at Benjamin, Texas, where he decided to live and William went on to Deaf Smith County where he lived and died.

Her daughter, Paralee Laughlin, married William Wilson and they left Ellis County, Texas, about the time her brother, Donald Porter, and their Uncle William Anderson Witherspoon, and settled in Hereford, Texas, in Deaf Smith County. She was one of the charter members of the Presbyterian Church there which was organized in 1891. Her daughter, Avarilla Josephen (Josie) Wilson, married Joseph Lee Witherspoon (P96). Paralee's daughter, Jennie, married Porter Fuqua, who operated a ranch near Amarillo, Texas, where William and Paralee Wilson then lived.

Paralee's son, Robert Lee Wilson, married Sarah Frances (Sallie) Witherspoon (P59) daughter of William Anderson and Malinda Garvin. Martha Jennie Laughlin married John Harmon and they lived in Cleburne, Texas, where he operated one of the first grocery stores there. She died and is buried in Cleburne, Texas. Her daughter, Stella, married Charles R. Coney and their 3 sons, Harmon, Mason and Harold, lived in Weatherford, Texas, in 1972. Cecil Wilson, another grandson of Paralee Wilson, lived in Truth or Consequences, New Mexico, in 1972.

Another son of Margaret Jane Witherspoon, Benjamin Franklin, married Sarah Williams, and her son, Newton Allen Laughlin, married Narcissa Billingsley on 22 Nov. 1888 at Childress, Texas, and were the parents of four children. In 1972 only one was still living: Mrs. Ethel Laughlin Roberson of Orange, Calif.

The youngest child of Margaret Jane Witherspoon and Newton Carroll Laughlin was Cora, who married Charles Keesee and lived most of their lives at Oville, Texas, but later moved to Electra, Texas, where she died. Her daughter, Etta, was living there in 1972.

Joseph H. Witherspoon was the eldest son of William Winfrey Witherspoon and acted somewhat as a father to the family because of the death of their father in 1849 when he was only 49 years old. Joseph or JOE as he was called, was only 13 years old when the family moved from Murfreesboro, Tenn., in 1837. The records of the New Salem Presbyterian Church of Neosho, Mo., show that at a camp meeting held on the Union Camp grounds he, together with Thomas L. Boyd, joined the Church. Joseph accumulated some land in Neosho, owning 150 acres in the McCord addition, which was on the north side of the square and north of the town. The McCord now is 5 blocks wide and 10 blocks long. He left the land when he came to Texas and never paid taxes on it, and seven years later, on October 29, 1857, the records in the Newton County Court House show that it was sold for the taxes due, amounting to $150.00. A number of families, some of whom were related to the Witherspoons, moved to Texas in 1847. Texas had been annexed to the United States only 2 years previously.

They settled in what was to become Ellis County, which was at that time a part of Navarro County, and they came with the Peter's Colony settlers and he was granted 320 acres of land, Patent No. 360, in Robertson District. This land was located on Waxahachie Creek between the small towns of Waxahachie and Midlothian, Texas. He assisted in the organization of Ellis County and served on the first Grand Jury ever summoned in the new county.

Soon after he arrived in Texas, he hired James H. Boyd to bring his two brothers, Finis Euen and John Martin, to Texas, and the records of the Newton County court house show that Boyd was paid $34.50 from the estate of his father, William Winfrey. In April of 1886, Joseph Witherspoon sold a strip of land 100 feet wide containing two acres to the Fort Worth and New Orleans Railway Company, to be used as a right of way for the new railroad, receiving $100.00 for the two acres.

The homestead of Joseph and his wife, Rebecca Bell Witherspoon, was located 8 miles west of Waxahachie, Texas, and four miles east of Midlothian, on the north bank of the creek. A spring branch ran through the farm and provided a wading pool for the children.

During the Civil War, he joined Parson's Brigade which was made up mainly of men from Ellis County and spent most of the war in Arkansas and Tennessee. During the early days of Ellis County, camp meetings afforded the people with religious experience as well as social contacts with their neighbors. Many courtships and even marriages took place at some of these Camp Meetings. One camp meeting was located near Sardis in a beautiful Elm grove on land given by Joseph Witherspoon. He and his wife, Sarah, are both buried in Mt. Zion Cemetery near Midlothian, Texas.

Boyd came back to Missouri and brought him together with his brothers to Texas in 1850. Finis was 27 years old when the Civil War began in 1861 so he joined the cavalry made up of Ellis County men and which furnished one of the largest groups for the army in Texas. It was Parson's Regiment and Captain Stokes' Company. During the battle at Cotton Plant, Ark., he was wounded, having part of his skull blow away. Unlike most of the other members of his family, he did not marry until he was 36 years old. In his later life, he traveled selling Bibles, mechanical pencils and other small items. He was very religious and loved to sing. Traveling on the train, he would waken people who were trying to sleep with his singing.

10. Roxanna (6 Dec. 1885 – 29 Jan. 1949)
11. Mary Leona (28 Oct. 1887 – 4 Oct. 1921)

He was born in Murfreesboro, Tenn., and was about a year old when his parents moved to Newton County, Mo. When most of his brothers and sisters moved to Texas around 1847 to 1850, he remained with his brother, Benjamin, in Missouri until 1870 when both moved into Ellis County, Texas. Records in the Ellis County Court House show that he brought 160 acres of land from James McCartney in the northeast part of the county, paying $360.00 in gold. He sold this in 1890 and moved to West Texas into the region which was later to become Deaf Smith County. The Western Union Land Company owned a large tract of land here and sold to an old Quaker gentleman named McMasters 640 acres for $1600.00. The Grenada Town Site Company managed all this land for its owners and so William Anderson Witherspoon filed for a section of this land and settled on it. Soon the town of Grenada was laid out and a petition for the organization of a new county was circulated. The town of Grenada later became La Platta because there was already a town in Texas by the name of Grenada and the change was made at the request of the Post Office Department.

So LaPlatta became the county seat of the newly formed Deaf Smith County, but in 1898 a county election was held and the people voted 96 to 9 to move the county seat to Hereford so LaPlatta soon became a ghost town. William Anderson Witherspoon was one of those who assisted in the organization of Deaf Smith County and he and his 6 sons all became prominent citizens of the county and all were leaders in civic, religious and cultural interests. Many of his descendents still live in this area.

10. Ethel (_____1885 – _____1893)
11. John Calvin (7 Feb. 1888 – 14 Mar. 1969)

He came to Texas in 1849, when but nine years of age, and settled in Ellis Co. His parents died when he was only eight years old, and he came to this state with an uncle, James Boyd, (N16) who lived in Ellis County until his death in 1859. John M. afterward lived with an older brother, Joseph H. Witherspoon (O23) who came to this state in 1847, where he died in 1886. After reaching a suitable age, Mr. Witherspoon was employed as a farm hand, which he continued until he enlisted in the army, in Captain Stokes' company and Parson's regiment. His services were mostly in Arkansas and Louisiana, where he participated in many skirmishes and engagements. He served until the close of the war, after which he returned home, and in 1867 bought the tract of land of seventy-seven acres, to which he added until he owned ninety acres, sixty acres of which were under cultivation.

In 1867, Mr. Witherspoon married Miss Nancy E. Cooper, a daughter of Isaac and Lurana Cooper, natives of Indiana, but who came to Texas in an early day, where they subsequently died. Mr. and Mrs. Witherspoon had eleven children. He was a member of the Board of Overseers, a school director, and a member of the Grange and Alliance. Religiously, he was a member of the Cumberland Presbyterian Church, of which he was a ruling elder, and politically, he was a Democrat.

Tragedy struck the household in 1880 when two of his daughters, Ida M. and Ella J., were drowned in Waxahachie Creek. In December of 1895, he sold his farm for $3,000.00 and with the cash he received, he purchased the hotel in Midlothian which the family operated for several years until it burned with a total loss and no insurance. He moved in 1899 to Grand Prairie, Texas, a thriving town between Ft. Worth and Dallas, Texas, where the family lived for only one year, then in 1900 they moved to Roscoe in West Texas. In 1902, John Martin's wife, Nancy, died suddenly and she was buried in Roscoe, Texas. Jack then lived with his daughter, Frances, in Midlothian Texas, where he died in 1909. His wife's body was removed and both are buried in Mt. Zion Cemetery in Midlothian, Texas.

9. William Ray (29 Apr. 1874 – 31 May 1962)
10. Virgil Blanchard (13 Sep. 1877 – 12 Jan. 1956)

He was born in Murfreesboro, Tenn., and moved with his parents to Neosho, Mo., in 1837 where he lived until 1873 when he moved to Texas, residing in Bell County. He remained there only one year and in 1874, he returned to Missouri and lived there until 1878 when he returned to Texas with his family and settled in Parker County on a farm about 7 miles west of Weatherford. He purchased the farm of about 200 acres where he lived until his death 11 years later. His widow, Cordelia Jane, continued to live there with her three younger sons until the farm was paid for. Two of her sons, William Ray and Virgil Blanchard, married, but the third, Allen Melton, remained until his death and when the farm was then sold. Both Thomas G. and Cordelia Jane are buried in the Newberry cemetery 9 miles west of Weatherford, Texas.

His wife, Cordelia Jane Ray, was a sister of Abraham Ray who married Thomas G. Witherspoon's sister, Elizabeth (O46). They are the children of John Ray and Sarah Spears who were living in Neosho, Mo., according to the 1850 census. They had married in Kentucky and had moved to Neosho, Mo., in 1830. John Ray was born in Kentucky but his wife, Sarah Spears, was born in North Carolina. John and Sarah had eight children: 1. George Thomas; 2. Abraham; 3. Cordelia; 4. William; 5. Pricilla; 6. Louisa; 7. Wade (Wid), and 8. Thomas Richard.

Pricilla lived most of her life with her sister, Cordelia, and her husband, Thomas G., in Parker County and died and is buried in the Newberry cemetery near Weatherford.

His birth record as listed in the family Bible of David C. Witherspoon, who was his uncle, lists him as Joseph F. Witherspoon. For some reason, it was changed to Joseph Sylvester, but according to his granddaughter, Mrs. Robert N. May of Dallas, Texas, who is the daughter of Ollie Beatrice Witherspoon, who was the daughter of Alice Catherine Witherspoon (P97), Joseph's daughter, who told the story to the author of this book, her grandfather was not happy with the spelling because of some disagreement with a relative whose name was Sylvester, he changed the spelling to CYLVESTER and his cemetery marker shows him to have been JOSEPH C. WITHERSPOON. He is buried in the Shiloh cemetery near Cedar Hill, Texas. He was the favorite uncle of William Ray Witherspoon, father of Joseph Bailey Witherspoon, so he was named for him.

8. Charles Alexander (21 Aug. 1849 – _____)
9. Mary Elizabeth (_____1850 – _____1852)

She was born in the Waxhaws in 1808 and died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Robert Burton Anderson, at Monganton, N. C., in 1891, being interred at Columbia, S. C.; she was a remarkable woman; in person she was tall and of a large frame, with unusual force of character, fine sense, unerring judgement, firm as a rock and yet kind and loving; of wonderful energy and vitality, prompt, active and persevering, of large and varied experience, and known by almost everyone in her section; she lived to be 83 years of age and was treated by deference by a large circle of relatives and friends; she lived in Lancaster, Columbia, Yorkville, S. C., and Morganton, N. C., and impreseed her personality upon each of those places. In 1835 she married at Lancaster, S. C., the renowned Rev. James Henley THORNWELL, D. D., L.L.D., President of South Carolina College, Columbia, S. C., and professor in the Theological Seminary, author of Discourses on Truth and other works; he was born in Marlboro County in 1812 and died at Charlotte, N. C., in 1862, being interred at the cemetery in Columbia. Dr. Thornwell was perhaps the greatest divine that the Southern States ever produced, and his life and character are so well known as to make further comment unnecessary.

9. Joseph George (4 Apr. 1859 – _____1935)
10. Helen Margaret (15 Aug. 1863 – _____)

She was born at Cool Spring in the Waxhaws near Waxhaw Church and the Catawba River, in Lancaster Co., S. C. She was noted for her delicate refinement, tenderness and gentleness, and yet her powers of endurance were wonderful. "The law of kindness was in her mouth and she made many friends by this simple, though effective, rule of right living." She attended school at Yorkville, Lancaster and Camden, boarding at the latter place with Rev. Dr. John Witherspoon (M60), grandson of the "Signer". In 1837 she went to Abbeville to be present at her father's marriage to Mrs. Frances G. McCaw, and in 1839 she was married at "Bolton"., her step-mother's eloquent country home, by the Rev. Dr. Barr, to Dr. Joseph James Wardlaw (1814 – 1873), son of James Wardlaw, Esq., of Abbeville, S. C. Her husband graduated at S. C. College in 1833, and with distinction at Jefferson Medical College in 1836; he was a member of the Legislature in 1858-59; he died at Walhalla, S. C., in 1873 and was interred at Long Cane cemetery, two miles from Abbeville, S. C., where lies scores of his kindred. He was a prominent physician, an honorable Christian gentleman, of a high order of intelligence, and a man of influence and usefulness. After his death she spent most of her time with her eldest daughter, Mrs. Mary Witherspoon Moorman; and it was in her declining years that her religion, charity, usefulness, kindness and purity of heart manifested themselves most plainly. She died in Columbia, S. C., in 1890, and was buried at Long Cane cemetery by the side of her husband.

He was born in Williamsburg District, S. C., and died in Madison, Florida. He was stout, above medium height, dark hair and blue eyes. A man of intelligence and great energy. He moved to Florida long years ago and was elected judge of Madison County. He died in May, 1891, at Madison, Florida. He married Susan A., daughter of Benjamin Hammett (and Isabella Eliza Nelson, his wife, who after his death married, as her second husband, John McBride Witherspoon (1782 –1840) (N45), about 1830. She was a daughter of Captain James Nelson of Revolutionary fame and Louisa Richbourg, of Hugenot descent. Judge Robert McCottry Witherspoon, according to his grandson, James Hervey Witherspoon PHILLIPS, in his "Biographical Notes of the Witherspoon Family" 1908, states: "Removed to Florida 1846; died in Florida in 1891, buried near Mosely Hall, Florida, with his wife and three sons; Judge of County Court, Madison County, Florida. Before the Civil War (1861-1865) Judge Witherspoon owned many slaves, among them Rev. George Washington Witherspoon, who during the Reconstruction period in Florida, 1868-1876, represented Jefferson and Gadsden Counties in the Florida Legislature: was elected to U. S. Congress but counted out, and nearly elected to U. S. Senate, Hon. Charles Jones of Pensacola, Florida, a native of Ireland, defeating him by casting his own vote for himself. This negro was as black as the ace of spades, was a presiding elder in the African Methodist Church, was a prominent Republican in his day, and died in Key West, Florida, holding a Federal office. Judge Witherspoon was no politician but in 1876 he assisted materially in ridding his state of negro domination. Hon. George Drew, a Democrat, being elected governor, and Judge Witherspoon was elected judge of his county in honor of his eminent services."

His wife, Susan Ann Hammett, died in August 1890. She was a granddaughter of Rev. William Hammet, a native of Belfast, Ireland, and his wife, a Miss Darrell, of Charleston, S. C.

10. John Ramsey (31 Oct. 1901 – _____1966)
11. Frances (_____1901 – _____1901)

He was born in Mobile, Alabama, and died at Gallatin, Tenn. He was a merchant in Gallatin, Tenn., until 1896 when he moved to Louisville, Ky., and became a member of the firm of Witherspoon Brothers & Co., a manufacturer of shoes, in which his brother, R. S. Witherspoon and J. Frank Jarman were also partners. In 1905 he moved back to Gallatin, Tenn., and at his death there in 1907, he was a partner in the firm of Payne-Witherspoon-Gardner Company, wholesale grocers, his partners being Lewis B. Payne and Edwin S. Gardner, and J. W. Alison.

He married Katherine, daughter of Professor Benjamin O'Conner RUTHERFORD and his first wife, Mary Banks Prince. He was son of Professor Benjamin Rutherford, of near Hendersonville, Tennessee. Professor Rutherford's grandfather, James Rutherford, was a lieutenant in the Revolutionary war and a brother of General GRIFFITH RUTHERFORD (1731 – 1800) of North Carolina and Tennessee. In N. C., he (the general) represented Rowan County in the Provisional Congress at Halifax, 4th April 1776, and during this session he received the appointment of Brigadier General of the Salisbury District. The Knoxville (Tennessee) Gazette, 6th Sept., 1794, contains the following announcement: "On Monday last the General Assembly of this territory commenced their session in this town; General Rutherford, long distinguished for his services in the Legislature of North Carolina, is appointed President of the Legislative Council." The states of North Carolina and Tennessee each named a county in honor of General GRIFFITH RUTHERFORD.

The following is a clipping taken from a Gallatin, Tenn., News:

"At his home near this place Walter Witherspoon died Friday, June 21, of typhoid fever, at the age of 51 years.

"The burial took place Sunday afternoon at the Gallatin cemetery immediately following the funeral services at the residence at 3 o'clock, which were conducted by Rev. R. M. DuBose of the Presbyterian Church.

"A large number of people – among whom were many sorrowing friends – followed the remains to the grave. The procession was unusually large, giving evidence to the fact that the deceased had the esteem and high regard of the community. His death is a distinct loss, which keenly felt in every family where he was known, for he was an exemplary citizen, loved for his manly virtues and noble sentiments, and his death not only brings sadness to his own home but to many others as well.

"Only a few short months ago he came back to Gallatin with his family to make this his permanent home. He had formed a partnership in the Payne-Witherspoon, Gardner Company, our big wholesale grocery house, and he was just getting things to run smoothly when he was stricken down. Being in the full vigor of life, and ripe with experience, his service in the company to which he had attached himself was invaluable.

"Walter Witherspoon was reared in Gallatin, his father, Capt. Thos. F. Witherspoon, who survives him, having brought him here from Alabama when he was a boy, and until a few years ago, when he went to Louisville to engage in business, he lived in Gallatin. At an early age he "entered the mercantile business which he pursued until his death."

O88–N36 ROBERT SIDNEY WITHERSPOON (10 Aug. 1868 – 15 Jun. 1945)
M: 6 Jun. 1901 Margaret Booker (Rita) Robinson (29 Jun. 1877 – 11 Mar. 1971)
Issue: 1. Lettie Robinson (23 May 1903 – _____)

He was born in Baldwin County, (near Mobile) Ala., and lived in Nashville, Tenn., 1884-1894, where he was an employee for eight years and a partner the last two years in the firm of Carter, Dunbar & Company, wholesale shoes, who began liquidating in 1894 and discontinued in 1896; in 1894 he established a shoe factory in Louisville, Ky., under the style of R. S. Witherspoon, succeeded by Witherspoon Brothers and Co., 1897. In 1909 he entered the Credit Insurance business, which he discontinued in 1932. In 1934 he lived at the "Puritan", 1244 South Fourth Street, Louisville, Ky.

In 1890 he compiled Genealogical Tables and Biographical Notes of the Witherspoon Family, from information furnished by his father, Captain Thomas Franklin Witherspoon (N36), and from fragments of a genealogy of 1840 by his grandfather, Dr. John Ramsay Witherspoon (M17), who brought it down to 1840 from a genealogy by his father, Robert Witherspoon (L7), dated Williamsburg, S. C., May 1780, and going back to his (Robert W's) grandfather, John Witherspoon (J11).

In 1934 he completed to that date The Witherspoon Family of Scotland and America, going back to about the year 1400, most of which early information was taken from a History of the Witherspoon Family of Scotland and the United States by Gustave Anjou, Ph. D., President British-American Record Society, New York City, 1907, which was furnished in 1908 to R. S. Witherspoon, by J.H.W. Phillips, son of Jessie E. G. (Witherspoon) PHILLIPPS (P157). Much of the later information (1670-1910) has been taken from the Genealogy of the Witherspoon Family, by Col. J. G. Wardlaw (1859 – 1935) son of Mary Ann (Witherspoon) WARDLAW (1818 – 1890) (O59), which was published in 1910, and to whom he furnished his Genealogy Tables in 1890.

He was a quiet, reserved and serious minded man and worked diligently for many years on his genealogy of the Witherspoon family, writing hundreds of letters and assisting people all over the United States who wrote him for information about their line of the family. His dream was to some day publish his work, but circumstances prevented his doing so and before he passed away in 1945 he requested his wife to send much of his material and letters to the compiler of this book, Joseph Bailey Witherspoon of Weatherford, Texas, who promised her his dream would some day become a reality.

He was a member of the Second Presbyterian Church of Louisville, Ky., and was faithful to his church all his life.

7. Pauline Fulton (18 Mar. 1880 – 22 Feb. 1940)
8. Mable Armstrong (18 Mar. 1880 – _____)

He was born at Greensboro, Hale County, Alabama, and died in Louisville, Ky. "Tall and erect in person, with dark hair and eyes; one of the most noted divines in the Presbyterian Church, of the highest intelligence of mind and gentleness of spirit, beloved by all. He graduated with first honor from the University of Mississippi in 1856, and from the Theological Seminary at Columbia, S. C., in May 1859. Ordained by Presbytery of Chickasaw May 13, 1860, and was installed as pastor of the Presbyterian Church at Oxford, Mississippi. Enlisted as private in Lamar Rifles, 11th Mississippi Volunteers, in 1861, and was their chaplain until the close of the war. In August, 1865, he became pastor of the 2nd Church at Memphis, where he labored with marked success until 1870, when he went to the mountains of Virginia and accepted a call to Christiansburg, Va. From 1872 to 1874 he was chaplain of the University of Virginia. He traveled extensively in Europe in 1873 and upon his return, in October 1873, accepted pastorate of Tabb Street Presbyterian Church at Petersburg, Va. In 1882, he accepted a call to the First Presbyterian Church at Louisville, Ky. He was chairman of the evangelistic labor Synod of Kentucky. In 1874 he took his seat for the first time in the General Assembly at Vicksburg, Miss. In 1867 the degree of D. D. was conferred upon him by the University of Mississippi and L.L.D. in 1884. Author of various writings, he was offered presidency of various colleges."

In the 250th Memorial Volume of the Westminister Assembly, 1647-1897, pp. 54 to 85, there is a very interesting description by Dr. T. D. Witherspoon, entitled, The Westminister Assembly: Its Plan of Meetings, Its Proceedings, and Its Personnel , which he attended in London, England.

"He married in 1865 Charlotte Vernon, Daughter of Dr. Thomas INGRAM, of (Lenoir County, N. C., a noted surgeon who moved to Marshall county, Tenn.) and Eliza Pegues, his wife, daughter of Malachi PEGUES, who went from South Carolina to Marshall County, Miss., near Holly Springs. Her grandfather and great-grandfather were both named Claudius Pegues, the elder settled in Marlborough County, S. C., in 1730 or 1740, and died leaving a large and influential connection. The younger Claudius was a noted soldier of the Revolutionary War. Mrs. Witherspoon was born at Denmark, Madison County, Tenn., and died in Louisville, Ky. The daughters of Dr. Witherspoon are unusually smart, intelligent, cultured, and attractive, all having graduated with distinction at the Girl's High School of Louisville."

He was born in Monroe County, Miss., graduated at University of Mississippi in 1872 and at the Theological Seminary at Columbia, S. C., in 1875; has had some of the largest and most important pastorates in the Southern Presbyterian Church at Nashville, Tenn., 1884 to 1894; from Nashville to Baltimore, Md., and from there to Richmond, Va.; the degree of D. D. was conferred upon him and he was recognized as one of the brainiest men in the Presbyterian church and was exceedingly popular; a persuasive, influential and eloquent speaker as well as a good pastor. He was present at the unveling of the statue to Rev. Dr. JOHN WITHERSPOON (1722 – 1794), the signer of the DECLARATION OF INDEPENDENCE at Washington, D. C., on May 20, 1909, where he pronounced the invocation. He died at Clifton Springs, N. Y.

He married Laura Murdock in Richmond, Va. Their only issue was Preston, born at Okolona, Miss., and who married in 1914, Miss Ruth Stallings, of Atlanta, Georgia. He was in business in 1920 at Richmond, Va., in 1941 and lived in New York City.

He was born in Lowndes County, Miss., near Columbia. He, with his mother (whose maiden name was Elizabeth Dowd) and two brothers, removed to Oxford, Miss., in 1872 in order that the three sons might be placed in the State University at that place; he graduated in 1876, B. A., and later M.A. and LL. D., from the University of Mississippi; in 1879 he removed to Meridian, Miss., where he practiced law until his election to Congress in 1910. Mr. E. H. Dial, in his memorial address, stated that he was a college mate and associated with him as "a partner in the practice of law in Meridian, Miss., from 1879 – 1888; knowing him thoroughly, knowing his weaknesses and his strength, I testify to you that he was always what he pretended to be, all that his friends and admirers thought that he was – high born, honest man, strong, self-reliant, brave, reliable, learned, conscientious, religious, sincere, friendly, unestentatious, in sympathy always with humanity's common mass, whose knee bent to no being but his God. "At the time of his death he was a member of Congress from the 5th congressional district of Mississippi, serving his 3rd term." "If he could have lived ten years longer and continued his congressional career, he, by the expiration of that time, would have won the country's undisputed recognition of himself as one of the Nation's great men – so his friends sincerely believe." "Mr. Witherspoon never boasted of his ancestry – in fact rarely referred to it, and then only when it found its way into a conversation naturally. It is nevertheless a fact that fine blood was in his veins. His mother was a distinguished Mississippi family. She was a sister of Hon. William F. Dowd, who in his lifetime was one of the State's greatest lawyers. He was however, a descendent in direct line from JOHN KNOX, the great Scotch preacher and reformer of the 16th century. Although these are facts, yet he put no dependence upon them – though, quite likely, without showing it, he valued them. All this, however, notwithstanding his apparent disregard for it, may have had much to do in the molding of the spirt that dominated him." "In June, 1880, he was married in the city of Memphis to Miss Sue E. May, of Springfield, Ky., who survives him. His son, Samuel Andrew, Jr., was a practicing attorney and at one time was a partner with his father.

Mr. Candler, of Mississippi, in the House of Representatives, Washington, D. C., as speaker pro tempore for Sunday, March 5th, 1916, at the memorial exercises for the late Representative Witherspoon said:

"Mr. Speaker, I fully concur in everything said by Mr. Dial in this beautiful and accurate address. He knew my good friend SAM WITHERSPOON as well as it was possible for one man to know another, and hence I thought it fitting and proper to incorporate his address as well as the resolution adopted by the Lauderdale County Bar Association, in my remarks in full as testimony of those who knew him best, and hence could bear without witness to his noble and manly traits from actual knowledge and intimate personal association."

For approximately three score and ten years, Col. Francis M. Witherspoon devoted his principal thought and energy to service of the people. Even after advanced age required him to slacken his civic-minded pace he centered his thinking on the public with the hope of being helpful to its welfare.

This wonderful citizen's chief desire was to be of public benefit as demonstrated on its numerable occasions during his unusually long life, whose culminations has occasioned genuine sorrow in many hearts, homes and offices.

COLONEL Witherspoon, as he was affectionately known to friends and associates for decades, was a native of Louisiana, having been born on a DeSoto Parish cotton plantation. It was natural for him to be especially interested in the northwest section of Louisiana, and the surrounding Ark-La–Tex- territory, in which his chief efforts were expended. He knew the people, their traditions, customs, habits, ambitions and needs, and also knew their resources, advantages and opportunities. This knowledge, together with an understanding and friendly attitude, caused him to be excellently fitted for a public servant for this part of the country. However, he did not confine thinking and activities to one particular locality or section, but to the entire nation and the universe, being the type of man whose heart and mind functioned in the interest of all mankind.

But the northwest corner of Louisiana had his chief consideration and was the recipient of many plans which he conceived and many programs which he helped to form and develop.

He prepared himself for life's responsibilities with lessons from Louisiana State University, from which he graduated as a youth, and with knowledge gained by practical experience in agriculture, business and other fields. One of his early positions was with the U. S. Dept. of Geodetics and another was with Amalgamated Copper Company. Later on he became identified with the Arkansas Fuel Oil Co., which evaluated him as a man of many qualifications, acquaintanceships and relationships. For slightly more than 30 years he was public relations representative of that company, retiring from active duty in 1950, being with its marketing department when he left the service. The company paid him high tribute in its official publication, referring to his friendship with officials in federal and state governments and those prominent in business and industry and other channels. It termed him a 'long, valuable and productive employee.' In his service for that company he was a familiar figure on numerous goodwill visits and programs, in speeches and in articles he wrote for publications.

He served twice as president of the Louisiana Academy of Sciences. He was one of its organizers, seeing in it great benefits for the public. He also served as member of the U. S. Highway Commission in an advisory manner and was for a while head of the Louisiana soil conservation board.

One of the civic achievements affording him special satisfaction was his part in the founding of the American Hellenic Educational Progressive Association. On the mission resulting in the local and other AHEPA chapters, he represented his church, St. Mark's Episcopal. He was regarded by members of the organization as a father of the AHEPA, whose activities in useful civic and community affairs caused him to realize its wonderful benefits to many good citizens.

He was unceasing in thinking and planning and doing for the public welfare and many are the momuments of worthwhile institutions, agencies, projects and other works which stand as evidences of the unselfish service he rendered during his fruitful life. He was one of Louisiana's most progressive, loyal and useful men.

He was born in Lawrence County, Mo., and died at his home in Everton. He had spent practically all his life in Dade County and his friends familiarly called him "Uncle Jim". He was a member of the Christian Church and was a devoted member until his death. He had been a member of the I.O.O.F. Fraternal Order for more than 40 years, being a charter member of the South Greenfield Lodge and later transferring his membership to the Everton Lodge under whose auspices burial was made. He has been in failing health for some months and accordingly made plans for his funeral. The service was conducted in the Christian Church in Everton by the Rev. S. M. Crank and burial was made in the Sinking Creek cemetery. The large crowd in attendance and the beautiful offerings were mute tribute to the esteem in which he was held by his friends who had known him for many years.

On the following page is a copy of a letter written to Lilly Witherspoon Clagett, daughter of James C. Witherspoon and granddaughter of Isaac Witherspoon by Hiram Witherspoon, a son of Isaac. This copy was sent by Lilly's daughter, Minnie C. Hendrix, Guthrie, Okla., May 7, 1944.

Guffey, Colo.
April 5, 1909

Dear Lilly:

Of course we were all greatly shocked when we heard of Lou's and Mr. Tuttle's death, but were glad to know that it was purely accidental and they evidently died without pain and left no one dependent upon others. You ask to know something about the history of our family. I can't tell you very much. Your grandfather, Isaac Witherspoon, was born in N. Carolina. He was a descendant of the old Scottish Presbyterians that came to America long before the Revolutionary War, and claimed a relationship with John Witherspoon, one of the signers of the Declaration of Independence.

Your grandmother, Lorena Witherspoon was a Neal, also born in North Carolina. Both moved to Kentucky at an early date. Your father, James C. Witherspoon was born in Kentucky, July 27, 1823, and died January 21, 1959.

Your mother, Mary J. Witherspoon was born October 28, 1826. Her maiden name was Lewis, and I think the family was from Kentucky. I do not know much about the older members of the family as I never was with them.

My eyes are so poor I can scarcely see to write and I do not know whether you can read this or not. We have had a terrible, long, cold winter; snowed all day yesterday and the mercury too, only one above zero this morning. Write again. With love to all

As ever,
Your old Uncle Bob (O306)

He is one of twin sons born in a cross roads railroad station and Post Office named Guilford Springs, about 3 miles south of Chambersburg, Pa. Since it was 3 miles to the nearest doctor, the twin sons, Andrew Carothers and Samuel Clapham, were delivered by the wife of a village blacksmith who lived across the road. He had one year at Chambersburg high school and three years at the Shippensburg State Teachers College. He taught school one year before attending the Mass. Institute of Technology at Boston, Mass., graduating in 1916, in Civil Engineering.

He entered the U. S. Coast and Geodetic Survey and upon entry into World War I he was transferred to the Railroad Artillery of the Army. At the end of the war he came back to the Coast Survey and was sent to the Virgin Islands to work on mapping this new purchase of the United States. While a lieutenant in the Army stationed at Fort Howard near Baltimore and just before being sent overseas, he married a Baltimore girl and after about a year in the Virgin Islands they went back to Baltimore where he became a contractor and builder.

Following the death of his first wife in 1944, he remarried in 1954 Allene Ruth Baldwin, and they made their home in 1970 at 2427 Tuttle Terrace in Sarasota, Fla.

Issue: 1. Maurice Marlow, Jr. (6 Jul. 1925 – _____)
2. Nancy McCalmont (10 Feb. 1927 – _____)

He graduated from Washington & Jefferson College in Pa., where he was an All-American football star and later graduated from McCormick Seminary at Chicago, Ill. He served many years as a Chaplain in the United States Navy as Captain. He originated the Education-by-Air program for the Naval Air Transport Service, which furnished night schools for Sailors and Marines from Maryland to Chicago. As an Educational Officer in the Alaskan sector, he set up the first college in the Aleutian chain and the first university in Alaska for the Armed Forces. He also set up an off-hours training program for officers and enlisted men at the Naval Air Station in Pensacola, which has since been adopted by all Naval Air Stations throughout the country.

Captain Witherspoon is a living exponent of today's trend: It takes more than one career to live a life. Called by Drew Pearson "One of the Navy's most popular chaplains", Captain Witherspoon, following his retirement, has made a success of public relations in the highly competitive City of New York. In one month he was responsible for publicity for five conventions: a Fraternal Order of 300,000, a veterans' organization, an international church group, and the largest national college fraternity. In guiding veterans to satisfactory adjustments in civilian life, as Director of a fraternal veterans service in New York City, he has shown his genius for organization. He has trained a staff in his philosophy of personalized service, and has established a placement clinic that finds jobs and the right men for them. Highly original in his imagination and methods, Captain Witherspoon has an impressive list of "FIRSTS" to his credit. In Nicaragua, he was given the Presidential Medal of Merit for his betterment of human relations, and was cited by the Archbishop for his charities. In the Aleutian Chain he was awarded the Bronze Star Medal for his moral-building program. In Pennsylvania, he was made a Doctor of Divinity by his Alma Mater, Washington and Jefferson College. In New York he has won recognition for fund-raising and intensive, far-reaching campaigns in the field of public information. Internationalist in outlook, Captain Witherspoon is a noted citizen of the world, dynamic in personality, forceful in delivery of his forward looking ideas. He lectures extensively at Conventions, Universities, Clubs and Naval Air Training Stations. In 1971 he lived at 68 Montague Street in Brooklyn, N. Y.

"He was born near King's Creek. He was a sergeant major of the 1st N. C. Infantry, was shot in the leg at Seven Pines in 1862, and in the forehead at Spottsylvania Court House., May 12, 1864, returning for duty in less than two months. He surrendered with Lee at Appomattox, after serving 4 years and 9 days in the Confederate Army. His wife, Clarisa, was born in Wilkes County. In the spring of 1865, while 7 of Stoneman's men – 3 negroes and 4 white men – were trying to break into her father's stable, near Wilkesboro, for the purpose of stealing her father's horses and mules, she warned them that if they persisted she would shoot, and as they paid her no heed, she did actually shoot and kill one of the white robbers, and the rest fled. General Stoneman, when he heard of her conduct, sent her a guard and complimented her highly for her courage and determination."

He attended Davidson College in North Carolina and was a practicing attorney for more than 25 years in Tennessee and Texas. He retired to live in Nashville, Tenn., where he worked on the genealogy of the WITHERSPOON family as a hobby. One of his sons, Dr. John McDowell, familiarly known as Dr. Jack, used a large number of rabbits and guinea pigs in his laboratory so he raised and kept them at his home.

O410–N244 Dr. JOHN ALEXANDER WITHERSPOON (13 Sep. 1864 – 26 Apr. 1929)

M: 8 Nov. 1888 Cornelia Dixon (_____1867 – 15 Jun. 1935)
Issue: 1. Louise _____ (1892 – _____1932)
2. Mary Telitha (10 Sep. 1895 – _____)
3. Cornelia Dixon (24 May 1899 – _____)
4. John Alexander, Jr. (31 May 1900 – _____)

He was born in Maury County, Tenn., a son of John McDowell and Mary Telitha (Hanks) Witherspoon, the father also a native of that section of the State. The mother was a daughter of Elijah and Polly (Woodard) Hanks, who resided in Maury County, Tenn., and the former devoted his life to religious work as a minister of the Baptist Church, becoming the pioneer missionary in this State.

The country schools of Maury County, Tenn., afforded John Alexander Witherspoon his early educational opportunities and he also attended W. R. Moore's school for boys at Glass, Tennessee, and Austin College, at Sherman, Texas, but did not complete his course in the la'ter institution being obliged to abandon his studies at that time, due to ill health.

Subsequently he entered the Medical Department of the University of Pennsylvania, at Philadelphia, and graduated from that insitution on 5 May 1887 with an M. D. Degree. He began his professional career at Columbia, Tenn., and for seven years maintained an office at that place. In 1888 he was elected professor of Psychology in the medical department at the University of Tennessee, filling that position for two years and was then chosen to fill the chair of medicine in the same institution. In 1894 he was made professor of medicine and clinical medicine in the medical department of Vanderbilt University and served there for several years.

He was very successful as an educator and practitioner and through his experience gained the skill that brought to his work the utmost possibility of accuracy in results. He never lost the attitude of a student toward his profession and in 1895, 1899, 1905, 1909 and 1913 went abroad, taking postgraduate work in Germany, France, England and Scotland, thus greatly augmenting his knowledge and efficiency. For a brief period he was professor of Obstetrics and gynecology in the medical department of the University of the South at Sewanee.

He moved to Nashville, Tenn., in 1895 where he was asked by the Chancellor of Vanderbilt University to assist in the establishment of a Medical Department. Dr. Witherspoon went abroad to inspect medical schools and to obtain equipment. He spent many years afterwards in the upbuilding of Vanderbilt, serving 33 years as professor and clinical professor of medicine and sharing all the developments that marked the growth of the school. His was a substantial influence in securing aid from philanthropic agencies which made possible the erection of several new buildings. During practically all his years he worked with medical organizations for the improvement of the profession and to raise the standards of medical education. He joined the American Medical Association about 1890 and for many years never missed a meeting.

Upon the entrance of the United States in World War I, Dr. Witherspoon applied for overseas service but was told by General Gorgas, Surgeon General of the United States Army, and a close personal friend, that he was needed more at home and offered him a commission which he refused any commission which did not carry him into the battlefields of France and for 16 months gave of his time and talents unreservedly to the conduct of the war on this side of the water, spending thousands of dollars of his own money. He was repeatedly called to Washington to be sent to distant parts of the country, accepting no remuneration for his work. He was a member of the Selective Service draft board having 46 counties under his jurisdiction. He was also head of the Tennessee volunteer medical corps. He often spoke for the American Red Cross and aided in organizing the medical corps of the Army in 14 different states of the union.

In 1904 Dr. Witherspoon was appointed a member of the Council of Medical Education of the American Medical Association. This council consisted of five members representing the five great medical universities of the United States and its object was to raise the standard of all medical institutions up to 100 percent. He served sixteen years on this council. The results brought about by his untiring efforts and unselfish service won for him the everlasting esteem of all the greater medical educators of the United States.

He was elected a Vice President of the Council in 1902, a member of the House of Delegates in 1922, 1924, 1926, and 1928, and was elected President in 1912. During his administration he was a delegate to the International Medical Congress in London and in 1909 was appointed by Secretary of State Knox to deliver the acceptance address during the International Congress of Medicine in Budapest, Hungary, at the dedication of the statue to George Washington. He received the degree of Doctor of Laws from the University of Georgia in 1913. He was a member of the American College of Physicians, editor of the SOUTHERN MEDICAL ASSOCIATION JOURNAL from 1908 to 1919 and president of the Tennessee State Medical Association, the Association of American Medical Colleges, the Mississippi Valley Medical Association, and the Southern Medical Association. Dr. Witherspoon was a pleasing and convincing speaker and was much in demand.

He was a loyal member of First Presbyterian Church of Nashville, Tenn., of which he served as Deacon. He was a member of the Masonic Fraternity, attaining the Knights Templar degree and was also a member of the Knights of Pythias fraternity.

He passed away at his home in Nashville at the early age of 64 after an illness of about 2 months. His life, although shorter than many, was filled with service to his country and his fellow man.

He was born in Ellis County, Texas, on a farm and spent the first 22 years of his life there. He was educated partly there and partly away from home surroundings. In Johnson County he taught school for ten years, and in the meantime applied himself to the study of law. He has always been ambitious in his legal pursuits, and long after he had been admitted to the bar and was well established in practice he went to the State University at Austin and took the course in the law department, from which he was graduated in 1898. Previous to this in 1889, he had come out to the Panhandle country, and has ever since been a resident of Deaf Smith County, and it was from here that he went to the university. Before locating in Deaf Smith he had been admitted to the bar, and was therefore well prepared to practice law as soon as he arrived in the Panhandle. Upon the organization of Deaf Smith as a county he was elected the first county and district clerk, and he served as such for three terms. He served, by election, as county attorney for one term and was county judge one term. For two years he taught school at La Plata.

He built the first residence in La Plata, and others were constructed rapidly. In 1905, the Southwestern Colonization Company was organized, composed of C. G. Witherspoon, L. Gough, and J. P. Snider. The company had a well organized system of agencies in and around this area. Witherspoon was in charge of the main office in Hereford. When the Pecos Valley Railroad was built through the southeast corner of Deaf Smith County and the town of Hereford was started, Judge Witherspoon at once moved from La Plata to the latter place, where, however, there was as yet only a site and no houses. He opened his office in a tent, and for a time represented a large land company which had extensive interests in the vicinity. In May 1899, he became the law partner of Judge L. Gough, and the firm name had since become Witherspoon and Gough. It was the leading law firm of this portion of the state, and it was interested, either actively or by lending its influence, in every enterprise which had tended to promote the growth and welfare of Deaf Smith County and this part of the state. Judge Witherspoon was personally very active in the affairs of Hereford. He was the owner of a fine ranch of five thousand acres in the county. He affiliated with the Odd Fellows and the Knights of Pythias, and he and his wife were Presbyterians.

In 1911, he moved to California, where he was active in real estate and land development in the Imperial Valley. He later moved to Oklahoma and helped develop the Enid Area, later moving to Mineral Wells, Texas, where he died in 1916. (Information taken from History of North and West Texas, page 290).

Margaret and Emerson (Nick) Eastwood eloped and were married on a Santa Fe train between Midlothian and Fort Worth, Texas. They lived in Midlothian, Grand Prairie and Roscoe, Texas, before moving to New Mexico. They became real pioneers in their new home and Margaret was thrifty and energetic and worked side by side with Nick. After living in Grand Prairie, Texas, near Dallas, for a few years, they then moved to West Texas in 1900 to Roscoe. Nick wanted to move farther west into New Mexico but Margaret's father, John Martin (Jack) Witherspoon (O30) opposed the move into such a new territory which was so sparcely settled, but in 1903 they did move after he had built an overjet frame extending over the wheels of the wagon to provide more room. So the family left Roscoe, Texas, and finally decided to locate about 45 miles west of Clovis, New Mexico, which at that time had only a few stores and several houses.

Nick began working for the W Ranch some 35 miles from their home. Their home consisted of the overjet taken from the wagon with a tent stretched over it. The family began making adobe bricks in sufficient quantities to build a house having only one window and a door. In the winter they would move to Tucumcari, New Mexico, some 60 miles north, and live in a tent in order that the children might attend school. Nick worked as a carpenter while there to make a living for his family. Moving back to their home near Clovis one spring, they discovered the Santa Fe Railway was builing their main line near their home so Nick sold gravel to the railroad. Workers on the railroad frequently stayed in their home while working nearby. The settlement in which they lived grew and became known as Tolar. Maggie, as she was called, knew first hand of the hardships of the frontier woman and the trials and tribulations under which she was forced to live broke down her health and she died in 1913. Nick continued to live there until his death in 1933 and both were brought back to Texas where they were buried in Mt. Zion cemetery, which is known sometimes as the WITHERSPOON cemetery and is located in Ellis County, Texas. This cemetery to this day is kept in good condition by the descendents of the WITHERSPOON family.

He was born in Murfreesboro, Tenn., and attended the Salem High School after which he entered the University of Tennessee in 1891 and graduated in June of 1894 with a degree in Engineering. He worked with the United States Geological Survey from May 1897 until his resignation in March of 1920. During this period, various maps made in connection with his exploration in Alaska were published by the Survey. Since his retirement in 1920 he and his wife have lived on their farm near Anchorage, Ky.

The following account is taken from the University of Tennessee alumni publication:

"A mountain peak in the Chugach Mountain Range in Southeastern Alaska, Mt. Witherspoon, has been named in honor of a University graduate, David C. Witherspoon, '94, who served with the United States Geological Survey in Alaska from 1899 to 1920. At the time the name was given to the peak, it was the custom of the National Board of Geographic Names to name outstanding topographic features only for deceased persons. In view of the outstanding service of Mr. Witherspoon in the Alaskan field, however, the Board waived the rule in favor of him and two other engineers who had similar records. The peak which bears Mr. Witherspoon's name was selected on account of its proximity to the region where he had spent several summers.

Mt. Witherspoon rises to an altitude of 12,030 feet and occupies a prominent position with reference to the main routes of travel. Vast snow fields cover the slopes of the Chugach Range at this point and are the source of several active glaciers. One of these is the Columbia Glacier, which collects on the southern slope of Mt. Witherspoon and flows south into Prince William Sound near Valdez. Another large glacier forms on the northeastern slope and is the tributary to the Copper River, while several glaciers have their origin on the northwestern slope and are tributaries of the famous Matanuska River.

Mr. Witherspoon can be justly proud of this enduring monument in the land where he has contributed so much.

Commenting on his twenty three years of service as explorer and surveyor, Mr. Witherspoon writes: "I began work with the Survey in the Spring of 1897, joining a party engaged in surveying the then Indian Territory and spent two years in the 'wild and wooly' West. With completion of this work, and with my experience on these surveys, my selection for exploratory in Alaska naturally followed in the Spring of 1890.

At that time little was known of the interior of Alaska. Gold had been discovered in the Klondike region, and since there were many reports of its fabulous riches, the Geological Survey decided to send engineers experienced in topographic mapping and geologists to investigate the mineral deposits. This, my work began in a new field, where it had been said:

'That the mountains are nameless,
And the rivers all run no one knows where,
There are lives that are erring and aimless,
And deaths that just hang by a hair.'

As the years passed and the country developed, we were called upon to execute more detailed surveys than those of an exploratory nature. Among a few of these I might mention a large area in the headwaters of the Copper River, the Yukon-Tanana region, where the town of Fairbanks is located, the Seward peninsula and the region in which the capital city, Juneau, is located.

Of course, those pioneer days are a thing of the past, in so far as topographic mapping is concerned. Instead of spending months of arduous toil, as was necessary in the early days, the engineer now steps into a plane and, equipped with a photographic camera, accomplishes the same results within a few hours."

"Dick" Witherspoon as he was known to all his friends, was born in Newton County, Mo., and lived on his father's farm (Thomas G. , O42) until he was 26 years old. While living in Missouri he knew Jesse and Frank James, Bob Ford and many of Quantrell's men. He remembered that Quantrell, the raider, looked very much like a woman. He had blue eyes and yellow hair, which he wore over his shoulders. He had small hands which it is said he could slip through handcuffs. In 1878 he came to Texas, making the trip on horseback, and lived near Weatherford, Texas, almost all his life except a few years when the family lived in Bell County, Texas. At that time Weatherford was a frontier town and having no railroad, freight was hauled in and out by wagons and passengers were carried by stage-coaches. There were no fences at that time in Parker County, and only one bridge which spanned a creek running through Weatherford on Spring Street. Mr. Witherspoon was one of the Stage Coach drivers on a line from Weatherford to Fort Griffin near Graham, Texas, a distance of 136 miles, which went by way of Palo Pinto, Texas, and the trip was made in two days with only a few stops. The stream had to be forded and often the stages would overturn, depositing the passengers into the water and mud. The Stage Driver's life was difficult at its best and the usual pay was $25.00 per month plus board.

The Stage lines charged according to weight and if the passengers weighed over 300 pounds his fare was increased accordingly. Two of his heaviest passengers were also two of the most distinguished men of their time. Governor Robinson of Illinois and Postmaster General Briscoe (under President Grant), weighing 312 and 305 pounds each, were both enroute to their ranch near Crystal Falls, Texas. Another 300 pound passenger was Governor John C. Brown of Tennessee.

Mr. Witherspoon escaped the robbers who frequented the stage coach routes in the 1880's except twice when he was held up near Caddo, Texas. Each time two men on horseback with a large yellow dog following, participated in the robberies. Officers were notified but failed to locate them.

Near the close of the 1870's, Weatherford was the terminal for several stage lines. One was held up by Sam Bass and his gang, enroute to Fort Worth, Texas. As the real pioneer days began to recede and railroads had crossed the state, Mr. Witherspoon was employed by the Texas and Pacific Railway on January 1, 1895, and after 32 years, retired in 1927. Mr. Witherspoon served as Deputy Sheriff of Parker County and was jailer under three administrations and at one time he arrested the Sheriff under whom he was serving. After his retirement, he continued to live on his farm some 5 miles west of Weatherford on which his son, Theodore Roosevelt (Ted) lived in 1972, it having been in the family for almost 100 years.

P93 – O42 ALLEN MELTON WITHERSPOON (12 Mar. 1871 – 14 Aug. 1938)
Unmarried

He was born in Newton County, Missouri, and moved to Texas with his parents, settling on a farm 7 miles west of Weatherford, Texas. After his father died in 1889, he and his two brothers, who then resided at home, worked and paid for the farm which was encumbered with an $800.00 debt. His two brothers, William Ray (P94) and Virgil Blanchard (P95) married after the farm was paid for, but Allen remained single, looking after his mother until her death in 1921.

4. Marvin Ray (20 Jul. 1907 – _____)
5. Bessie Pauline (7 Apr. 1909 – 20 May 1910)

He was born in Bell County, Texas, near Temple, where his parents had come from Newton County, Mo., but moved in a short time with them to Parker County, Texas, on a farm about 7 miles of Weatherford, Texas. When his father passed away in 1889, his mother was left with a debt on the farm and 3 minor sons, ages 17, 15, and 13, he being the 15 year old son. They all three remained single until the farm was paid for and he and his younger brother, Virgil (P95) married but continued to live in a home built for them on the farm.

In 1905 he took the civil service examination, and making the highest grade among some 40 persons, he was appointed as a letter carrier in Fort Worth, Texas, where he worked until 1907 when he was transferred to Weatherford, Texas, and continued as a city letter carrier for the next 32 years, retiring in 1939 after 34 years in the Postal Service. When a young man, he was licensed as a Methodist Local Preacher and although he refused appointments to Methodist churches, he continued to preach almost every Sunday in some nearby churches. He taught a Sunday school class of men at Couts Memorial United Methodist Church in Weatherford, Texas, for more than 50 years and was Chairman of the Official Board for more than 30 years.

Following his retirement from the postal service, he was engaged in the production of eggs , having a large flock of white Wyndotte hens hatched from eggs shipped from England. After several years, he retired again from this business to a life of study and writing, especially in the religious field. One of his books which was widely read was entitled "The Seven Links in the Chain of Redepmtion."

It was through his early interest in the genealogy of the WITHERSPOON family that inspired his son, Joseph Bailey (R179) to begin gathering information concerning the family, which finally resulted in the publication of this genealogy and to whom this volume is affectionately dedicated.

The following account concerning the death of his mother was given to us by her oldest son, Walter, who in 1970 lived in Hastings, Neb.: "Grandfather Wilson, a minister of the Gospel and Grandmother were in haste called to our house. It was near noon when mother said to our father: 'the end is near, I want to talk to you and each of our children'. After talking to Dad, us children came to her bedside in age order, and she gave to each of us a wonderful motherly message. Clifford, then only 2 years old was held up for her to see, and she said: 'My baby child, I know you can not now understand what I say, but mother wants you to grow up to be a useful Godly man.' She then asked grandfather to pray for us. After the prayer was finished, she said in a clear firm voice and without emotion: 'Now I am ready to go'. A happy smile came to her face and within five minutes she was gone. I now know that in her weakened condition that it was Power beyond her own that enabled her to speak so clearly and calmly, words seemingly so well chosen. Suddenly we became not only a broken family, but a bewildered one with no one to direct us. Sister Belle assumed the household responsibilities assisted by younger sisters. Belle was past 12 the next two under 11. They did the task well and somehow all of us grew to maturity."

He was born in Lexington, Virginia and attended public school there. He attended Washington & Lee University and graduated with a B. A. degree in 1925 and with an LLB degree in 1927. He was admitted to practice law in Virginia in 1926 and upon moving to Mississippi was admitted to practice law in Mississippi in 1928. He was admitted to practice before the Fifth Circuit Court in 1937 and the Supreme Court in 1950. He was Commissioner from Mississippi to the National Conference of Commissioners on Uniform State Laws from 1945 as a Life Member. He was Special Judge in the Lauderdale County Circuit Court in June of 1961. He was President of the Lauderdale County Bar Association in 1943; a Commissioner of the Mississippi State Bar Association in 1944, served as Vice President in 1950 and President in 1951. He was a member of the Public Relations Committee from 1962 to 1965, of the American Bar Association and was chairman of their State Legislative Committee from 1962 to 1964; he was a member of the Board of Governors National Conference of Bar Association Presidents from 1962 to 1963. In 1956 he was a Fellow in the American Judicature Society of the American Bar Association and has served on the International Academy of Trial Lawyers; the American College of Probate Counsel; the Federation of Insurance Counsel, the International Association of Insurance Counsel and the Association of Insurance Attorneys.

He has been Associate Editor of the Commercial Law League since 1945 contributing two articles annually for more than 20 years. He is a charter member of SCRIBES, an organization of legal writers, serving as Treasurer from 1953 to 1959 and as President for the term 1959-60. His articles were printed in the Mississippi Law Journal, Louisiana Law Journal, the North Dakota Bar Journal, Boston College Industrial and Commercial Law Review, the Cleveland-Marshall Law Review and many other legal and trade publications. His article "What care is required of Carrier by air?" appeared in the American Bar Association Journal in 1945 and "What is the Surplusage Rule?" in 1951 and "When is an Architect Liable?" in March of 1962.

He has taught and lectured in many law schools and before Bar Association meetings. Politically he is a Democrat and was a delegate to the National Democratic Convention in Los Angeles, Calif., in 1960. He is a member of Kiwanis International Service Club, having served as the President of the Meridian Mississippi Downtown Club in 1955; Lt. Governor of the 3rd District of the Kiwanis Club and as District Governor of the Louisiana-Mississippi-West Tennessee District in 1964. He is listed in Marquis "Who's Who in America" from 1964 through the 1972-73 edition. He has been a member of the House of Delegates of the American Bar Association since 1961 and in 1972 was on the Board of Governors. In 1972 he was Chairman of the Association's LAW DAY USA which is considered the American Bar Association's greatest public relations project. This year marked the 15th annual observance and is developed around a challenge to the Nation and the legal profession in three broad areas of special concern. To emphasize the need for all people to work together in improving society, strengthening the legal process and encouraging the rights and responsibilities of citizenship.

Several new program aids have been developed for use by State and Local Bars including a 20 page pamphlet "Respect for Law" written especially for elementary students explaining how the judicial system functions from arrest through trial; the role of judges, attorneys and other court officals, appeal procedures, origin of laws and the necessity for good citizenship. He has worked for many years on the genealogy of his immediate family and through his wide correspondence and acquaintances has greatly aided in securing information from many sources which are included in this History and Genealogy of the Witherspoon Family.

5. Claude Leland, Jr. (29 Aug. 1909 – _____)
6. Hettie Marshall (1 Sep. 1914 – _____)

He was born in Navarro County, Texas, the son of Dr. A. N. Witherspoon. Dr. Witherspoon, a native of Mississippi, came to Navarro County in 1854 and engaged in the practice of medicine here until his death. Mrs. Witherspoon was also a native Texan, having come to Texas at the age of sixteen. Claude L. Witherspoon attended the public schools of Navarro County, and as a young man spent several years as a clerk in Corsicana stores. A little later he went in the real estate business, and when oil was first discovered in Navarro County, in 1897, he began buying and selling leases, and in 1901 drilled his first well. Since that time he drilled over two thousand wells in Texas oil fields, operating as a drilling contractor for some years, and later drilling as an independent operator. He operated in every light oil district in Texas, and was especially active in the Corsicana field and in the West and Central and Southwest Texas fields. The Witherspoon Oil Company, Inc., of which Mr. Witherspoon was head and principal stockholder, owns the Medina Refining Company and the Mirando City Gas Company. Mr. Witherspoon was also heavily interested in the Lytton Springs field of Caldwell County, having drilled a large number of wells in that district.

The Witherspoon Company operated from a production angle, and drilling and development work was under way at all times, and the rigs belonging to the company were in the various fields in which they were interested. Mr. Witherspoon had kept in close touch with oil development in Texas for many years, and he had at his disposal a special fund of information regarding the oil situation, both from a practical standpoint and a scientific angle, and few men were better informed along these lines than he.

He was married in Jeffersonville, Ind., and bringing his wife back to Dallas, he operated a service station at the corner of Cedar Springs and Throckmorton.

He remained in Dallas until 1931 and then moved back to California where he was employed by the Standard Oil Company. In 1933 he became a salesman for the Howard Automobile Company in Beverly Hills, Calif. In 1936 he bought a Buick dealership in Venice, Calif., and in 1938 left this to buy a larger dealership in San Bernardino. In addition to this he organized the California Acceptance Finance Company in 1951 and in 1954 gave up the Buick Dealership to engage full time in the Finance Company, eventually opening branches in Costa Mesa and in Fontana, Calif. He sold the Finance Companies in 1966 to the Aetna Finance Company and retired from business to enjoy his many hobbies.

His father taught him and his brother, Linton Stubbs, the art of fishing and upon his retirement he spends most of his spare time in fishing for Marlin swordfish and the Broadbill swordfish. He also fishes for Albacore, tuna, yellowtail and white sea bass. He has fished in Tahiti, Hawaii, Panama, Venezuela, Cuba, Mexico, Santa Domingo, Jamaica, Bimina, Bahamas, New Foundland and many other places. He served as President of the Tuna Club of Avalon, Calif., the Balboa Angling Club of Balboa, Calif., the light tackle marlin club of Newport Beach, Calif., the International Light Tackle Tournament Association, the latter having held tournaments in the United States, Central and South America.

He is a member of many Associations and Foundations for the protection of marine life and is presently a member of the Marine Fisheries Advisory Committee within the Commerce Department in Washington, D. C. They have a home at 4645 Fairfield Road in Corona Del Mar, Calif., near the ocean beach.

His wife, Josephene Morgan Witherspoon, is a native of Harrodsburg, Ky., also having been the first baby to be delivered by his father following his graduation from Medical School. Her sisters were all registered nurses and worked for his father in his medical practice.

He was born in Detroit, Mich., and while still a small boy he came with his parents to Spokane, Wash. He was educated in the public schools of Spokane, graduating in 1894. He studied law in the offices of Forster and Wakefield and was admitted to the bar in the State of Washington in January of 1899. For seven years he was associated with the firm of Forster and Wakefield and upon the death of the senior member of the firm he entered into a partnership with W.J.C. Wakefield known as Wakefield and Witherspoon. During the 25 years of the existence of this firm it occupied a conspicuous position in the State Bar Assocation of Washington. Both members won wide reputation and recognition in their profession. Meanwhile Mr. Witherspoon's interests increased in other fields and in addition to his legal connections he became director in many corporations, including the Old National Bank where he was President; The Old National Insurance Company; the Investment Securities Company; the Standard Silver Lead Mining Company; Vice-President of the Pend Oreille Mining and Metals Company; The Peyton Investment Company; the Continental Flouring Mills Company; The Davenport Hotel, Inc.; the Ryder Recording Thermometer Company; The Union Trust Company; The First National Bank of Spokane, The Nelson and Fort Sheppard Railway Company of Nelson, B. C., and the Hecla Mining Company which operates the celebrated Hecla Mines.

He was a member of the American Bar Association, the Washington State Bar Association and the Spokane Bar Association. He was also a member of the Spokane Country Club and in his younger days served an enlistment in the Washington State Militia as Sergeant of Battery A, in Spokane. In politics he was a Republican but was not active in a public way, preferring to perform the duties of good citizenship in less spectacular, but no less effective ways.

His wife Eda was the daughter of a well known business man of Spokane.

P501–O402 HERBERT WITHERSPOON (27 Nov. 1878 – 5 Jan. 1962)
M: (1) 9 Oct. 1904 Ethel Ruth Woodworth (_____–_____)

Issue: 1. Herbert Jr. (22 Jun. 1906 – 21 Jul. 1914)
M: (2) 11 Jan. 1929 Beatrice Leone O'Cander (____ – ___)

He was born in Detroit, Michigan, and is descended from an ancient Scottish family, several branches of which have been established in the United States and Canada.

He was almost five years old when the family home was established in Spokane. He spent his boyhood in that city, completing his preliminary education in Spokane High School, and later took a course in Blair's Business College. On December 1, 1894, at the age of sixteen, he began his career with the Spokane and Eastern Trust Company of Spokane, with which he remained for a quarter of a century. His first position was as a messenger boy, but his ambition and ability soon won him favorable consideration from his superiors and he advanced gradually through various offices, obtaining practical experience in every department of banking. From 1894 until 1901 he served successively as messenger, clerk, bookkeeper and teller. February 1, 1901, he was appointed manager of the Moscow, Idaho, branch of the Spokane and Eastern Trust Co., and remained in charge of operations there until May 25, 1906, when he was elected assistant secretary of the company and recalled to the home office. On January 15, 1908, he was elected vice-president and director. In this capacity he served for the next eleven years. He became a recognized authority on bonds and investments and was in charge of the bond business of his company. He was also one of the organizers of the Investment Banker's Association of America, and was twice elected a member of its board of governors.

On January 1919 Mr. Witherspoon resigned his position with the Spokane and Eastern Trust Company and removed to Seattle, where his activities have since centered. During some six months in this city in war service, he had formed important contracts and now became vice-president and director of the National City Bank of Seattle, continuing to devote his attention to commercial banking. On February 23, 1929, when the National City Bank of Seattle was amalgamated with the National Bank of Commerce of Seattle, he became vice president and director of the latter institution and has so remained.

Mr. Witherspoon is also a director of the Marine National Company of Seattle and the Electrol Oil Burner Corporation. In 1917 he became chairman of the Liberty Loan Committee for a district comprising twenty three counties in Eastern Washington and Northern Idaho; was appointed vice-chairman of Spokane County Council of Defense; and in 1917 became assistant Fuel Administrator of the State of Washington and early in 1918 a director of the United States War Industries Board, at a salary of one dollar per year. Mr. Witherspoon has also served as a member of Battery A, Washington National Guard. He is affiliated with the Free and Accepted Masons; is a member of the Rainier Club of Seattle, of which he is a trustee and treasurer, and the Seattle Golf Club, and a member of Trinity Episcopal Church of Seattle.

Herbert continued as Senior Vice President and director of the National Bank of Commerce of Seattle, until he retired in January 1948. At the time he was director of the Pioneer Sand and Gravel Company, a member of the Athletic Club of Seattle, Rainer Club, Seattle Golf Club, Nile Temple, Pioneer Association of Washington, Seattle Historical Society, and later became a life member of the Automobile Club of Washington, which was an honor.

From 1948 to 1961 Mr. and Mrs. Witherspoon traveled and enjoyed life and good health.

He suffered a stroke and passed away at the age of 83.

He was born in Parker County, Texas, near Weatherford, and attended a country school at Shady Grove near his home and at Weatherford College which at that time was an academy only, with no college work. His father being an employee of the Texas and Pacific Railway, he turned to railroading and worked for the Texas and Pacific, the Colorado and Southern, the El Paso and Southwestern, Denver and Southwestern, Chicago, Burlington and Quincy, as fireman and for the Missouri Pacific and the Great Northern as brakeman.

He began work for the Chicago and Northwestern Railway on July 1, 1910 as a locomotive fireman. He was promoted to engineer in 1916 but took a leave in 1917 to enlist with the Canadian army in World War I as a locomotive engineer and served in France until the United States entered the war and then he transferred to the United States Army, serving until the close of the war, returning to Clinton to assume his job as engineer with the Chicago and Northwestern.

In January, 1934, he was elected general chairman of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen and served in that capacity until Aug. 31, 1941. Then he was elected international vice-president, in which post he served until Sept. 30 of 1951. He also served on the national railroad adjustment board a year and a half.

The Enginemen's magazine for October, 1941, described him as 'one of the first to advocate the horsepower method of determining rates of pay on diesel-electric locomotives. . he was chairman of the wage basis committee which recommended changing the system of computing rates of pay from weight on drivers to total weight and horsepower. This plan was unanimously adopted by the Associations of General Grievance committees."

"The following is copied directly from a newspaper clipping of the CLINTON HERALD OF CLINTON, IOWA, Tuesday October 2, 1951."

"J. L. WITHERSPOON RETIRES FROM RAIL BROTHERHOOD

"Working conditions of railroad men have undergone sweeping improvements since James L. Witherspoon, began his career 45 years ago.

"He recalled that today as he began his retirement from the post of international vice-president of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen. He and his wife reside at 355 Nineteenth Place.

"Of course, rail facilities have improved greatly. He recalls the very, very small steam locomotive in use when he went into railroading. But what strikes him most is the evolution of conditions for the worker.

"For instance, when he started there was no hours-of-service law. Since then, a 16-hour and an 8-hour law have been passed, plus the Railway Labor act. Few railroads had any sort of pension plan when Witherspoon began his career. Now all railroad employees are covered by the Railroad Retirement law. He also pointed to the Interstate Commerce Commission's automatic stoker order, "which made the work of firemen safer and easier." But he doesn't think there's much point in listing the good things attained ("It'd take an order house catalog to list all the improvements.")

Witherspoon says he has "some regret" in retiring before it was possible to bring about a 40 hour week for operating men on the railroad. Men in other industries and also non-operating employees of the railroad already have the 40-hour week. Operating men include the switchmen, brakemen, conductors, engineers, firemen, etc.

Witherspoon doesn't expect to have time on his hands ("I scarcely have time to catch up on the things I want to do.") He loves to fish but particularly he loves good books. Political and labor history have held a special interest for him but he also enjoys novels, and names like the Russian Tolstoy and even and Spanish author Ibanaz come to his mind when asked about favorite writers. In the field of political history, he admits an admiration and deep interest in such men as Jefferson, Jackson, Lincoln, Woodrow Wilson and Theodore and Franklin Delano Roosevelt.

He has read Karl Marx's "Das Kapital" twice and he was anxious to have it understood he regards most of the theories of the book as unsound and Marx as a largely misguided man."

5. Ted Glynn (28 Mar. 1920 – 18 Nov. 1943)
6. Eddie Ruth (11 Jul. 1922 – _____)

He was born in Weatherford, Texas, and lived at Granite, Oklahoma, for several years until he moved to Norco, Calif., where he purchased a 5 acre plot on which he raises pigs, chickens and a few calves. Prior to his 82nd birthday the local NORCO newspaper ran a story in their column NORCO PROFILES about him a portion of which is quoted herewith which is titled Great Names Run in Stonewall Jackson Witherspoon's Family: "Stonewall Jackson Witherspoon will be 82 in a couple of weeks and he attributes his obvious strength and good health to staying out of hospitals and staying away from hard likker and carbinated drinks. "The only cold thing I drink is water", he said. His fascinating name was one of several in his family. He is one of five boys born in Weatherford, Texas, and he is now the oldest as two have died. His brothers are named William Cody, Teddy Roosevelt, Edgar Allen and James Longstreet. . Stonewall Jackson is actually called JACK. He lives at 4211 California Ave., where he has been since coming to Norco in 1949. He is tall, 6 feet 2 inches and thin, weighing only 120 pounds. His craggy face and thick shock of greying hair belie his 82 years.

Witherspoon runs his 4½ acres himself, he notes proudly, and still loads his own truck and trailer to make his weekly trip to the Chino auction on Tuesdays. At Chino he is the oldest one with the longest record of attendance.

"He's an old horsetrader", says his granddaughter, Dorothy Piering, fondly. (Her parents, Hack and Louise Hacket, live on a half-acre cut out of Witherspoon's original five acres). Witherspoon has two other children in the area: F. R. in Norco and J. R. in Home Gardens. Virgil lives in Paramount and his daughter, Ruth Steiger, is visiting this month in Norco from Singapore. Grandchildren in the area include Jean Terrian in Mira Loma, Ted in Home Gardens and Jackie in Norco as well as Mrs. Piering in Corona.

There are 12 grandchildren in all and 19 great-grandchildren. His first great great grandchild is expected soon. The size of his family awes him a bit for a family reunion on his 80th birthday caused him to comment: "and to think I'm the one responsible for all of you." His wife, Lillie, died in 1962. They celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary in 1958.

Witherspoon is an old fashioned Texas farmer. His bib overalls hang out in the shed over his boots. Until recently he plowed his own land with his donkey, Josephene, pulling the plow. Now the land is in pasture which he irrigates himself. The ANGELS are his baseball heroes dating back to their minor league days in 1940 when they played at Wrigley Field. "Grandpa's happy when they win but upset when they lose", said Mrs. Peiring. She said he watches television with the radio blaring a baseball game at the same time. "He loves to tease and doesn't mind being teased either," she commented. One day last week for instance a visiting grandson had his pony standing outside ready to ride. Witherspoon sneaked out and turned the saddle backwards, then watched for the boy's reaction.

Most of the time he feels good but the hot weather gets him down some. The cool tiled back porch with an electric fan whirring seems to fix him up; that and his favorite pipe which he carefully filled and tamped, as he chatted. He never got around to lighting it however.

He was born near Weatherford, Texas, and was educated in the Weatherford Public School and immediately went to work in the Citizens National Bank of Weatherford in 1920 and remained with the Bank until 1945 when as Vice President of the Bank he resigned his position as an officer but held his finanacial interest and remained on the Board of Directors, which position he holds at the present (1973).

He is a member of the Couts Memorial United Methodist Church where he has been a member of the Official Board, Teacher in the Sunday School, a member of the Choir and active in many other parts of the Church. He served on the Central Texas Conference Board of Education and the Jurisdictional Conference Board of Education. He served 4 years as a member of the Board of Trustees of Harris Methodist Hospital of Ft. Worth, Texas. He was a delegate to the Methodist Jurisdictional Conference in 1948 and a delegate to both the Jurisdictional and General Conferences in 1952.

He is a member of the Masonic Lodge, having served in 1941-42 as Worshipful Master. He is a member of the Knights of Pythias Lodge and served as Chancellor Commander in 1933-34 and was elected as Grand Treasurer of the State of Texas and served in this capacity for 25 years.

He has been a registered Scouter in the Boy Scouts of America for 44 years since 1928 and was awarded the Silver Beaver award by the Longhorn Council of Ft. Worth, Texas, in 1942. He has been a member of the Weatherford, Texas, Lions Club since 1927, making him a 45 year Veteran and is Past Secretary and Past President of the Club.

He served on the Board of Directors of the American Red Cross and was War Fund Chairman in 1944. He is a member and a past President of the Weatherford Chamber of Commerce and in 1960 was awarded the Outstanding Citizen award of the year by that organization. He is a charter member of the Junior Chamber of Commerce and served as president in 1935. He was a member of the Board of Trustees of Weatherford Junior College for 10 years, serving as Secretary of the Board for 8 years. He was appointed on the Weatherford Municipal Water and Electric Board when the City built its Electric system and bought the Water System from the Public Utilities Company and served for 20 years on that Board.

He was one of the original Directors of the Parker County United Fund when it was first organized, serving for 3 years. He was appointed as a member of the Parker County Hospital Board when it was first built and served in that capacity for 9 years and Secretary of that Board for 8 of those years. He was a charter member of the Weatherford Gold Medal Bank which was organized in 1922 and played in several bands in and near Weatherford and Ft. Worth, making many trips throughout the United States and Canada. He is an amateur astronomer and in 1932 he and Dr. J. M. Browder of Weatherford built a 6" reflector telescope and they organized the Weatherford Astronomical Society which remained in existence for many years. He has been a member of the National Geographic Society since 1929 and has bound volumes of the National Geographic magazine since 1915.

In 1933 he became interested in the genealogy of the WITHERSPOON family and has worked in his spare time from that date until 1973 on research for this volume. In 1973 when this volume was published he lived at 410 South Waco Street in Weatherford, Texas 76086.

Following his resignation from the Bank in 1945, he entered the variety store business with W. G. Vincent of Weatherford and when his son, William Orville (S-193) returned from 2 years in the service he bought Mr. Vincent's interest and they operated the several businesses until 1971 when they sold the entire business and he is now co-owner with Miss Margaret Williams of the Weatherford College Book Store which is operated by Mrs. Lillian Fehr Witherspoon.

Unmarried

The following is taken from The Witherspoon Line by Willie Amos Stowe, Iowa Park, Texas:

"He was reared by his Mother's Sister Dela and husband Carroll Faison, Dela died and Caroll Fasion married Dela's Aunt Ollie and Ollie died and Caroll Fasion married the third time. Then Caroll Faison died and then Raymond Adams Witherspoon was sent to his Grandfather and Grandmother and they died in 1921. Raymond Adams Witherspoon was sent to his Uncle Pearl's and his uncle Pearl Died.

Now at the age of 16 Ramond Adams Witherspoon was out in the world alone, he joined the Army during World War one and served years. He got his discharge in Chicago and worked 8 years in a library in Chicago, he went to see his sister Lucille Freeman in 1945. This was the first time she had seen him in 33 years. He stayed around until 1947 then went to Arizona for his health. He has not been heard from since. He was a brilliant and well read man. He had made good use of his time while working in the library."

2. Michael Richard (14 Nov. 1954 – _____)
3. John Patrick (3 Mar. 1961 – _____)
4. Lisa Dianne (9 Aug. 1964 – _____)

He was born in a small rural community south of Dallas, Texas, the son of a migrant farmer. The family moved to West Texas early in his childhood following the death of his mother when he was only 5 years of age. He and his brother "Hack" (R220) used to sleep in a dugout beneath the small schack in which the family of 16 lived. He attended school in the small West Texas town and attended Southwestern State Teachers College of Weatherford, Okla. After graduation he married his classmate, Hillois Tanner, who became his side partner not only in his family life but later in his business. She passed away in 1971. He and his wife both taught school in Levelland, Texas, where he taught math and coached the football team. During the depression the school began paying its teachers in script so they both quit teaching and with Lewis Tanner, his father-in-law, moved to Omaha, Neb., in 1938. In commenting about his teaching and coaching career, he said that it was the most rewarding work he had ever done for he runs the management of his business team the way a high school coach might. After moving to Omaha he and his father-in-law started the GIBSON PRODUCTS COMPANY which warehoused and sold notions and novelties to "Wagon Jobbers", people who drove around the country selling merchandise from trucks. The Company's name came from his association with H. R. Gibson, Tanner's nephew, who was a small wheeler-dealer in Dallas, Texas, who bought items from several outlets. The association with Gibson has continued and all but 18 stores in his chain of more than 120 stores pay a franchise fee to Mr. Gibson for the right to use the GIBSON name.

The chain of stores almost wholly owned by Witherspoon is named PAMIDA. The name was formed from parts of the names of his three sons: PA for Patrick, MI for Mike and DA for David. He had originally begun in the retail business in 1938 and his present company PAMIDA Inc. was organized in 1962. His stores are located in the Midwest, Southwest and Southeast in small towns, most of them averaging 9000 in population.

Pamida sales have risen from $8,000,000.00 in 1965 to more than $62,000,000. in 1970 and he expects to reach $200,000.000. by 1975. His stores stock more than 14,000 items on a cash and carry basis. He lives with his twin sister, Mrs. Iris Jane Norman, in a palatial home in West Omaha, Neb., which home was built especially for his wife and the building was rushed in order that she might enjoy a few months living in it before her death which was expected at any time.

She was born in New Orleans, La., and soon after her marriage she accompanied her husband to London where he was sent by the Baldwin Locomotive Works to head their European office and much of her life thereafter was spent in England. During Mr. Roger's successful business career there, however, they made frequent visits to the United States.

During World War II, after Dunkirk, the Rogers sent their children back to New Orleans, in July of 1940. Remaining in England with her husband, she engaged in activities for the help of the Allies before the entry of the United States into the war. An organization which she formed was a forerunner of the highly successful effort known as "Bundles for Britain".

Mr. & Mrs. Rogers returned to the United States in 1942 and as soon as conditions permitted he was back in London and she rejoined him in 1945.

Prior to her marriage she was active in the civic and social life of New Orleans and she was co-founder of the Junior League of that city. In 1951 Mr. & Mrs. Rogers returned permanently to the United States and bought the Old Mill property at Old Buena Vista. They added to and modernized the handsome old stone mill.

They suffered a harrowing experience there in the flood that accompanied Hurricane Camile in 1969. They were trapped in the house with five feet of water rushing through its lower portion and had to be rescued.

She died at her home in Lexington, Va., and is buried in the Stonewall Jackson Cemetery there.

He was born in North Carolina and at an early age became interested in music since he came from a musical family. He was a member of his High School Glee Club and which sang not only popular music but classical as well. His interest in the more serious type of music came when his Glee Club director played a recording of Dvorak's "New World Symphony" which awakened a real interest in this kind of music.

A movie which he attended had scenes from "Martha" and this was his first exposure to Opera. He stated that music was so melodious that he went back to see it four times just to hear the music. In commenting about his early interest in the serious music and opera he said he would sit for hours in the Library of Woman's College of Greensboro, N. C., listening to records, especially to the symphonies. This is where he met his wife who was attending the College.

We quote from the News and Observer of Sunday 15 Feb. 1970: "David Witherspoon is one of the best-known tenors in the state, and the reproduction of Jeff Hill's oil painting which shows Witherspoon as Pagliacci suggests the field that has occupied his life – opera.

A native North Carolinian, he is the general manager of the National Opera Company and claims the distinction of having been a member of the first "Grass Roots Opera" cast as well as having remained with the troupe since their first performance in January, 1950.

He has appeared in 300 performances with the touring troupe in such roles as Don Jose in "Carmen", Ernesto in "Don Pasquale", Count Almaaviva in "the Barber of Seville", and countless others. He began his study of voice with Benjamin Bates and Lorne Grant in Greensboro where he was working. His first title role was with the Piedmont Festival in Winston-Salem in 1946 in the "Tales of Hoffman". He joined A. J. Fletcher in September, 1947, and is now director of promotion and sales development for WRAL-TV.

The years with the opera company have seen many changes, "and even though better facilities are available now and we are better-equipped, the recordings of some of the early performances stack up pretty well vocally.

"Our props used to consist of a door frame, two benches, two spotlights and greenery to fill up the stage, which we gathered after arriving at our destination. Now we have a 2½-ton truck carrying lighting and scenery. Even though scenery is limited, it is better than the earlier years.

Needless to say, anecdotes abound about the many performances, and with a group of singers, anything can happen.

"We were performing for a school and temporary dressing rooms were made of screens in a gymtorium. We heard screams, the ladies' dressing room collapsed, and they were climbing on anything higher than floor level. One of them had seen a mouse. The men in the cast drew their stage swords and went after the little animal."

National Opera Company singers and stage directors are selected by audition, which are held in various parts of the United States. Mr. Witherspoon travels extensively in the off season conducting auditions.

The members of Fletcher's company are professionals, with training in this country and abroad. Members of this year's troupe have studied or worked at the Mozarteum in Salzburg, Austria; the Cincinnati Conservatory of Music; the Conservatoire at Fountainbleau in France; the New York City Opera, and the Central City and Santa Fe opera groups.

Graduates of the company have gone on to major roles with leading opera groups.

Four former singers are with the New York City Opera: Kay Creed, Judith Anthony, Patricia Wise and William Beck. Beck currently is serving as stage director for the national Company.

The company averages 60-70 performances a year. For the singers, according to David Witherspoon, the company general manager and a singer who appeared here as Don Jose in "Carmen", the "main Lure" is getting experience.

"They get a chance to perform before an audience," he said. "They usually (assuming they have talent to begin with) can go on to higher things." By higher things he meant the Met or other top American and European companies.

To refer to these companies as "higher things" is not to downgrade the National Company. The fact is simply that its singers are young and gaining experience, and the National Company is one of the organizations in which they can do this with regularity.

The company carries its own sets and costumes on tour. Professional designers have put them together. The performers, the sets, properties and costumes travel in two station wagons and a 2½ ton truck.

Home base for the singers during their 4½-month season is two houses in Raleigh which Fletcher purchased for this purpose.

Rehearsals are held in the auditorium of WRAL, the radio station he owns.

The company receives no state support. The deficit each year, amounting to $15,000 - $20,000 is met by Fletcher.

Witherspoon said he could not give an absolute estimate of the deficit, because, for one thing, the opera budget carries no provision for administrative expenses. He works for the opera as an employee of the radio station.

Rehearsals are held in the station's auditorium, thus eliminating the cost of hiring a rehearsal hall. Printing is done through the station facilities.

On September 25, 1968, the Raleigh Music Club met for their 42nd annual banquet and honored Mr. David Witherspoon by dedicating the year-book to him.

"He has given his loyal support to the aims and projects of our Federation at all levels," the tribute read, "and for several years has served as opera chairman for the State Federation. He has promoted opera throughout North Carolina and other areas of the United States, and has sung leading roles in more than three hundred performances of the Raleigh based National Opera Company, including the world premiere of Alec Wilder's 'Sunday Excursion' at a convention of the National Federation of Music Clubs in New York City.

"He also recorded in New York for Voice of America," the dedication continued. "His fine tenor voice has won acclaim in numerous radio and television productions, concerts and oratorio performances."

He served for ten years as chairman of opera for the North Carolina Federation of Music Clubs, and has served as regional governor for the National Opera Association for four years. His activities in civic work have included president of the Sertoma Club, Raleigh, and Man of the Year, 1967. He served on the boards of the Red Cross and United Fund and in 1972 is a member of the board of deacons of the West Raleigh Presbyterian Church. David Witherspoon became interested in the genealogy of the WITHERSPOON Family many years ago and has worked and traveled extensively gathering information. He has been very helpful in assisting in the preparation of this book and securing information which is contained therein.

He was educated in Vancoover, B. C., and because of the world wide depression of 1929 and while only 20 years old he worked at any job which was open, in a law office, a bank clerk, cheesemaker, farmer and a salesman. Became a salesman in 1934 and in 1937 was the Alberta Salesmanager for an Eastern Publication. In 1941 he enlisted in the Canadian Army as a private and was promoted to the rank of Captain by the end of the war. Following the end of the war he was Western Canada Supervisor of the Publisher's Guild of Canada and later was Sales Manager for Mutual Funds for a stock broker and Investment Dealer. In 1961 he was appointed Endowment Director for the Canadian Scholarship Trust Foundation and subsequently was in charge of both Alberta and British Columbia. Because of a heart condition, he resigned in 1971, maintaining his interest in the Foundation's work but became a Realtor representing some of the largest corporations in Canada.

He owns a beautiful one half acre lot in a choice location on the waterfront on Vancoover Island. A new home was built on this plot, which is their present home in 1972. He is a public speaker of note and has written articles for magazines. More recently he has taken up painting in watercolors and is writing a book on the "Mighty Frazer River", doing his own illustrations. His mailing address is Box 684, Parksville, B. C.

He was born in Oregon and graduated from the University of Oregon taught art in San Francisco, Calif. and in 1957 moved to Armock, N. Y. where he now resides at77 Weber place. He is a noted sculpturer and was awarded the John Jay Fellowship in the humanities in 1963-64 and attended the University of California at Berkeley to study ancient Greek history, philosophy and religion. In 1960 he visited the caves of Lascaux in France and these prehistoric drawings have influenced his carvings.

He was commissioned to carve the two wooden doors of the New Harmony, Indiana center, which were dedicated to the memory of the late Paul Tillich, a Protestant theologian andare located in the new refectory building of the Complex at New Harmony. Mrs. Tillich, widow of the late Paul Tillich unveiled the doors on May 1, 1968. The door carvings are two hooded figures of near heroic size to express the mystery of life, one being a young shepherd with sheep across his shoulders. The other of an aged Prophet who carries an owl under his left arm.
